At least 10 hostages have been moved from the U.S. embassy in Tehran in the last 72 hours, according to the Montreal newspaper La Presse.

In a dispatch from Tehran, Robert Pouliot, the newspaper's Middle East correspondent, says the move is supposed to have occurred Tuesday or Wednesday night.

He quotes a western and an Arab diplomatic source as confirming the transfer took place and is continuing.

The western source, who Pouliot describes as being in permanent contact with the U.S., was informed of "the movement of hostages" Tuesday. He says the hostages were sent to the Evin prison where the Shah's secret police kept political prisoners until last February.

Another Middle East source says the hostages were moved in groups of five to residences some distance from the city centre and particularly to the north of Tehran. The exact number of hostages moved was not available.

Pouliot says the hostages have apparently been handed over to the "Guardians of the Revolution" a kind of peoples militia created by the Islamic Revolutionary Council on the eve of the overthrow of the Shah's regime.

Until now the 49 American hostages were under the supervision of the "the Moudjaheddin Khalq of the radical faction," a group of Marxist-Islamic activists who took the embassy by assault Nov. 4.

In the meantime, the number of revolutionary guards at the U.S. embassy has increased to an astonishing extent while for the first time in nearly a month the spokesman for the "students faithful to Ayatollah Khomeini," as the Moudjaheddin activists call themselves, has been extremely talkative with foreign journalists.

Pouliot says that while some western diplomats fear the worst as a result of the hostage transfer, Mid-Eastern diplomats feel it may lead to a fast and surprising end to the embassy capture.

While the western diplomats see in the transfer an indication that trials of the hostages are imminent, the Middle East diplomats see the possiblity for a detente which should occur after Iran's national constitutional referendum Sunday and Monday.

Meanwhile, Iran announced today it will boycott a United Nations Security Council meeting on the U.S. embassy takeover.

A UN spokesman said the meeting will go on nevertheless.

In Tehran, Iran's new foreign affairs chief Sedagh Ghotbzadeh reiterated Khomeini's contention that the Security Council is under the U.S. thumb and said any Council decision "is not binding and we don't accept it."

The United States is seeking a Council resolution calling for release of the hostages. But Iran wanted the Council to take up its allegations against the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pah-

Airlines slashing fares on Canada to U.K. flights

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada and British Airways today announced a winter sale of seats at discounts between 47 and 71 per cent of economy fares for travel between major Canadian and United Kingdom points.

The sale, the first agreed to by carriers on the North Atlantic run, will be effective for the period Jan. 14 to Feb. 29, 1980 to and from Canadian points to London, England and Prestwick, Scotland.

Air Canada also announced that for the same period, it will conduct a sale of seats for both short and long-haul flights which may be combined with the discounted trans-Atlantic flights.

A sample fare for the sale will see a Toronto-London return flight cost $259, against the regular economy fare of $976, while the Vancouver-London fare will be $409, compared to the regular economy fare of $1,202.

One of the conditions of the sale calls for all travel to be completed by March 14.

For the same time period, Air Canada also will have a sale of seats from Toronto and Montreal to Paris, although on a more restricted basis. Discount prices will apply Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for eastbound flights and Wednesday and Thursday only for westbound travel.

The discounted round-trip to Paris will be $299 against regular economy fares of $1,020 from Toronto and $952 from Montreal.

"Aside from providing opportunities for travel within our own country at an affordable price, the combination of both the domestic and Atlantic seat sales will bring overseas trips within reach of many people who might not have had the chance before," Guy Chiasson, Air Canada's vice-president for marketing said.

Conditions for the trans-Atlantic discounted fares include a 30-day advance booking requirement with payment within seven days of booking and a seven-day minimum stay.

A penalty of $50 will apply for cancellation or change of plans made 30 days or more before departure and $100 for notice given less than 30 days.

Conditions for the short and long-haul domestic flights differ in some areas.

A sample discount return fare on domestic routes will be $209 for Vancouver-Montreal compared to the regular economy fare of $470, and $239 for Vancouver-Halifax against the $560 economy fare.

United Way tops target

The United Way of Greater Victoria has reached its target of $1,020,000.

And that means that 23 agencies helped by the UW, will again be funded in 1980, campaign manager Bob Harvey said today.

A significant change in this year's campaign was the delivery of 9,900 mailers in place of a door-to-door canvass.

Harvey said campaign organizers had moments of doubt about the change but it proved a big success.

A total of 5,605 mailers were returned by Nov.30 and they brought in a total of $126,312.

Reasons for the change in campaigning were the difficulty in recruiting the thousands of canvassers needed and the expense of printing material needed for so many canvassers.

"In the last two years, the United Way has been able to hold administrative costs below 10 cents," Harvey said, adding this means that more than 90 cents of every dollar donated goes to its agencies.

Although the campaign has reached its target, Harvey said people can still send donations.

Donald O. Willows, a chartered accountant, has been appointed UW campaign manager for 1980.

It's stampede time in wild, woolly Saanich

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

A bull and his harem of unruly cows are disrupting a quiet Saanich neighborhood by ravaging gardens and frightening children, an angry group of Cameo Street residents says.

The cows — led by an irritable bull — break out of a fenced compound at least once a week, said one resident who didn't want to be identified.

"They charge around gardens and chew the vegetables. One neighbor lost all of his corn crop," the resident said.

Attempts to reason with the bull, cows or their owner, Bernard Dong, of 1816 McKenzie, have failed.

The cattle, well, just look bovine.

"He (Dong) just shrugs his shoulders and doesn't seem to care," the resident said.

A petition with 15 names on it was handed to Saanich council this week.

The petition says the neighbors are sick and tired of suffering continuing damage from the cows and ask the municipality to do something about it.

The residents are afraid their children might be hurt by the cows or that they will cause traffic accidents.

Dong told the Times this morning he has been penalized by the local pound on a number of occasions and appeared in court several times to pay fines totalling about $200.

The herd of nine Angus cows has been in the field for about eight years and do break out, he acknowleged.

"It's the bull that seems to cause the trouble," Dong said.

Improvements have been made to the fence to keep the cows inside, he added.

Saanich ombudsman Ald. Mary Casilio will pay Dong a visit.

"Appeal to his municipal pride," Ald. John Mika suggested to Casilio during a committee meeting Wednesday.

"After all Buttercup in Oak Bay doesn't seem to cause any problem," Mika added, referring to a milk cow kept by an Oak Bay family.

B.C. fishing greed flayed

PARKSVILLE (CP) — The commercial fishing industry in British Columbia is guilty of monumental greed, Mike Halleran, a freelance journalist who has worked for the federal fisheries department, said Thursday.

Halleran said the response of the fishing industry to decreasing fish stocks has been to build bigger boats, with the result that there are now even fewer fish and a person has to be rich to get into the industry.

He told a University of B.C. conference on natural resource conflicts that ways must be found to give the fisheries resource back to the people.

"Many lobbies in the fishing industry engage in a continuous no-holds-barred program of pressure politics to get more and more and more," Halleran said.

"I'm becoming more suspicious of the salmon industry all the time because they don't realize that the days of super-abundance are over."

He said he believes that hundreds of gillnets were abandoned illegally in last year's herring fishery by fishermen who fished to the last second, cut the net loose and "run for the cash boat." These abandoned nets continue to fill with fish that die and rot, Halleran said.

"The lobby pressure to maximize certain fisheries is sometimes too tough for the department to resist," said Halleran. "Most citizens are poorly informed on fisheries matters. The thrust of departmental information programs is misdirected and seems more designed to con than inform."

Halleran said pressures on fish habitat are increasing and "unless the department wins some friends for this resource, fisheries values will decline."

He urged civil servants who manage resources not to be pushed around by lobby groups.

Halleran also said he believes that the law should be changed to allow native Indian fishermen to sell salmon from roadside stalls. There is such a gross disparity between the wealth of the commercial salmon industry and the income level of native Indians that it constitutes an economic obscenity, he said.

Halleran said 97 per cent

B.C. to chase defaulting hubbies

By JAKE BANKY

A government-operated collection agency — the first of its kind in Canada — should be in business by this time next year to chase ex-husbands who default on maintenance payments to welfare mothers.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy says the agency will save hassles and heartbreak for the women and in the long run, probably save the province some money.

The minister said in an interview Thursday the proposal is ready to go before cabinet.

She expects the necessary legislative changes in the spring and the program to be in place before the end of 1980.

McCarthy estimates there are between 8,000 and 10,000 single mothers on welfare who should be getting monthly support payments from their former husbands.

However in more than half the cases the husbands default, some sporadically, some entirely.

What happens then, said the minister, is the woman must chase her ex-husband and if all else fails, take him to court for an enforcement-of-maintenance order.

Under the proposed new system, the province would pay the welfare mother her regular income assistance every month plus an amount equal to the maintenance owed by the husband.

The husband would make his monthly support payments directly to the government-run agency and not to his ex-wife.

"The day he defaults, that collection agency will be just as tenacious about collecting as a department store is in collecting for a chesterfield suite that isn't paid for," McCarthy said.

"The difference is that the woman doesn't have to worry about the maintenance payment — she doesn't have to make telephone calls to harass him. He doesn't have to leave town to escape her."

The minister said under the existing system, children are used as pawns, children are turned against their parents and become emotionally disturbed and the government is left to pick up the pieces.

"The province eventually does pay the welfare mother the money her husband defaults on, but not until she goes through all the arguments, vindictiveness, venom, violence and all the other things that go into collecting the dollar bill," McCarthy said.

The minister said her proposed change will not be expensive and aside from a little start-up funding, she does not expect it to cost more than the present system.

"If anything, after the first year there may even be a saving for the province."

The reason?

"Collection will be so much quicker and more tenacious. There will be no more getting away with non-payment."

THE OUTCASTS — by Ben Wicks

Kill him, say Miss Lillian

BOW, N.H. (AP) — Lillian Carter said if she had enough money she would pay someone to kill Ayatollah Khomeini. The audience at the Bow Men's Club stood and cheered.

At the White House, a spokesman said late Thursday: "I am sure Miss Lillian did not expect anyone to take that comment seriously."

The president's mother was asked during a lengthy question-and-answer session Thursday night, how she would "handle fanatics" like the religious leader of Iran if she were president.

"If I had a million dollars to spare, I'd look for someone to kill him," she replied, to much applause.

Mrs. Carter, 81, defended her son's position in the crisis in which 50 U.S. citizens are being held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to press Iran's demand that the deposed shah be returned from the United States to stand trial.

She asked: "How can you send the shah back to a sword? To certain death?"

Several members of the audience praised Carter's handling of the crisis, again to the loud cheers of the mostly Republican group packing the small community centre on the outskirts of Concord.

Embassy hostages split up lavi and its demand that the United States surrender him to the Iranians before release of the hostages can be considered. Iran says the shah must be put on trial on charges of mass murder and looting the country's wealth during his reign.

Ghotbzadeh said today that three senior U.S. officials, U.S. charge d'affaires Bruce Laingen and two other American diplomats are free to leave Iran whenever they like.

Laingen and two other U.S. embassy officials — Victor Tomseth and Michael Holland — were at the foreign ministry at the time the embassy was taken over. The three had been believed to be under a form of protective custody.

In The Hague, Netherlands, the International Court of Justice said today it intends to meet Dec. 10 to consider a United States request for an order compelling Iranian authorities to release American hostages.

The U.S. on Thursday asked the 15-judge chamber, the highest judicial body of the United Nations, to instruct Iran to free 50 hostages who have been held by Iranian students in the embassy since Nov. 4. In its petition, the U.S. also demanded that Iran be condemned for its "multiple violations of the immunities" of American diplomats.

Hundreds of thousands of Iranian demonstrators surrounded the embassy here today, the 27th day of captivity there for 50 American hostages, but there was no violence.

There were demonstrations in other parts of the world today.

About 600 demonstrators moved on the U.S. embassy in Kuwait but Kuwaiti National Guard troops in armored vehicles held them off, the U.S. State Department reported.

"They never got close enough to the embassy to do anything," a spokesman said.

In Manila, riot police blasted a crowd of Filipino Moslems with water jets from a firetruck today to break up a threatened march on the U.S. Embassy, and arrested 150 protesters.

Three loud noises were heard during the demonstration some 900 yards from the embassy and police said they could have come from homemade bombs or from huge firecrackers.

Authorities said said there were no casualties, but the demonstrators, who were backing Iranian students holding Americans hostage in Tehran, claimed at least three of the protesters were hurt in the melee.

In Calcutta, nearly 50 Iranian students demanding the United States return the shah to Iran burned an effigy of President Carter in front of the American consulate today.

In Bangkok, four explosions rocked the U.S. Embassy in downtown Bangkok today, breaking the retaining wall of a fountain pond outside, but causing no injuries.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said he heard at least two loud explosions, but there were no casualties or damage to the embassy building itself.

Meanwhile, Mexico turned its back on the shah and jarred his U.S. hosts, saying it will not renew the deposed monarch's tourist visa because his presence "would be contrary to the best interests of the country." There was speculation the shah might seek sanctuary in Egypt or the Caribbean.

Second warning to Greenpeace

By MIKE HUGHES

A spokesman for B.C. gillnetters has added his warning to members of the Greenpeace Foundation threatening to interfere with next year's roe herring fishery.

Mike Forrest, president of the 200-member Pacific Gillnetters Association, said in an interview there could be a "disaster" if Greenpeace members in rubber rafts start mixing it up with gillnetters on the fishing grounds.

He said if they attempt to go "hand to hand" with the fishermen or run over their nets with outboard motors, "man, there's going to be some upset guys on the grounds."

The situation could be inflammatory, Forrest said, because of the pressures on the fishermen during the short herring season.

There are time limitations on when the nets can be set and there is the pressure of being at the right place at the right time, coupled with the fact that the fishermen will be working hard and probably suffering from lack of sleep, he said.

The confrontation would be more intense with the gillnetters because their boats are smaller and lower in the water than the bigger 80- to 100-foot seiners, Forrest said.

Greenpeace, a world-wide environmental group, announced last week it is going to set out next year to protect the world herring stock.

Spokesmen say the export of herring as a luxury item to Japan will soon eliminate the species and destroy the food chain essential to other fish.

A spokesman for the Native Brotherhood of B.C., which represents B.C. Indians in the commerical fishing industry, warned this week there will be bloodshed if Greenpeace interferes with the herring catch.

Forrest said the environmental group is suffering from a lack of factual information.

No group is more concerned about the conservation aspects of the B.C. herring industry than the fishermen, he said, and if they thought there was a threat to the herring they wouldn't complain if there was a reduction in the allowable catch or even a closure.

The federal fisheries department keeps an eye on the situation and if it appears the stocks are threatened, closes the grounds, he said.

Forrest advised Greenpeace to find some other means of registering its concern.

Yanks leave driving to us

Americans are more inclined to leave their cars at home when they come to B.C., figures released Thursday by the provincial government show.

In September, the number of U.S. visitors who entered B.C. by bus increased 22.4 per cent, by plane 15.9 per cent, and by train 48.7 per cent.

Over-all, there was a 4.2-per-cent increase in U.S. visitors this September over the previous September but the cumulative total for American visitors in the first nine months of 1979 was about the same as for 1978.

Entries from overseas this September increased 16.8 per cent over September, 1978, bringing the total to 280,100 people for the first three-quarters of the year — a 19.8 per cent increase over the same period the previous year.

Ferries travelling to and from Vancouver Island are getting more crowded. There was a 9.1-per-cent increase in the number of passengers from January to September, 1979, over the same period last year.

More talks on the rails

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract bargaining between the B.C. Railway and the council of railway unions adjourned Thursday with the two sides agreeing on a nine-day schedule for additional talks in December.

The seven unions, representing 2,200 railway employees, will be in a legal strike position this weekend but immediate job action appears unlikely with negotiations scheduled for Dec. 6, 7, 12, 13 and 17-21.

BCR spokesman Hugh Armstrong quoted a management negotiator as saying "he sees an area here in which to conclude an agreement."

Earlier this week, council chairman Norm Farley said the railway had made a "sick offer" proposing an 11.5-per-cent wage increase over 29 months. Tradesmen on the BCR currently earn $10.18 an hour.

"They're trying to tie us into the national railroad system and the council is opposed to that," said Farley.

The national railways have settled at 26 per cent over three years.

Fair say in inquest: Nimpkish

ALERT BAY (CP) — The Nimpkish Indian Band says it wants fair Indian representation on the inquest jury which will inquire Dec. 12 into the death last month of a 16-year-old non-status Indian girl.

Assistant band manager Wedlidi Speck said Wednesday the request is contained in a letter to chief B.C. coroner William McArthur.

Speck said the band council was upset that only two Indians were selected to sit on the seven-member jury.

"We don't want a repeat performance of that imbalance," Speck said.

$70 million in frauds only tip of the iceberg

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commercial crimes involving about $70 million were investigated in British Columbia last year, but they represent only a small fraction of the number of frauds perpetrated, an RCMP officer said Wednesday.

Supt. R. N. Mullock said he estimates police dealt with about 10 per cent of the total number of commercial crimes.

Mullock told members of the Society of Management Accountants of B.C. white-collar crime in Canada totals an estimated $2 billion a year.

"The average crime these days involves more than $100,000 and the average prison sentence on conviction is 18 months," he said. "The average computer crime is for more than $500,000."

Mullock said an increasing number of firms are the victims of secret commission frauds, in which an employee demands a payment from a supplier before agreeing to buy a product or service.

"Five years ago we heard very little about this type of fraud, but in our office right now we have about 50 files on such incidents," he said.

Many firms cover up fraud, particularly those involving computers, Mullock said.

BCR lumber cars derailed

QUESNEL (CP) — Ten cars of a B.C. Rail freight train derailed Thursday just south of this Cariboo community as the railway continued to experience trouble on its tracks.

A B.C. Rail spokesman said the cars were carrying lumber. There were no injuries.

He said a repair crew from Prince George has been sent to the scene and it is hoped the line will be reopened later today.

He said the engineer reported a soft spot on the track just 30 seconds before the derailment and that probably was the cause of the mishap.

Wednesday, two B.C. Rail trains collided head-on near 100 Mile House, injuring three trainmen, one seriously. Two of the injured were sent to hospital in Kamloops.

Officials still are investigating the collision.

Last week, seven B.C. Rail butane cars derailed between Prince George and Northwood pulp mills after they were pushed off the tracks by mudslides.

Draw play a winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver couple with five children and a Canadian Football League player who lives in Kelowna were major B.C. winners in the Nov. 25 Provincial lottery.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brown said Thursday they are building a house and their $100,000 winnings will help them with this project.

Brock Aynsley, a wide receiver with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, won $10,000 and says he plans to invest it.

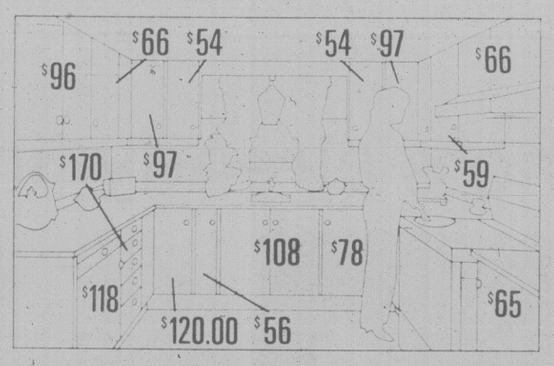
INTRODUCING THE HTH PIECE PLAN.

HTH lets you know the cost of kitchen renovations piece by piece.

When you're renovating a kitchen you have enough on your mind. The last thing you need is the elusive estimate. Or the hidden cost. Or the guesstimate. With the HTH Piece Plan, you know exactly what you're paying for cabinets. The cost of each cabinet is right there in our price list – piece by piece. We've taken the confusion out of cabinet buying. You can plan your kitchen knowing the cost down to the smallest cabinet.

At HTH, we can help you plan your kitchen and arrange for installation providing you with accurate costs in this area as well. HTH cabinets come in six basic styles and in a variety of warm and wonderful woods – light and dark oak, pine and mahogany. With features and details you'll appreciate. Like hinges that are virtually unbreakable. There's also a plastic lamination on the inside that makes HTH cabinets easy to clean and durable.



So come in show us your kitchen renovation plans and we'll show you ours – the HTH Piece Plan. The HTH kitchen shown here is the Light Oak style with 16 separate pieces arranged in a space measuring 10' x 7'.

The cost for cabinets only is $1,557.00

Price is for cabinets only and does not include installation costs, counter tops, appliances, sinks, decorative items, freight or applicable provincial sales taxes.

Dealing with common sense

The intent of the recommendations by a local coroner's jury investigating a recent air crash was certainly good. But those recommendations pose a dilemma for agencies governing private, and to a smaller extent, commercially licensed pilots.

The mishap occured Oct. 14 when a four-seat, single-engine aircraft slammed into a mountainside near Powell River, killing the three people on board. The pilot had 230 hours of flying experience, but was rated for only weather conditions that allow flight under Visual Flight Rules. The craft went down after low cloud and fog were encountered on a flight from Victoria to Campbell River.

In his summation, coroner Wilfred Carpenter said that the pilot should have turned back because of the weather conditions. He said that the pilot violated air regulations because he was not rated to fly under Instrument Flight Rules.

The jury concluded that the federal transport ministry should apply stringent penalties to pilots who fly in weather conditions beyond their ratings. It also called on the ministry for stricter enforcement of the visual flight rules.

Carpenter agreed with the recommendations but he also made a further observation: "The problem is: how do you enforce air regulations." That is really the crux of the issue.

Now, the transport ministry requires that a person fly a minimum of 35 hours, including instruction and solo time, before being granted a private pilot's licence. That doesn't include hours spent in the classroom learning flight theory, air regulations, weather, map reading, navigation, and so on.

The average person spends 45 hours in the air, about half of it with an instructor in the aircraft, before he gets a licence and is allowed to carry passengers. The number of hours may not sound like a lot, but it takes only six to eight hours of in-car instruction for the average person to learn to drive a car.

The pilot who does not have instrument ratings, whether private or commercially licensed, can legally fly only in VFR conditions. That means if he is up and the visibility or ceiling drops below a certain level, he either goes around the the disturbance or turns back. Every VFR pilot knows it.

The penalties for violation can be increased, but since it is impossible to have MOT inspectors on every aircraft or all patrolling airspace, it is nearly impossible to know if a VFR pilot is violating the regulations. The inspectors, on occasion do find out — after a pilot has pranged his craft in a forced landing, or killed himself and perhaps others in a crash. A high price has already been paid.

Carpenter also suggested that pilot education be strengthened. Consideration could be given to on going education or giving VFR pilots some IFR training. But as one Victoria flight instructor points out, the vast majority of private pilots are strictly fair weather flyers who know their limitations. Many privately-owned aircraft, he says, are not equipped for instrument flight.

Safe flying involves a knowledge of the rules, and as important, a good lot of common sense. The rules can be taught and enforced within reason. But teaching and forcing people to fly within the bounds of common sense is much more difficult. How far can the MOT reasonably go?

Chalk up another

Victorians have long boasted about many aspects of their city, but one adjective only rarely used to describe it is cheap. The attitude has more often been that slightly higher costs are just the price that is paid for living in such a pleasant city.

Now, however, a study undertaken by three University of Victoria economics students has shown that Victoria is, in fact, a little cheaper to live in than Vancouver. The study can't qualify as a full cost-of-living comparison, but the implication is clear. Although Victorians do pay a little more for some widely-publicized items, such as gasoline, this is more than compensated for by the lower prices for other items, such as housing and parking. Over-all, Victoria turns out to be about 2½ per cent cheaper than Vancouver.

Chalk up another in the lists of Victorian assets.

Fanning inflation

"Congratulations! You have at last put your finger (not very hard perhaps) on the chief culprit in our inflation blues — the government. But the "increase of nearly 4,000 per cent" in the income tax mentioned in your editorial with the above heading on Nov. 20, is only part of it. What about all the other government taxes, direct and indirect?

For example, when Messrs. Clark and Lougheed put up the price of Canadian (Albertan?) crude to the world level (a step only necessary if we exported crude) they will not, of course, allow the oil companies to receive the resulting 'windfall profit'.

This is clear because we are already witnessing the degrading exhibition of the greedy federal and provincial governments snarling and snapping over the fat bone(s) to come. But, irrespective of which government wins, we, the taxpayers, will be the losers. Apart from the immediate increase in our own gasoline and heating oil costs, everything else that moves by truck — something like 90 per cent of our domestic food and goods — will also have to go up in price. Once more, this will be passed straight on to us, the consumers — in effect, another heavy tax making inflation that much worse.

How, in the name of sanity, can these governments claim to be "fighting inflation"? No wonder Quebec wants to get out from under. So should we! — R. G. Napier, 80 King George Terrace.

Strange statement

In the Nov. 22 Times under the heading, "Oil Subsidy for Industry Urged", it is reported that J. H. Moore, Chairman of John Labatt Brewery Co., speaking to the annual meeting of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said "he favors boosting oil prices up near the world level but Canadian manufacturers will have to be protected through a special price or through additional tax incentives". The newspaper account later states "He repeated several times his belief that industry should get a preferred price or tax allowance for energy used."

It seems strange that such a statement should come from such an eminent supporter of "free enterprise", and be delivered to a body which is strongly committed to "free enterprise" and yet, according to the newspaper account, there was no objection made that this proposal advocated government intrusion into the affairs of "private enterprise". Indeed, the proposal amounts to welfare contributions to big business.

What Mr. Moore is advocating is that the ordinary citizen should be required to pay a higher price for gasoline and heating fuel, and, in addition, should be required to pay higher taxes to the federal government. (If tax allowances are granted to the manufacturers, the citizen will have to pay heavier taxes to make up the difference.)

It does not seem to occur to Mr. Moore that the shareholders of Labatts, and of other manufacturing companies, should be prepared to shoulder their share of the increased burden of higher energy costs. — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.

A form of torture

My wife has waited patiently since August for an operation for a prolapsed bladder. At this time the date of Nov. 19 was scheduled for the operation. Approximately three weeks ago the hospital advised my wife that she was scheduled for an operation on Nov. 20 and would be notified Nov. 19 by 11 a.m. what time to report to the hospital.

After waiting for a phone call from the hospital and several phone calls myself to admittance at the hospital we were finally notified at 2:30 p.m. that her booking had been cancelled. The following day, after a session of phone calls, I was advised that her operation had been postponed to Feb. 5, 1980.

It is a known fact that many people are apprehensive regarding any surgical operation and any extended unnecessary waiting period is without question a form of torture. My wife is in her seventies and I am concerned that she may die more from apprehension, anxiety and frustration than an operation.

It has been my contention for some time that when a person is elected as an MLA it appears they do little to benefit the public. It would be appreciated if the health minister would prove my assumption is incorrect by indicating he is making a sincere effort to prevent people being tortured by apprehension, anxiety and frustration with such ridiculous waiting periods for a surgical operation. — G. W. Frost, 7031 Grant Road, Sooke.

Gratifying

I was indeed pleased to read in your editorial section the kind letter from Jack E. Nugent. It is certainly gratifying to have patrons of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra respond so warmly to our recent performances.

I would like to express to the people of Victoria, my appreciation for the generous manner in which they have responded to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and myself, as well as my family. The audiences (almost always full to capacity) have been most receptive; we have received extensive newspaper coverage, and Victorians have been both friendly and very helpful. — Paul Freeman, Music Director and Conductor of Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Need federal help

British Columbia is being left out in the cold insofar as federal energy funding is concerned. Other provinces like Ontario and Alberta, by comparison, are being treated like kings.

In recent years the federal government payments to B.C. for energy research and development have been of the order of $2 million per annum. Ontario has been getting more than $200 million a year for atomic energy alone. Alberta has also received hundreds of millions of dollars for its tar sands projects. Quebec and the Maritimes have received many tens of millions of dollars for pipeline extensions, high voltage transmission research, oil port construction, etc.

We in B.C. are paying and not receiving. The federal gasoline tax alone will shortly be taking $200 million a year out of the province. Ottawa's tar sands levy will be taking about $50 million a year. So our contribution in the early 1980s to what Prime Minister Clark calls his national energy bank will be considerable. It could be of the order of $400 million a year by 1985.

British Columbia's power rates, meanwhile, are among the highest in Canada. And the retail price of our liquid fuels is at or above the national average. So we need help. We need more research and development especially where coal processing and wood waste utilization are concerned.

Logically ours is the province which should be pioneering the use of coal to make high value pipeline gas and high priced liquid fuels like gasoline. This development work can be done in the Kootenays and at other coal source areas in the Interior and the north, like Hat Creek and Chetwynd. Ottawa should be pushing these developments now, not leaving it to the province to get this essential development work going on its own. — Jack Davis, MLA, North Vancouver-Seymour.

Little interest

We take exception to the article "Highlights of the Trudeau Years" in which it states the "following is . . . a list of the highlights . . . of Pierre Trudeau's political career." It highlights Pierre Trudeau's marriage and separation — which are not political but personal aspects of his life. Why must the press always incorporate some aspects of his marital state? It is of little interest to Canadians at present and will mean even less to future generations. — K. P. Boros, P. L. Johnson, W. M. Kempton, 1320 Johnson Street.

Examine support

Your Times issue of Nov. 17, frontpaged the dilemma of a citizen who had been paying $470 monthly on a mortgage, and found that, on refinancing, his monthly obligation would be $610. His wife would be able to continue in employment to assist him in carrying the burden. We are not told if they have a family.

I must say I feel a greater concern for the dilemma faced by any "unit of three" as the Ministry of Human Resources categorizes a family of three. Their total potential income to meet all monthly needs will be $595, under the current provincial regulations. This is broken down as follows: a maximum of $325 for "shelter" which must cover "utilities" — i.e. light, cooking and heating fuel, phone (if this last luxury is undertaken) along with rent. Try looking in the "for rent" want ad columns!

In the first four months, for three on social assistance, the "support" will be $235 a month. If the need continues longer, the support will rise to $270 a month. What does "support" cover — all food, winter coats, summer shoes, postage stamps, recreation, car fare, all needs?

It is a thin spread indeed!

In other words, should our citizen and wife with the $610 mortgage lose their employment (as is happening to some white collar workers and some skilled tradesmen); should their savings melt; should their unemployment insurance melt; should ill health or accident overtake them — the social assistance available to them as "unit of two" would be less than I have noted above.

We need to inform ourselves, as concerned citizens, regarding what is available as support to families who qualify for social assistance, in these days of rising costs. — Clare McAllister, 302 - 118 Croft Street.

Everyone needs it

I do not know whether the Canadian Bill of Rights includes the right to privacy: if not, it should be added and extended to all individuals, even those in public life.

In the last few days the media has criticized our premier's short holiday, destination unknown. After a long journey to the Far East to promote B.C. trade, the Ottawa energy conference and the relentless cameras and microphones, it was a very human thing to seek a bit of sunny solitude.

In fact, all political leaders all over the world had, from time to time, sought a little shelter from the public eye.

Don't, please, adversely criticize our premier for wanting a "bit of sunshine": there must be so little of it in everyday political life! — E. J. Lattes, No. 432-200 Dallas Road.

Change direction

Why are they moving these chemicals? Bring whatever it is to the chemicals, then you do not have to move them anywhere. It's safer. — Joe Feller, 180 Croft Street.

RICHARD GWYN

Opening shots already fired

OTTAWA — Bearing jars of Royal Jelly as a latter-day substitute for frankincense and myrrh (no one these days gives away gold), Liberal ex-ministers, MPs, Senators, party officials and back-room gnomes have journeyed to Toronto to bend their knee before Donald Stovel Macdonald.

Either at his law office (just off Bay Street), or at his home (just outside Forest Hill Village), or by phone, these Liberals have presented to the former finance minister every sound and convincing reason why he must run for the leadership of the Liberal Party — except the single reason which might actually convince him to run.

The Liberal emissaries, reports a source close to Macdonald, have told him he must run to stop former finance minister John Turner becoming party leader. As well, one after another caller has told Macdonald that without him as a candidate the leadership race would collapse into a no-contest.

No one, goes the inside word, yet has convinced Macdonald, nor even has tried to, that he must run because he alone can save Canada, or the economy, or the Liberal Party.

Reconsideration

Last week, immediately after Pierre Trudeau announced he would resign as Leader, Macdonald declared he would "reconsider" his determination expressed repeatedly and adamantly both in public and private, never to consider again going back into the political pressure from which he, and his family, escaped when he left the cabinet two years ago. Most Macdonald-watchers then took it for granted it was 90 per cent certain Macdonald meant "reconsider" in the way most politicians do when they use the word — that he was about to do what he always had said he never would do, but wanted a decent interval to lapse before doing it.

Macdonald, it turns out, meant "reconsider" in the way most people mean when they use the word: He would think again, but would not, necessarily, do anything more than that.

Rather than a 90 per cent likelihood Macdonald will be a candidate, a better guess would be about a 60-70 per cent prospect, report reliable sources. Most probably he still will be a candidate. But he may not be. All the jars of Royal Jelly sent to Macdonald haven't yet, it seems, made him hungry for the job — for his own sake, that is, rather than for that of the Liberal Party.

JEAN CHRETIEN

EUGENE WHELAN
. . . his own support

The possibility — it's no more than that — that Macdonald may not run after all is one change that seems to have taken place in the character of the Liberal leadership race even during its opening week. Another change, it's only tentative and indeed may be no more than intuitive, is that its become possible to accumulate evidence that more Liberals than most suppose — "I'm just uneasy," says an MP; "We're being rushed into this without thinking," says a middle-rank party official — are beginning to look for someone other than Turner or Macdonald.

As potential candidates, Turner and Macdonald, are so far in front that the rest of the field isn't even in sight. Former finance minister Jean Chretien may run, but for the hell of it rather than to win. Former agriculture minister Eugene Whelan is serious about his own candidacy, but only he is. Neither of the new western MPs, Lloyd Axworthy or Art Phillips, has made his mark, nor will have time to do so during the quick gallop to the March convention. Former Board of Economic Development Minister Bob Andras did make a mark during his 11 years as a minister, but only behind Ottawa's green baize doors.

Scratch off all those, and the Liberals are back where they started — to a contest between McMillan, Binch (Turner's corporate law firm) and McCarthy and McCarthy (Macdonald's). Personalities aside, the ideologies of Turner and of Macdonald — his days as an economic nationalist long are past — now are as alike as their law firms.

No successor

"In terms of successors, I never, perhaps wrongly, followed the precept that good administrators have that they should always prepare the succession," Trudeau said in a TV interview shortly before he announced he would resign. "I assumed that within the party, the process of militancy would bring forward people who would be prepared to carry on in the same direction that I believed in."

The direction for the Liberal Party that Trudeau said he believed in was "the radical centre." Instead, as the party begins its search for a leader for the '80s, it is closer to the dead centre. When you catch them away from the crowd, a surprising number of Liberals say they know this.

If you want to make a wild bet, make it a small one though, bet that before the leadership race is run it will turn into a threesome, or, if Macdonald doesn't run, that it won't become a no-contest for Turner. Don't ask me who'll emerge to challenge either the pair or Turner alone. Ask yourself instead who guessed that Joe Clark would win, or who guessed, a dozen years ago, that the Liberals would decide that the person they wanted to lead them toward the radical centre was Pierre Who?

Bands tell a story of age and travel

In the summer of 1925, on a small island in Lake Michigan, a young Caspian Tern was banded. In the fall of 1951, more than 26 years later, that same bird was shot in Ohio. Without that little aluminum band on the bird's leg, the story of its 26-year life span — a record for North American wild birds — could never have been written.

This story is always among my answers when the question of how long birds live comes up, but I seldom resurrect it until I've confused my questioner by posing a couple of questions of my own. Nor am I being contrary when I ask whether the question is "How long do birds live?" or "How long can birds live?" because the answers are different.

Band placed on Sparrow Hawk

The "can" question can be answered, in part, by what we know about captive birds, raised and maintained in the protected environment of a zoo. And a recent survey made of European records reveals some startling facts, the most startling being that there are instances of more than 40 kinds of birds living to 30 or better, and that, of these, six kinds lived more than 50 years — one, an Eagle Owl, to 58.

All were large raptors or parrots, birds with a reputation for longevity.

But birds in captivity tell only part of the story. Protected, as they are, from most of the natural events and afflictions that cut the lives of wild birds short, the ages for these captive birds do not reflect the normal life-span of the same species in the wild.

So we come to the "do" part of the question, "How long do birds live?" For answers to this question, we return to those little aluminum bands, one of which revealed the story of the 26-year-old Caspian Tern.

But before going deeper into what banding tells us about the ages of birds, remember, once again, that the figures which follow are records for long life — the averages for the same species are usually much less.

Since organized bird banding began late in the last century, one of its most popular results has been the information banding revealed about how long birds live. Unfortunately, banding can't always tell the complete story; sometimes birds are banded as young and die an untimely death — such as the Caspian Tern — and sometimes they are banded as adults of an unknown age. But, despite these shortcomings, a band on a bird's leg makes it a recognizable individual — an individual with a history.

So, what has banding revealed? Well, to start with, a surprising number of species of birds have survived more than 20 years in the wild. At the moment, a Herring Gull holds the record — nearly 32 years. Not far behind is a European Curlew at 31. There is also a European record for the Caspian Tern that matches our American record, 26 years.

Among the small birds, a starling — you might have guessed — holds the record, 20 years, and a European swallow checks in at nearly 16. In North America, a Red-winged Blackbird banded in New York and shot in North Carolina 14 years later leads the pack.

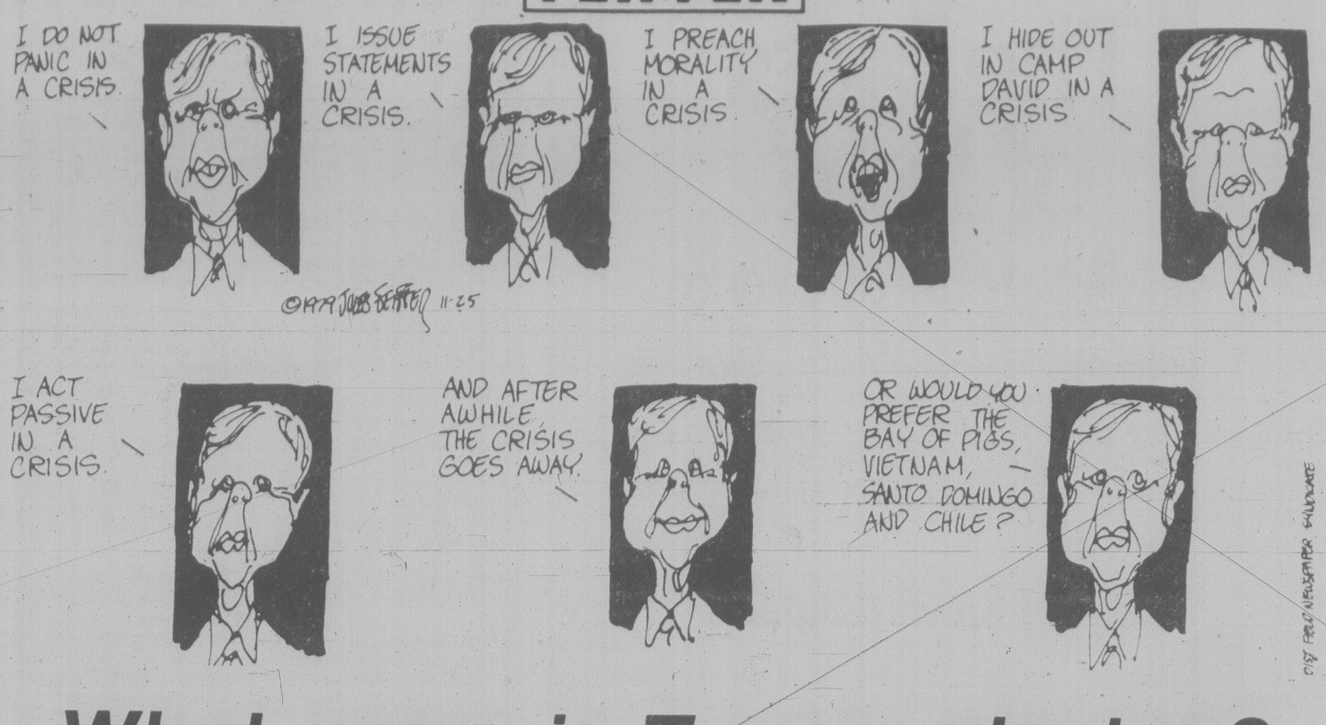
For the really small birds, again the Europeans hold the record, with a siskin that managed to survive life in the wild for 11 years.

But my favorite story about birds with long lives involves a common small sparrow of the prairies, a Clay-colored Sparrow. This sparrow entered my life on May 8, 1957, and left it five years later — to the day.

Again, it was a band that made the story possible because I banded this little fellow that first day. And in every one of the years between his arrival and disappearance he made at least one stop in my yard.

He was at least a year old when I banded him, and at least six when I last saw him. More importantly, in that time he survived at least 11 trips between southern Manitoba, where he summered, and northern Mexico, where he likely wintered — about 20,000 miles in all.

FEIFFER



What game is Turner playing?

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — "An image maker who set out to create the perfect natural candidate would invent John Turner. He's almost too good to be true, but it all checks out."

I wrote that in the old Globe Magazine almost 13 years ago, but it may still help to explain the ambivalent feelings about Turner held by so many people in politics and in the media.

He does indeed have an impressive background and potent personal links to several regions of Canada: "Raised in Ottawa and British Columbia, Canadian champion sprinter in 1947, Rhodes scholar from UBC. Studies in Oxford and Paris, B.A., M.A., Bachelor of Civil Law. Trial lawyer in Montreal until he entered Parliament." It still checks out.

To that we can now add experience in the Pearson and Trudeau cabinets, a respectable run for the Liberal leadership in 1968, a career recently in Toronto as a prosperous corporation lawyer.

At 50, he seems to have all the qualities which the Liberal party and the voters could desire in a leader. In style, experience and achievement, he appears far better equipped than Joe Clark — or for that matter, Pierre Trudeau — to be prime minister.

Turner is so perfect, in fact, that we begin to look for the flaws. It's a nasty touch of jealousy, probably. Why should he have it so good, be so successful, too obviously superior to most of us?

There must be some flaws on such a perfect image, we tell ourselves, and certainly it is easier now than it was 13 years go to find fault!

Turner has been tested by his years in office, and the popular verdict in the corridors of Ottawa is that he lacks political substance and conviction. He is said to be a careerist, pursuing power for its own sake and not because he has a mission to perform.

It's true that his career has not been associated with any great idea or issue. He came into politics as a reformer and is now thought to stand to the right of centre, but many Liberals have moved in that direction, including Pierre Trudeau.

His performance as a legislator has never matched his rhetoric of change, challenge and opportunity. But it's fair to remember that he was too junior in the Pearson cabinet to make much of a mark, and the Trudeau cabinet always acted as a collective in which individual ministers found it very hard to achieve a personal reputation.

. . . conviction lacking

The charge that Turner left the Trudeau cabinet in 1975 under false pretences is, I think, unfair. When he resigned as finance minister, the media were quick to cast him in the role of the champion of free enterprise and fiscal integrity who could no longer tolerate Trudeau's controls and extravagance.

That was always nonsense; in fact, there had been no serious disagreement over policy. But as far as I know, Turner never made the claim on his own behalf — although some of his aides and supporters may have made it for him, thinking to put the best face on a puzzling resignation.

Turner quit, in my view, because he was weary of government, tired of playing second or third fiddle to Trudeau, whom he respected but did not like or understand, and because his political instincts told him it was time to get out of a sinking government.

The fact that he is now the front runner for the leadership is a tribute to those instincts. Had he stayed as finance minister through the period of controls and resurgent inflation, the job would probably have destroyed his reputation as it has destroyed the reputations of so many bright young politicians. At the very least, he would have lost, with Trudeau, the confidence of the business community.

As it is, Turner now seems well placed to bring the Toronto business community back toward the Liberals when Joe Clark and the Conservatives falter.

He can claim also to be a Westerner, by education and by marriage — his wife is from Winnipeg, which is a great asset for a Liberal. On the other hand, although he has lived and worked in Montreal, he may be seen in Quebec as the man who deserted Trudeau in his hour of need.

Turner's principal problem, however, is to overcome the criticism that he stands for nothing. We know he is handsome, successful, experienced and politically astute. He has now to convince the party, the press and the country that he knows what he wants to do with all those talents.

As he said to me 13 years ago: "I enjoy the exercise of power. Ideas are useless without power to implement them. I enjoy the game up here (in Ottawa)."

What are his ideas? And what game does he wish to play?

Russell Baker

It was just another day in the British Secret Service, and it began, as so many days did, with an appointment at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty was surprised to find that her audience was with Q.

"I was expecting the chief of the Secret Service," she said.

"You behold him in myself, Ma'am," said Q.

"Indeed? Philip, who was well read in the literature, and most particularly in the works of Mr. Ian Fleming, told me to expect M, the crusty old sea-dog," said the Queen.

"M has been dead for seven years, Ma'am," said Q. "We suppressed the news under authority of the Official Secrets Act."

"And what of N?" asked the Queen. "What of O? What of P, the crusty old land dog?"

"All demoted," said Q. "N was discovered to be in the pay of Israeli intelligence. O was a double agent for the Korean CIA. And P, the crusty old land dog, was selling secrets to the United States Army Canine Corps."

"I suppose they were acting out of the usual high-principled obligation to their own integrity" said the Queen.

"Naturally," said Q. "Otherwise, we should have felt obliged to send notes home to their mothers."

"And you," said the Queen, "are Q, the crusty old air dog."

"Not air dog, Ma'am. Fair dog. The crusty old fair dog. I have won the blue ribbon five years running at the Bristol Fair for Secret Service pointers, having pointed more foreign intelligence agencies to British secrets than any other competitor."

The Queen showed a slight hint of exasperation. To show outright irritation would be going too far for a constitutional monarch. "Why do we have to point foreign spies to our secrets?" she asked Q. "Isn't it cheaper to let the newspapers publish them?"

"Out of the question, Ma'am. That would violate the Official Secrets Act. While it is expensive maintaining a large bureaucracy to get out the secrets, it keeps us within the spirit of the law."

"It certainly wouldn't if you bothered to consult my prosecutors about your colleagues," said the Queen.

"Prosecuting would be indiscreet, Ma'am," said Q. "We all wear the same old school tie, as well as the same old school gravy stain on it."

"Well, get on with it, Q," said the Queen. "Have you found out what secrets my art adviser passed to the KGB.?"

"Rather awkward, I'm afraid, Ma'am," said Q. "Moscow is now armed with information that Your Majesty has uttered disparaging remarks about the paintings of Winslow Homer, Giotto and Rembrandt. This can make a lot of mischief among our American, Italian and Dutch painting allies. Moreover, the Duke of Edinburgh's private observation that Picasso couldn't paint a horse fit for a Polish peasant to plow potatoes with can, if circulated by the KGB, damage us very badly among modernist painters throughout NATO, not to mention Poland."

The Queen did not offer an apologetic smile. "That's water over the dam, Q," she said. "You can't expect us to keep our lips buttoned day and night around here just because the Secret Service insists on stocking the Palace payroll with its disaffected spies."

"Quite so," murmured Q, "but Your Majesty must appreciate that the double agents we send you are all from the very best schools. Which brings me to the point of today's visit. To put it as delicately as possible, Ma'am, Prince Charles has been sounding off a bit undiplomatically over the dinner table lately."

"The Prince of Wales," said the Queen, "like all true gentlemen, never discusses politics at dinner."

"Not politics," said Q. "Word has passed to the KGB that he has refused, somewhat vociferously, to eat peas prepared for him in the American manner and, moreover, has sent them back to the kitchen uneaten."

"Yo have placed a Soviet spy in my kitchen?" asked the Queen.

"A man of extraordinary intelligence" said Q. "He took a first in eavesdropping at Cambridge. We don't want the Americans to know that the Prince of Wales isn't eating his peas, especially since they are prepared in the American style, do we Ma'am?"

"I shall make the Prince eat his peas on pain of being denied his tea time scone," said the Queen.

"We are grateful for your cooperation in these difficult times," said Q, backing toward the exit.

"Tell me, Q," said the Queen, "are you also an agent for the KGB.?"

"I should prefer not to answer that," said Q, "as I have reason to believe Your Majesty is in the pay of the British government." The Queen rose and opened her mouth as if to deny the allegation but thought better of it and sat down as he departed.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION.

NOT USING IT COULD COST YOUR BUSINESS A BUNDLE.

With all the other problems of operating a small business, it's sometimes easy to put off or overlook the responsibility of ensuring that your business is protected by the Workers' Compensation Board.

And that could be one of the most expensive omissions you ever made.

Because, if one of your workers is involved in an on-the-job accident, you would be liable for the entire cost of his injuries and rehabilitation—a cost that could be many times that of compensation coverage.

Don't risk it. A simple phone call or visit to any W.C.B. office will give you all the information you need about compulsory or elective coverage. You'll find that, for a small cost, you can buy a big piece of "peace of mind".

EMPLOYEES: if you're not sure about your coverage, discuss this ad with your employer or call the Assessment Department in your nearest W.C.B. office.

Farmers favor back-to-work law

VERNON (CP) — Farm workers should be legislated back to work if labor disputes in the agriculture industry threaten the public interest, delegates to B.C. Federation of Agriculture said in a resolution Thursday.

The closing session of the federation's convention was told essential services legislation should be developed to cover farm workers because of the growing drive to unionize employees and because of labor problems in related industries.

The provincial government has used such legislation previously to order ferry and school employees back to their jobs during labor disputes.

A strike by workers at a cold storage plant this fall resulted in some farmers letting crops rot in the fields. The strike was settled this week.

The federation also formed an energy committee which said it will ask the royal commission inquiry into uranium mining for a 10-year moratorium on uranium development on agricultural land until effective safety standards are developed.

The committee also said the federation will oppose development of the Site C dam on the Peace River because large tracts of valuable land would be flooded.

Delegates said additional help must be hired to lobby for the industry in Victoria because many provincial residents have a folksy, rustic attitude toward farmers.

Don Knoer of Smithers, the new president, told the convention he hopes the provincial government will treat agriculture as a major portfolio.

The federation also voted to ask the provincial government to contribute $2 for every $1 given for research by consumer groups. Delegates said direct communication between producers and researchers must be fostered in areas producers feel need the greatest attention.

Meanwhile, Hewitt said he agrees with the federation's stand that restrictive zoning of land in the agricultural land reserve must be stopped.

The federation voted Wednesday to ask the provincial government to take necessary measures to prohibit interference by regional and municipal governments with agriculture zoning.

On another issue, Hewitt said he doesn't support any move to change the appeal procedure for the agricultural land reserve.

Rafe Mair, former provincial environment minister, had recommended that cabinet should not deal with appeals, but Hewitt rejected that idea.

The issue arose this fall when a cabinet committee overturned a B.C. Land Commission ruling prohibiting the removal of 626 acres in the Fraser Valley community of Langley.

Objections puzzle Hewitt

Jim Hewitt said Thursday he has no idea why farmers have objected to his re-appointment as minister of agriculture.

Some delegates at the B.C. Federation of Agriculture in Vernon this week were quoted as saying that Hewitt lacks power in the cabinet and his appointment means agriculture will continue to get short-changed by the Socreds.

But Hewitt, just back from the convention, said his reception was excellent and his speech got a very warm response.

In his speech, Hewitt reviewed agricultural growth in the 1970s, promised exciting times and important decisions for the 1980s but gave no details.

Hewitt said he had friendly discussions in Vernon with three former presidents of the federation, Robert Reynolds, Charles Bernhardt and Ralph Barichello.

However, all three were quoted as objecting to Hewitt's re-appointment.

"That's just a news item," Hewitt said.

"I understand there was some concern from delegates that it was an unfair article."

A SPECIAL CHRISTMAS CONTEST

FOR OUR YOUNG READERS

Have you ever thought of designing your own Christmas card to send to relatives and friends?

They will appreciate your efforts. Probably your card will be stored away after the festive season and be a source of pleasant memories for years to come.

Besides that, you'll be able to participate in our new SPECIAL CHRISTMAS CONTEST with the winners receiving cash awards and island-wide recognition.

Just design your own Christmas card capturing the festive spirit. Your design can be in black and white or full color using either paints, crayons or magic markers.

There will be three categories: for 6 to 8 year olds, 9 to 11 year olds and 12 to 15.

The first prize in each category will be FIFTY DOLLARS. The first runner-up in each category will win $25 to put towards Christmas shopping and the second runner-up will win $15.

In addition, each winning drawing will appear in the edition published before Christmas day. One will be selected and will appear in color in the paper. The others will be published in black and white.

So get out your paints, crayons, magic markers, pencils or charcoal, along with a little imagination and send your entries on a white piece of paper no larger than 8½" by 11" in size to the Christmas Contest. Victoria Press Limited, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, British Columbia, V8W 3C4.

Don't forget to include your name, address, age and phone number and be sure to sign your name on the bottom right-hand corner of your drawing or painting.

Designs must be original and not traced. Winners will be asked to supply proof of age. Decision of the judges final.

Entries must reach Victoria Press by Tuesday, December 11, 1979 to allow time for judging. Winners will be announced in the weekend issue of December 15-16.

INCLUDE THIS COUPON WITH YOUR ENTRY

Abandoned Victoria rakes CBC

By AL FORREST

Private broadcasters lambasted the CBC in day-long hearings at The Empress Thursday over the corporation's decision to abandon its Victoria TV production building.

The hearings, conducted by three members of the Canadian Radio-Television and Communications Commission, were called to hear suggestions on what to do with the Victoria channel 10 TV licence which had been awarded to the CBC but abandoned by them when they ran out of funds to complete the Victoria project.

As it turned out, most of the briefs by rival broadcasters attacked the CBC for abandoning Victoria.

They said the CBC was treating Victorians like second-class citizens and the capital city deserved better.

Then, in a succession of separate statements, they played their ace: Why, they asked, is the CBC spending $19 million for a modern-TV production centre in Regina while, at the same time, the corporation says it can't afford the $4.5 million to complete the Victoria project?

Victoria should have an equal or higher priority than Regina, said B.C. Association of Broadcasters president Walter Gray and BCTV spokesman Donald Smith. The $19 million spent on the Regina building will not add one program or improve one TV signal in Saskatchewan.

Meanwhile, the Victoria project would provide jobs, improve TV reception (for those without cable) and add local programs.

But the CBC neatly trumped the ace. Len Lauk of Vancouver, the corporation's regional manager, said the two situations were not comparable.

The Regina project has been in the planning stage since 1969 and would provide one modern building to replace two outdated structures, one of which is in Moose Jaw and the other in the Saskatchewan capital.

But all that aside, Lauk said, if the CBC had to choose between Regina and Victoria he would not hesitate to support the Saskatchewan project.

"I say that as a British Columbian. Regina is very much a higher priority and ought to be."

He said the Regina building will provide programming for the whole of Saskatchewan while the Victoria centre would have only added a few local programs to the CBC schedule. Most of the programs would have been rebroadcast from the CBC network.

Lauk said he was making the statement with regret.

"I'm going to find it very difficult to live in this town for awhile."

Rosalie Gower, chairman of the hearings, suggested in a humorous aside that Lauk might want to "scuttle back to the Lower Mainland" where he lives.

But Lauk's statement seemed to have support where it counted.

One of the three commission members, Harry Bower, is from Regina and during the hearings he made a point of asking the CBC about progress with the Regina project, although it was not within the terms of reference of the hearings.

Bower's obsession with the Regina project was evident all through the day.

The hearings did not resolve anything because the CRTC is not ready to accept formal applications for licences. The commission members were merely compiling background information.

The event did provide broadcasters with a chance to bring forward their own special interests. The CTV network asked the CBC to end its affiliation with CHEK-TV as soon as possible, by September at the latest, so the Victoria station can become a full CTV member. It is now jointly affiliated with CTV and the CBC.

The CBC said it would not be able to guarantee an end to the affiliation until the spring of 1981.

A group of B.C. businessmen, who four months ago formed the Mosaic Broadcasting Corporation, asked the CRTC to consider turning the channel 10 licence over to its group, which organizes ethnic TV programs.

And Daryl Duke of CKVU said his station is actively interested in channel 10. Its Vancouver signal is on a UHF signal only and available only on cable.

Duke said CKVU, if awarded channel 10, might use it for its main Vancouver signal and use its UHF channel for Victoria.

Duke said in an interview later that he has been through the vacant CBC building at Blanshard and Kings and found it "interesting."

But CKVU would wait until a licence is granted before making a formal offer to buy.

"The two things would have to be done together. We wouldn't need the CBC's building but we might be interested at the right price."

Pair bails out just in time

The pilot and navigator of a Comox-based CF-101 Voodoo jet fighter were rescued Thursday after bailing out seconds before it crashed in the Pacific about 170 kilometers southwest of Astoria, Ore.

A Rescue Centre spokesman here said pilot Lieut. Anthony Dobson, 24, of Hamilton and navigator Capt. David Lewis Taylor, 35, of Edmonton were picked up by helicopter at 2:07 p.m. suffering mild hypothermia.

An emergency flare and two liferafts had been sighted by the Coast Guard helicopter and surface vessels were sent to the area.

Lt.-Cmdr. Dick Pepper, information officer for the Pacific Coast Command, said the men were in the water on liferafts in their ejector seats for about 90 minutes before being rescued.

They were taken to Astoria and then flown to McCord Air Force base near Tacoma.

A CFB investigation team from Bagotville, Que., arrived at Comox later Thursday to begin an inquiry.

'Mainland satellite'

Victoria is entitled to a full CBC television service operating in the capital city, CJVI radio president John Ansell said Thursday.

"For too many years the Greater Victoria community has been treated as a second class citizen by the CBC," he said.

Ansell was speaking at a public hearing of the Canadian Radio-television and Communications Commission at The Empress.

The CRTC is looking for an alternative use for the CBC's channel 10 licence in Victoria.

The CBC has surrendered the licence and hopes to sell its empty building at Blanshard and Kings.

Ansell said the CBC has an obligation to provide full national TV service and should have a Victoria presence.

"As the capital city of the province of B.C., we reject the idea of being treated as a satellite of the Lower Mainland of B.C.," he said.

Ansell noted that the CBC plans to use one of the available FM radio stations to begin a new radio service for Victoria as a substitute for local TV programming.

Ansell said he feels the two issues are unrelated.

On the radio application, he said, his station has been concerned that the CBC may also apply for additional FM licences, leaving few or none for private broadcasters.

(CBC vice president Ron Fraser later told the hearing Ansell was right about CBC's long-term plan to apply for a total of three FM stations but is applying for only one at this time. The other two, one a regular FM station and the other, a French language FM station, would be applied for at some future date).

In view of the few hours of radio programming planned locally by the CBC outlet, CJVI is prepared to apply for a full FM licence for Victoria in February, after a government freeze on applications expires, Ansell said.

The commission also heard from John Coleman of Toronto, spokesman for the CTV network, who expressed exasperation at the delay in having CHEK-TV break away from the CBC.

At present the Victoria station acts for both the CBC and CTV.

Freelance TV producer Brian Lightburn told the commission slick American shows get a larger viewing audience than Canadian programs because little is spent on local shows.

Typically, he said, stations meet the requirement for Canadian content by paying a local citizen $25 for a half hour show on cooking or gardening.

Ferry group bids for new leaders

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group has launched a membership drive calling for a leadership convention for the 2,700-member B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union.

The group, which calls itself the Committee for a Special Convention, is circulating a petition among workers. Under the union's constitution, if 30 per cent of the membership sign the petition the executive must call a leadership convention.

The group was formed after a deep split occurred during the recent round of negotiations with the B.C. Ferry Corp. which saw a number of wildcat walkouts before a settlement was reached.

The committee said Thursday it has widespread support, including several of the 22-member executive.

Before the judge

A 25-year-old man was sentenced in provincial court Thursday to two years less a day for six break-ins which netted nearly $30,000 in stolen property.

Daniel Charles O'Sullivan, no fixed address, pleaded guilty Nov. 5 to break-ins at 114 Beach and 311 Dennison in Oak Bay.

Appearing for sentence before Judge Fred Green, O'Sullivan pleaded guilty to four more break-ins, at 3206 Albion, 2870 Sea View, and 1761 and 1768 Glastonbury in Saanich on Nov. 1 and 2.

In one of the Saanich break-ins to which O'Sullivan pleaded guilty, Laughton said, the home of lawyer Terrence O'Grady was entered and $10,000 to $20,000 in jewelry taken.

A woman leaving the Beach Drive home O'Sullivan broke into spotted him walking aimlessly on Sylvan Lane at about 10:50 a.m. as she was leaving to go shopping, Laughton said. She returned in time to hear someone running down the basement stairs. She went outside in time to see O'Sullivan running to a car, and took the licence number. The car belonged to a car rental firm, court was told.

O'Sullivan has a lengthy criminal history dating back to March 9, 1972. His last conviction was on Nov. 3, 1977, when he was given a two-year prison term and two years probation for breaking and entering. He was to be on probation until Nov. 2, 1981, Laughton said.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie, in his submission for a provincial (less than two years) prison sentence rather than a federal penitentiary term, said the only evidence gained was from full confessions made by O'Sullivan.

He said O'Sullivan cooperated to the point of assisting police in locating the stolen articles but that an accomplice involved probably got to the caches first resulting in none of the items being recovered.

MacKenzie described his client as coming from a tragic background and having a serious drug dependency as young as 13.

Since O'Sullivan's release from jail in March, MacKenzie said, he had maintained a full-time job in a barber shop.

"I'm having a very difficult time convincing myself I shouldn't sentence him to a term in the penitentiary," Green admitted, calling O'Sullivan's criminal record atrocious.

The judge said the only justifiction for the sentence was his acceptance of the pre-sentence report assessment that O'Sullivan was changing.

A 21-year-old charged with attempted armed robbery and using a weapon during a holdup attempt elected trial by judge without jury.

Jeffrey William Whitney-Griffiths, 3989 Metchosin, was also charged with wearing a mask during a robbery attempt.

A preliminary hearing date of April 23 was set for Whitney-Griffiths, who was charged in connection with an incident Nov. 21 at the Happy Valley Store, 3431 Happy Valley Road.

Two inmates at the Jordan River prison camp who took off Oct. 14 to register their frustration with the corrections branch were given 21-day jail sentences.

Kenneth Millman, 18, of 3013 Richmond, and David Brian Morberg, 24, of 547 Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large.

Millman was serving a one-year term imposed July 7 this year for breaking and entering and Morberg was serving the same term for the same offence imposed May 7 this year.

Defence lawyer John Hills said Millman was upset over a promised work-release pass to attend Camosun College which never came through while Morberg was frustrated over a promised day-pass to look for work and visit his family.

Laughton told the court they went missing between midnight and 1:20 a.m. Oct. 14 when bed checks were made. They were picked up walking along Sooke Road at 10:15 the same morning.

Fined $400 for driving with blood-alcohol readings of .29 and .28 was 23-year-old Ken Sandy Frank, 1341 Hillside.

Six months for punch-up

Gregory Robert Twyman, 19, was sentenced by Judge Frederick Melvin in county court Thursday to six months in jail for assault causing bodily harm to Gary Clarke, 15, in an incident in Market Square March 10.

Judge Melvin noted it was Twyman's third offence for assault causing bodily harm and that he was on probation when he punched Clarke three times.

Clarke said Twyman, whom he didn't know, just came up to him and said "you're the one that knocked my garbage cans over" and began punching him.

B.C. architects grapple with advertising policy

By NORMAN GIDNEY

With T-shirts and a film festival and Pepper the clown, B.C.'s architects are trying to juice up their professional image to let the public know that they do more than design mansions for plutocrats.

As 150 members of the profession gather in Victoria today for the 60th anniversary meeting of the Architectural Institute of British Columbia, architects are revewing the past and having to grapple with some modern problems.

The principal one is advertising, which has churned up the legal fraternity in recent years. It has also split B.C. architects.

AIBC president Ronald Bain of Vancouver and most of the institute's executive council favor unrestricted personal advertising by architects, but a minority of the AIBC's directors and some members are opposed.

"It's the first time this has been done," Bain says. "We are doing it because we face competition in some areas from fraudulent design services."

So-called architects with "no training whatsoever so far as the architectural profession is concerned" are competing with professionals for business, Bain adds.

Victoria architect John Wade, a former president of the AIBC, puts the other side of the argument on advertising: "I think older architects like myself think it's dreadful."

"I think the architect's best advertising is his work," says Wade's partner, Terry Williams, chairman of the AIBC's Vancouver Island chapter, who represents a younger generation of architects. (Wade-Williams' most recent project was the acclaimed University Centre at UVic.)

But "it's harder for a man starting out to open doors" says Wade, than when he set up practice here in 1946 with the firm Birley, Wade, Stockdill.

"I'm not sure personal advertising is the answer."

Much else has changed in the past 40 years. Wade recalls the fuss when he designed a cafeteria in 1939 for the Koerners' mill in Vancouver. For retaining a trained architect to plan such a mundane facility "all the other sawmill operators thought they were crazy."

But design is important. Wade worked briefly for American architect Richard Neutra and he used to boast his designs were so harmonious that none of his clients ever divorced after moving into a Neutra home.

"There's no question you create certain moods. You have to get very close to your clients.

"It's intriguing. It's psychological. You do relate to certain materials."

The old popular conception of an architect as "somebody rich people utilized when they wanted to build a status symbol" has been erased over the years with increasing public awareness, says Wade.

Buildings have become more complex and materials have proliferated. Wade's Oak Bay house, for example, was designed by Sam Maclure and the plans fill only five small sheets of paper. Maclure would have to do much more detailed work today to duplicate the house.

The construction business has changed over the years and architects have had to become more involved in organizing the actual building of a project. In Maclure's era, an architect could employ a master builder who would take care of the details which now occupy much of an architect's time.

Williams says the approval process has become more complicated, and it takes longer to get a project through all the municipal public hearings and permit application procedures.

B.C. architects want to involve the public to an even greater degree during their annual meeting here. They've assembled a series of films on architecture for showing at the Newcombe Auditorium tonight and Saturday. Three films and an illustrated lecture by UVic professor Allan Gowans on the postmodernist movement in architecture — back to decoration and filigree — will be featured at the Newcombe at 7 tonight. Admission is $2.

Saturday is aimed at children, with Pepper the clown and kids' films providing entertainment in the Newcombe starting at 10 a.m. Admission for this is free.

Aged care staff hike urged

A coroner's jury in Victoria has recommended that the provincial government consider increasing minimum staff levels for community care homes for the elderly.

The recommendation came at the conclusion of an inquest into the death of 90-year-old John Pascoe in a fall from a third-floor window at the James Bay Lodge, 336 Simcoe Nov. 7.

In a separate but related development, Health Minister Raif Mair said Wednesday his ministry will review staffing standards for long-term care homes.

The five-man jury also recommended that the patient's records should precede or accompany him when admitted to such homes.

The jury further urged the Capital Region District, which administers the provincial long-term care program here, to consider locating assessors and social workers in one office. At present the two work out of separate offices.

The jury found Pascoe suffered multiple internal injuries in the fall but could not point to a specific injury as cause of death.

In his charge to the jury, coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Pascoe's death had raised certain questions about the care that should be given elderly persons in long-term care homes.

He said there were only two nurse's aides on shift the night of Pascoe's death and felt that the aides in making their rounds should have been more attentive in their checks of windows in the patients' rooms.

He noted the province has the power to change the regulations relating to minimum staff standards.

The requirements say that in homes with more than 25 residents there must be at least one qualified person up and about at nights and in homes with more than 75 persons there must be at least two such persons.

The long-term care program limits the size of the community care facilities to 150 but James Bay Lodge, which has a capacity of 214 residents, is exempt because it was operating before the limitation came into effect two years ago.

Testimony given at the inquest, which opened Nov. 13 and ran through five night sessions, revealed the lodge was not provided with Pacsoe's medical and assessment records when he was admitted.

'A shotgun appeared in my face'

A 25-year-old commercial fisherman told B.C. Supreme Court Thursday that Thomas Young Lackey pulled a shotgun on him and then Lackey and his car disappeared.

"I got out, he got out and all of a sudden a shotgun appeared in my face," said Mark Graff.

Lackey said "give me the keys."

What did you say, asked Crown counsel Robert Mulligan.

"Sure."

Graff said his car and Lackey disappeared and he went into the Pizza Pieman at Town and Country Shopping Centre and asked for police to be called.

After they arrived, he heard that a policeman had been shot and the police left, eventually returning to accompany him to the police station.

Graff identified his car as one which crashed at McKenzie Avenue and Cedar Hill Crossroad and identified Lackey as the man he was with on the evening of Nov. 7, 1978.

Lackey is accused of nine offences in Matsqui Nov. 3, 1978, and in Saanich Nov. 8, 1978, among them armed robbery of Graff's car, attempted murder of Sgt. William Hillcoat of Saanich police and attempted murder of Matsqui penitentiary guard Alexander Smith, 55.

Graff, the prosecution's 22nd witness, said he had possibly 15 to 20 rum and cokes, some doubles, at the Colony lounge starting mid-afternoon Nov. 7, 1978, with Lackey, a man he didn't know before.

They went to the Ingraham lounge in his car around 10 p.m. and Lackey insisted on borrowing his car. Eventually he agreed, with Lackey giving him a wallet which had $400 or $500 in it.

After it fell on the floor while Lackey was gone, and one of the waitresses asked if it was his, Graff said he realized it was someone else's wallet who was known to a waitress.

Lackey returned, the keys and wallet were exchanged, and Graff said he decided to leave because Lackey had a wallet which did not belong to him.

But, he said, when he got to his car Lackey just got in uninvited.

Graff drove to the Pizza Pieman where the shotgun was pulled.

Graff also said he had no suitcases in his trunk.

Gordon Thorne, 21, was jogging on McKenzie near Cedar Hill when he came upon the car Graff had testified was his. It had skidded across McKenzie and was on the curb with two wheels off and the trunk open.

A man was standing behind the driver's door looking at what had happened and said he was all right and had missed the corner. Thorne saw no sign of injury or intoxication and left after two or three minutes.

He jogged to Quadra where a police car pulled up and he heard shots or loud noises coming from the accident scene. He heard a single shot, then three or four more, and then couldn't hear anymore as the police car sped off.

Sgt. Frank Briers of Saanich police produced a black leather wallet which contained, among other things, two $100 bills and identification in the name of James Nesbitt.

He received the wallet from another policeman. There was a hole or rip or tear in the wallet which didn't go right through. He did not see any gunshot fragments or slug in the wallet.

Sgt. Richard Bateman of the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver, a firearms expert, identified a number of exhibits sent to him by Saanich police.

He concluded that two expended cartridge cases were fired by a sawn-off shotgun seized by Saanich police at the accident scene and that a live round taken from the gun was at one time in contact with the bolt of the gun.

The expended cartridges and the live one appeared to have come from the same source as a box of shotgun shells found in a suitcase in the car's trunk. He said there were no differences except some were fired and some not.

The bolt-operated shotgun had a magazine capacity of two rounds and a third round could be carried in the chamber.

He opened up one cartridge and found 177 pellets.

(Earlier medical evidence said there were between 33 and 36 pellets in Sgt. Hillcoat).

Bateman test-fired the shotgun and said at 17 feet the shot pattern was nine inches in diameter and at 54 feet it was 30 by 32 inches.

After examining Hillcoat's gunbelt, from which he recovered five pellets, Bateman said he could not form an opinion of the range at which the shot was fired because there were not enough pellets to determine the pattern.

He concluded that a slug from the underside of a cowboy boot heel and a slug from the crashed car's door probably came from one of three revolvers he examined.

The trial was to continue today.

They'll gas up for Timmy fund

Seven Imperial Oil outlets in Greater Victoria will join 101 other participating dealers in B.C. this weekend in boosting the "Timmy" fund.

Each station will donate three cents per gallon of gas sold during the 21 hours of Timmy's Christmas Telethon for Crippled Children which starts at 8 p.m. Saturday on all CBC stations.

The gas stations in Victoria include Burnside Esso, 300 West Burnside, McKenzie Esso, 4001 Quadra, Colwood Self Serve, 1680 Old Island Highway, Hillside and Douglas Self Serve, 2735 Hillside, Servacar Centre, 1700 Hillside, Mayfair Esso, 3201 Douglas, and Sidney Self Serve on Beacon.

Double murder suspected

SURREY (CP) — Police in Surrey and Delta have combined forces to investigate what they suspect might be a double murder.

The body of a man who had been stabbed washed ashore Oct. 31 at Crescent Beach in Surrey. Ten days later, Delta police recovered the body of a man at Roberts Bank. Both locations are south of Vancouver.

Police have linked the cases after discovering the dead men had similar clothes — the same brand of jeans, jackets and belts.

A police spokesman said Thursday the two could have been murdered off the coast or their bodies might have been dumped into the Fraser River.

B.C. Tel giving out confidential files

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Tel often provides confidential client records to individuals before a subpoena is issued, a company official said Thursday, a policy critics called dangerous.

It is also in violation of the company's stated policy, which spokesman Keith Mathews said defines all private records as confidential information that is privileged except when subpoenaed.

"It's confidential information — the industry is in complete concert on this — by policy of the telephone utilities," he said. "It's not law."

But Bob McLuckie, company security officer, said information is sometimes released to individuals — not the courts — before a subpoena is issued.

"The only way I can explain it is that given the assurance there is a subpoena on the way we may have released the information ahead of time," he said. "You have to understand we deal with hundreds of subpoenas."

He could not explain how earlier this year B.C. Ferry Corp. counsel received the private billing information of fired employee Capt. Gerry Stalling although there is no record of a subpoena for that information on file.

B.C. Tel has also released subpoenaed information to individual lawyers instead of to the court or hearing which requested it, he said, a practice criticized by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association.

"It is my understanding that the subpoena directs the company to provide information to a court," association spokesman Reg Robson said Thursday. "It is not information to be bandied about and it ought not be shuffled around just because some lawyer wants it."

A subpoena directs individuals or company representatives to appear at a trial or hearing with specific information described in the written request.

Airport user-pay idea rapped

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser said Thursday he objects to the idea of private enterprise operating Canada's airports with the users paying the costs.

The federal government is studying such a proposal.

Fraser said today he is very skeptical about the idea and added:

"I wonder whether Ottawa is going to come along with a cheque book as well."

He said the province probably will pass on its objections to the federal government.

Degrading body searches - report

DELTA (CP) — Police held some persons in cells illegally overnight and subjected others to unnecessary, "humiliating and degrading" body searches, says a report detailing public complaints against the Delta police force.

The incidents were the reason verbal reprimands have been given to 24 of the 92 officers on the police force in this community south of Vancouver, New Westminster Police Chief Ken Brown said Thursday.

The report says a B.C. Police Commission investigating team probed 60 incidents.

Brown has been acting as Delta chief following the resignations of former chief Mervyn Smith and deputy Terry Brennan.

Brown said some people arrested on drinking-and-driving charges in Delta were subjected to body searches, others arrested for disturbing the peace had been locked up overnight and released without charges the next day.

"Can you imagine the effect it has on a businessman being ordered to take his clothes off and spread his cheeks so that he could be examined? It's humiliating and degrading.

"This practice is used when police arrest anyone suspected of dealing with drugs, but not impaired drivers."

Awards to 10 city athletes

Ten Victoria area residents are among 58 young British Columbians to receive a total of $59,250 in provincial athletic awards.

Receiving $1,000 Nancy Greene Scholarships are Heather Jane Alexander, 4374 Torrington Place; Nancy Phyllis Canning, 3340 Wickheim Road; Jeffmond W. Thom, 4424 Torrington Road; Timothy Walton, 1444 Harrop Road; and Gregory Wiltjer, 1255 Fairfield Road.

Community participation, athletic ability and scholastic achievement are considered in making the Nancy Greene awards, which go to high school graduates entering a B.C. university or college.

British Columbia Athletic Awards, also worth $1,000. go to Ian Hyde-Lay of Shawnigan Lake and to Cheryl and Janice Mason, 1268 Garkil Road; Gordon Campbell, 3199 Matilda Drive and Mary Cavin, 2905 Oriole Street.

Along with the awards Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe announced today government sport development co-ordinators will in future report directly to their respective sport governing bodies instead of to the government.

The co-ordinstor program will also be expanded.

Co-ordinators organize coaching programs and athlete development programs.

Minnie Mtn. appeal planned

Cadboro Bay Residents Association will appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada a recent ruling by B.C. Court of Appeals allowing Minnie Mountain housing development to continue.

Association president Dick Boss said a hearing will be held in Ottawa but the date has not yet been decided.

Boss said association members are contributing generously to continue the court case against developers Broadmead Farms Ltd.

The latest appeal for donations is $5,000 to cover court costs. The organization has already raised $7,700 from its members.

They are fighting a appeal court ruling last month overturning an earlier B.C. Supreme Court judgement that quashed a land use bylaw between Saanich and Broadmead for a 72-acre mixed residential subdivision on Minnie Mountain at Ten Mile Point.

The B.C. Supreme Court ruled last December there was a conflict of interest on the part of Saanich Ald. David Paterson, who voted in favor of the bylaw.

The B.C. Court of Appeals overturned the ruling, saying conflict of interest on the part of an alderman wasn't sufficient cause to quash the bylaw.

The association is making plans to negotiate with the developers to buy the property and turn it into a park.

Cruises continue

The P and O Line's Princess Ships will make their regular runs in the 1980 Alaskan summer cruise season.

The London-based company recently announced it was discontinuing Vancouver calls by its liner Oriana because of the heavy increase in oil fuel prices.

But Alaska cruises by the Vancouver-based Island Princess and Sun Princess and the San Francisco-based Pacific Princess — television's Love Boat — will continue.

Mishap victim improving

A 77-year-old woman, one of two women in collision with a car on Oak Bay Avenue Wednesday, is making steady improvement in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Jessie Morry of 126-2075 Milton is in fair condition.

The other woman, Lillian Lepard, 81, of 123-2075 Milton died Thursday, about 20 hours after the accident.

Oak Bay police identified the driver of the car was Margaret Grossman, 83, of 1061 St. Patrick.

Abortion rate alarms Mair

Health Minister Rafe Mair said Thursday he is asking ministry officials to investigate whether illegal abortions are being performed in B.C. hospitals.

Mair said he finds alarming a Statistics Canada report that B.C. led the country in the number of therapeutic abortions in 1978 — 33.6 for every 100 live births. The national average was 17.4.

Mair said he would like to know whether the high rate indicates hospitals granting abortions are being less stringent than required by law.

If the investigation gives grounds for suspicion that hospitals are breaking the law then the matter will be passed along to the attorney-general, Mair said.

50 more beds at Jubilee may soon ease shortage

The chronic shortage of acute-care beds in the Capital Regional District could be eased by February with the addition of 50 more long-term care beds, the Royal Jubilee Hospital board was told Thursday.

The beds will be located on the fifth floor of the Eric Martin Institute, currently used by severely-retarded children.

The hospital has been transferring the children to other facilities in the regional district.

The board recently decided to use the floor for long-term care without waiting for health ministry approval because of the urgent need to provide more acute-care beds.

On Thursday, however, the board was informed it had provincial approval to go ahead.

Acting executive director John Clark said the beds could be ready as early as Feb. 1, depending on how fast equipment could be ordered and delivered.

Peter Bunn, an Oak Bay alderman, said his council will put no obstacles in the way of Oak Bay Lodge — formerly Oak Bay Manor — which hopes to expand from 150 to 300 long-term beds, further reducing the shortfall.

Clark told the board the pattern of hospital admissions is changing because of the bed shortage.

He said the proportion of patients admitted for elective surgery has dropped from 17.6 per cent in 1978 to 15.7 per cent this year.

He said the proportion of urgent cases has risen one per cent, from 15.7 to 16.8 per cent.

The proportion of emergency admissions has risen nearly two per cent, from 45.5 to 47.4 per cent.

These figures, Clark said, indicate that patients are not getting care in early stages of disease and their conditions deteriorating until they finally must be admitted as emergencies.

To illustrate the point, the board reviewed a letter from Dr. Charles Simpson, who outlined the case of a Chemainus resident who was referred to Victoria because of intermittent weakness of his hand.

Simpson diagnosed the condition as symptomatic of a light stroke, putting the patient on the very urgent list for surgery.

After nearly a week, the man was still not in hospital so Simpson booked him for a test which required hospitalization.

Before the test could be done, however, the man suffered a major stroke.

Dr. Elinor Powell, the hospital's chief of medical staff, summarized: "Instead of having a correctable lesion corrected and walking out of the hospital, he has had a stroke and joins the ranks of long-term care patients."

Gorge talks 'fruitless'

Problems causing discontent among employees at Gorge Road Hospital are complex and likely won't be resolved without recourse to the Labor Relations Board, a union spokesman said today.

Bill Muir, Hospital Employees Union staff representative in Victoria, said a series of meetings with hospital management and the Health Labor Relations Association has been fruitless.

Another meeting is scheduled for Monday but HLRA, bargaining agency for provincial hospitals, won't be at the meeting, Muir said.

HLRA wasn't represented at the last meeting either, and Muir said this is hindering any progress toward a solution.

The problems at Gorge Road Hospital were spotlighted Nov. 16 when more than 100 HEU members walked off the job for about eight hours.

They blamed poor management-employee relations and unsatisfactory working conditions as the reasons for the walkout.

Muir confirmed that morale at the hospital is "very, very low."

He said there is an acute staffing problem, people are being overworked and some workers have complained of being harassed on the job.

Muir said the employees are giving the union an honest chance to resolve the issues and he is going to report back to them as soon as possible.

U.S. destroyer at Esquimalt

The destroyer USS Orleck is in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt today for a rest and recreation visit until Sunday.

Based in Tacoma as part of the Destroyer Squadron 37, she is manned by naval reserves.

The Canadian destroyer HNCS Restigouche will be the host ship for the visitors.

Lancaster film goes to Canada

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — Location filming of Louis Malle's romantic thriller, Atlantic City, U.S.A. starring Burt Lancaster was to wind up Friday after nearly four weeks on the New Jersey shore.

A spokeswoman for ICC-International Cinema Corp. of Canada and Selta Films of France said the filming will move to Canadian studios for four more weeks.

The film — which also features Susan Sarandon, Robert Joy and Hollis Laren — was expected to be released next summer.

tlantic City, U.S.A., Malle's first movie since Pretty Baby, tells the story of an aging, small time hood played by Lancaster living on the fringes of the resorts underworld who becomes involved in making a buck in a town where everything that has been illegal is suddenly legal.

Estrada confirms his secret marriage

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Erik Estrada confirmed Thursday he secretly married Joyce Miller last weekend, a report he has been denying for the past four days.

Estrada, the handsome 30-year-old star of television's CHiPs series, said he had denied reports he married in Las Vegas, because "we wanted privacy — but now we're going public so people will leave us alone."

The actor, who had a close brush with death in August while filming a segment of the television show, said he met Miss Miller in Hawaii while recovering from a crushed chest and other injuries suffered in the accident.

"I first saw Joyce," Estrada said, "when her son pointed me out and said, 'There's Erik Estrada,' and then Joyce said, 'Who's Erik Estrada?'"

It was the second marriage for Mrs. Estrada, 39, whose son, Larry, is 14-years-old. Estrada said the wedding took place in federal court chambers in Las Vegas Nov. 25.

Estrada hired a private jet to fly him and his bride to and from the desert community for the ceremony. He said they returned to the San Fernando Valley.

Estrada said he and Miss Miller had known each other only two months before deciding to marry. They will live at his home.

Estrada said the motorcycle accident was "the best thing that ever happened to me. If I hadn't gone to Hawaii to recuperate I never would have met my beautiful wife."

'Monumental' greed of B.C. fishermen under fire of the annual coastal salmon catch is taken by the commercial fishing industry and the remaining three per cent by sports fishermen and Indian food fishermen.

Meanwhile, in Halifax a world marketing study by government and industry has foud that Canada exported more fish in 1978 than any other country and could double its export potential by 1985.

The study, released Thursday, showed Canada exported more than $1-billion worth of fish products in 1978 and could increase the value to between $2 billion and $2.7 billion by 1985.

The study was conducted by the federal fisheries and trade and commerce departments in co-operation with the fishing industry. The findings are under review by fishing industry and government officials.

Gary Vernon, assistant deputy federal fisheries minister, said establishment of the 200-nauticle-mile management zone in 1977 was a key contributer to Canada's rise in world fish exporting markets. Japan remains the world's largest producer of fish but dropped to fourth place in terms of catch value.

Cod exports are expected to show the largest increase in the next five years, reaching a possible total allowable catch limit of 680,000 metric tons by 1985, Vernon said.

The study indicates there will a shortfall in haddock, halibut and turbot catches primarily due to heavy demand by the American market. However, it is expected there will be a surplus of pollock, flatfish, ocean perch and hake as the U.S. increases its domestic supplies.

Salmon will continue to be a premium species while market demand for herring and shellfish remains good, the study found.

Vernon said that while the future for Canada's fishery looks good, the right moves will have to be made before the picture becomes a reality.

He said some countries such as Japan are "running out of room" with their domestic markets, while others, such as African fish-producing countries, are expanding their fishing industries.

Mansion blaze kills fireman

MONTREAL (UPC) — A 28-year-old firemen died and a second was injured today when flames gutted a vacant 25-room mansion in the wealthy suburb of Westmount.

Platoon Chief Robert Nicol identified the dead fireman as Eric Hart, the father of two young sons who had been a member of the Westmount Fire Department for six years.

A second fireman, Lt. Patrick Geraghty, 41, was reported in good condition in hospital where he was being treated for smoke inhalation and a possible wrist fracture.

Bond sale reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians have so far bought $4.84 billion of the 1979-80 Canada Savings Bonds series, Finance Minister John Crosbie announced Thursday.

The figure is short of last year's purchases which totalled $7.2 billion by Nov. 30.

After allowance for redemptions of past series since the beginning of October, net purchases of new bonds to date are $832 million, a sharp drop from last year's net of $2.88 billion.

Farewell salute for the musician-maker as he leaves Naden School of Music

Milner . . . music stirred his soul

Grand finale for the music man

By PAT DUFOUR

They played Auld Lang Syne in a last salute, Lt.-Col. Tom Milner waved goodbye and the armed forces' top music man signed off on a 35-year career.

It all happened Tuesday, the final day of service for Milner, commandant of the Canadian Forces School of Music and supervisor of music for the armed forces.

As he went through the ranks of musicians at CFB Esquimalt, Milner left behind a lot of admirers.

Said one of his staff: "He works his butt off and never looks for recognition."

Hard work has been a way of life for Milner since he left school at 14 to work 60 hours a week for 10 cents an hour.

His love affair with music began when he was 16 and he played his first drum in a sea cadet band in Toronto.

In his first 20 years of regular service, which he began as an ordinary seaman, Milner served in a variety of ships, ranging from minesweepers to aircraft carriers, both as a sailor and a musician.

But it was music that stirred his soul the most.

Courses at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Acadia University, Maritime Academy of Music, the Royal Canadian Navy School of Music and the Royal Marine School of Music helped him up the long ladder from the lower ranks to lieutenant-colonel.

Shortly before his final parade and farewell, Milner mused on his life in the armed forces.

"Every day is a highlight," he said. "I try to make every day important.

"When you play an instrument, it's your life. It's a big ego trip to conduct, then you want to arrange and compose. But being responsible for the teaching of all the armed forces musicians of Canada, that's really something."

As policy adviser, Milner played an important role in the lives of 3,315 musicians in 116 bands made up of regular and reserve personnel, as well as volunteers from the regular force doubling as musicians.

He said quietly: "It's a long way up and a short way down."

TOWN TALK

They're terribly, terribly discreet but they're ads, all right, those genteel little boxes in the yellow page listings for lawyers in the new phone books.

The ads — it's the first time they've appeared — are low-key and tend to simply list the areas of preferred practice for the firm or the individual lawyer involved like wills, real estate, property law, criminal law and the like.

Press secretary Hall Leiren has abandoned his proposal that Premier Bill Bennett hold weekly availability sessions with the legislative press gallery.

Lieren proposed the idea soon after he was appointed to the job in September. It is being abandoned before ever being tried.

Gallery people say the decision fits into the premier's current policy on questions from the press: smile a lot and say zilch.

The premier's schedule keeps changing all the time, Lieren said, and he would always be explaining why he was not available for an availability session.

So you don't like those protruding manhole covers on the newly-paved Lansdowne — and you wonder how any road crew could get things so out of whack?

Well, motorists are going to have to put up with the pesky bumps until next summer, says Saanich municipal engineer Cliff Warren.

Paving crews ran out of good weather before they could finish laying the asphalt strips, leaving the manholes exposed about 1½ inches, Warren explained.

He said they pose no danger because the asphalt has been sloped up flush with the top of the manhole.

But drivers are still swerving to miss them.

UVic phys ed prof Martin Collis may be heading for the top of the charts.

He's come out with a new album that's aimed specifically at armchair athletes, jaded joggers and frustrated footballers.

It's irreverent, funny and is called Fit to Sing.

UVic says the record is a compendium of songs written and sung by Collis in which he pokes fun at just about everything, ranging from what can happen to an equipment-crazy fitness fanatic to backsliding joggers.

The over-all theme of the album: Develop a lifestyle that's in touch with the needs of the body and enjoy doing it.

Sounds like it might also solve a few Christmas gift problems.

A young Victoria couple will be the stars of a stage wedding at McPherson Playhouse Jan. 20, says radio station CKDA.

Linda Perron, a 22 year-old medical clerk and Dave Lukinuk, 25, an auto upholsterer, will be married as part of a promotional stunt staged by the station.

The traditional white wedding, reception and two weeks honeymoon in Hawaii will be paid for by station sponsors.

Front rows of the McPherson will be reserved for guests of the couple, who became engaged last January.

But what'll they do for an encore?

Don and Norma Harris don't have the Devil sharing their bedroom anymore.

Around Halloween Mrs. Harris saw what she was convinced was an image of the Devil in the headboard of the bed they had slept in for 16 years.

Two weeks after a Times story, they sold the bed.

Mrs. Harris says they were phoned by United Press International and got calls from as far away as Kansas City regarding the beasty in the headboard.

Mrs. Harris wouldn't say what they got for the bed. But she's sleeping better.

The Racquet Club of Victoria has had its share of troubles during the past few months but fears were the club was really going to be left in the dark this weekend.

The club has scheduled a major squash tournament, but found out at the last minute that B.C. Hydro was planning to shut off power to that area of Gordon Head for several hours during the weekend while it did some necessary work.

Since the squash courts have no windows, it would have put paid to the tournament.

It took the intervention of education minister and Oak Bay Socred MLA Brian Smith before Hydro agreed that the Racquet Club could remain lit even as the work was carried on.

Pity poor Mom, her home cooking is starting to take a back seat to eating out in B.C.

Restaurants, the word is from the tourist ministry, recorded their best ever month in September with sales reached $36 million — a 15.5-per-cent increase over last September.

Eaters-out munched their way through $32 million worth of menu items, the first time the industry surpassed the $30 million mark in a single month.

Juvenile centre critics have never been there

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Chief Jack Gregory and police board member Janet Baird — outspoken critics of the security at the Juvenile Detention Centre — have never visited the Pembroke Street facility, the Times has learned.

And the director of the centre has challenged them to take a tour of the facilities before they make any more snap judgments of how it is operated.

Del Phillips disagreed with comments made by Gregory and board members Mayor Mike Young and Baird at a board meeting Wednesday.

The facility was called little more than a "community foster tank" and "juvenile motel."

"When you put a person in an institution and take away his freedom from him, how can you call that a motel?" Phillips asked.

He said to his knowledge Gregory, Young and Baird have never visited the detention home.

In an interview Gregory, who has been chief in Victoria for 15 years, admitted he has never set foot inside the home.

Baird also said she hadn't ever toured the home and added "perhaps that is a mistake."

Young said he last visited the detention home about a year ago, but hadn't been through the place since the recent quarter million dollar renovations were completed.

Phillips acknowledged there have been security problems since the centre re-opened two weeks ago, but the problems have centred around new fire escape doors approved by the fire marshal.

He said seven inmates broke out through a fire door during the first week.

So far this week there have been two AWOLs. Two 16-year-old boys, recently transferred from Willingdon in Burnaby, went missing Thursday night while on an outing to the Crystal Pool.

PHILLIPS
. . . challenge

There were about a dozen walk-aways from the minimum security Metchosin Camp which was used over the summer while renovations were being done to the centre on Pembroke Street.

And two inmates ran off while at a restaurant used during the transition back to the centre.

Phillips said new fire doors and locks have been ordered and until they arrive staff has positioned vehicles against the outside of the doors, a measure which Phillips said was "very unsatisfactory, but under the circumstances necessary."

Phillips felt Gregory was being an alarmist when he pointed out at the board meeting a juvenile sentenced for attempted murder has escaped twice.

The escapes occurred more than a year ago.

Phillips also took issue with Gregory's inference juveniles were being kept in the centre for longer than 30 days without written permission from the family court committee.

He said the committee is always consulted.

Young, Baird and Gregory all felt the centre is unable to contain juveniles.

"It's either the policy laid down or insufficient staff," Gregory said. "The building was improperly designed to detain juveniles."

But Phillips denied this. Once the new fire doors are installed the centre will be secure, he said.

"I really don't know what they expect," he said. "Shouldn't kids deserve a humane environment?

"I can sympathize with the police frustration in chasing down kids who escape," he said. "But I think there is a need for everyone to be more aware of the dynamics of this place.

"What we are going through now is a period of testing . . . and we are responding to that."

Workman electrocuted

Sidney coroner John Davidge is expected to order an inquest into the death Thursday of a 56-year-old ministry of transport electrician at Victoria Airport.

Sidney RCMP said Max Alphonse Guilbault of 305-3255 Cook in Saanich was electrocuted while working in the power house adjacent to Victoria Flying School across the runway from the control tower.

Police said Guilbault was working with two other MOT electricians, Bill Howie, 33, and Norm Turner, 56, at the time.

Howie told police Guilbault had crawled inside the main junction box to change a light bulb.

He said he heard arcing and thought it may have been the bulb burning out but then noticed smoke coming out and saw the back of Guilbault's shirt was on fire.

He ran to turn off the main switch but it was too late.

Guilbault was pronounced dead on arrival at Saanich Peninsula Hospital shortly after 2 p.m. about a half hour after the mishap.

Police said Guilbault had a history of heart problems and there is speculation he may have had an attack inside the box and inadvertently fallen against a live wire.

Yarrows awarded $3M job

Yarrows shipyard here has won a $3 million-plus contract to repair the freighter Star Opal.

The Liberian-registered freighter, which reentered Esquimalt Graving Dock today, ran on a rock shelf near Laredo Channel, 94 miles south of Kitimat Nov. 6.

Yarrows general manager Don Challinor said today every steel worker in Greater Victoria will be needed for the job, which is expected to take until late February.

He said there are one million pounds of steel in the ship's bottom that have to be replaced and every tank in the double bottom has been holed, either in the centre or on the port side.

He said the steel is torn, gouged and twisted out of shape and, at one point, rock is still embedded in the hull.

Blencoe tries again on Carr

Ald. Robin Blencoe has asked Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe for an early meeting to discuss other ways for the province to buy a $1.3 million collection of Emily Carr paintings now for sale at a Vancouver art gallery.

"I remain convinced that it would be of great and lasting benefit to B.C. for this collection to remain intact as a unit and to remain within this province, preferably in Victoria the birthplace of Emily Carr," he said in a letter sent today to the minister.

The alderman said he was disappointed that Wolfe had rejected his proposal to use provincial lottery funds under Wolfe's jurisdiction to buy the Fannin Hall collection of 27 paintings, some of them rare works done when Emily Carr studied in France before the First World War.

"He didn't even look at it," said Blencoe.

He asked Wolfe for a meeting soon to discuss other ways of purchasing the paintings. He had no specific suggestions himself, however.

"If lottery funds are not appropriate for this purchase perhaps you or other officials of your ministry would be able to offer ideas as to other ways they can be acquired," his letter said.

In an interview, Blencoe said if there was more time "we could get a community fund going — but we have no time." The government ought to have spent a little more time at least examining the lottery fund idea, he added.

"Some people have asked me: 'Does he know who Emily Carr is'?"

Others have suggested that in these difficult times it would be frivolous for the government to spend that much money on a collection of art, but Blencoe said: "I don't think we can afford to ignore our past, our heritage even in hard times."

Not all the favorites had it their own way in the opening draws of the first VI 90/New Dominion Hotel $25,800 cash bonspiel at Playland Curling Club Thursday.

Far from it, and the pattern is just as likely to continue the rest of the weekend.

For example, who would have believed at the start that the likes of two-time world junior champion and all-time cash bonspiel king Paul Gowsell of Calgary, nine-time Brier rep Bernie Sparkes of Vancouver and world junior champion Don Barcome of Grand Forks, North Dakota, would find themselves in "C" event this morning with only one life left in the triple-knockout competition?

But they were double losers and that's curling.

Naturally, there had to be some surprises to go with the shockers.

And Wayne Saxbee of Abbotsford got most of the attention as he spotted Gowsell a 4-0 lead in the first end and then knocked him off 9-6. Later Saxbee came from behind a 3-1 deficit to defeat Bill Morris of Juan de Fuca 6-5 in an extra end.

For Morris, it was his second extra ender. He defeated Calgary's Don Molesky 8-7 earlier.

Others to gain two victories and remain unbeaten were Trev Fisher of New Westminster, 1977 B.C. champion Roy Vinthers of Vancouver, Barry McPhee of Kamloops, Frank Morissette of Calgary, 1978 Canadian champion Ed Lukowich of Medicine Hat, Barry Harvey of Playland and George Fink of Calgary.

Gowsell, who never did get his game under control, suffered his second loss in just six ends, 7-1, to Molesky. Molesky scored three on the first end that proved to be enough as he continually had Gowsell in difficulty after that.

Sparkes took his lumps, first from Tony Eberts of Kamloops 10-5, and then from his former world champion skip Ron Northcott of Calgary 7-3.

Barcome, who had his van almost totalled in a traffic accident, Wednesday, went down to Brent Giles of Vancouver 8-5 and Gary Sigurdson of Surrey 8-1.

If both Gowsell and Sparkes win their next games they will meet head on. At any rate, one will be out of the tournament by evening.

Vinthers probably had the easiest road of the "A" event survivors. With Glenn Hilson throwing third rocks, Vinthers took care of Northcott 7-4 in his first game and Eberts 8-3 in the second.

Fisher defeated Victoria's Bruce Coulter 7-4 and then needed an extra end to get by Roger Hovland of Calgary 9-8.

Harvey, the only Victoria rink to win twice, was sharp as he won a tight 5-4 decision from Sigurdson, who has Leo Hebert and Al Graham, with Vinthers last year, as third and second, and then followed with a relatively easy 6-3 triumph over Giles.

Lukowich, with his Brier championship rink intact, had his hands full before disposing of Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni 5-3. He then defeated Wes Aman of Irving, Alberta, 8-4 in his second game. Carlisle later lost his second game to Glen Pierce of Burnaby, 9-7, in a replay of last year's Pacific Coast Curling Association final.

Morissette needed a miss from Victoria's Brad Clarke on last rock to steal two and win his opener 8-7, but was mostly in control as he defeated Saskatchewan champion Rick Folk 10-6 in his second game.

Fink, after defeating fellow Calgarian Bill Clark 6-3 in his opener, had to be at his very best to come from behind a 5-1 deficit after four ends to turn back Bob Gallaugher of Playland 7-6.

McPhee, who got the final invitation to the spiel after Doug Harrison of Winnipeg opted out, showed he was quite willing to accept any and all favors.

He first defeated Lyle Davis of Lethbridge 12-2 and then went to an extra end before disposing of Dave Simpson of Vernon 7-6.

Earlier Simpson had defeated Steve Skillings of Victoria 5-4, stealing the winning point on the 10th when Skillings missed his final shot. Skillings won his second game from Davis 8-7.

Clarke, who had a lost that toughie to Morissette earlier, won his second game from Sweden's Johan Dracke 8-5, when Dracke missed a last-rock takeout that would have sent the match into an extra end. It was Dracke's second defeat as he bowed to Folk 8-5 in his opener.

The tournament continues with three draws today, four on Saturday and the championship round Sunday.

Tonight's late draw is a 8 p.m. with Saturday's draw times 9:30 a.m., 1, 4:30 and 8 p.m. and Sunday's at 8:30 a.m., 12 noon and 3:30 p.m.

Two rinks qualify out of "A", two out of "B" and four out of "C".

Flyers ogling record

By The Canadian Press

The constant reminders about Philadelphia's unbeaten streak make it impossible for the Flyers to ignore the fact that it has been 19 games and more than seven weeks since last they lost.

"I've never mentioned the streak, but we all know about it," said coach Pat Quinn, answering what is becoming a familiar line of questions. "It would be a feather in our cap to get it."

"It" is a National Hockey League record for consecutive games without defeat, 28, set by Montreal Canadiens in 1977-78. Right now, the Flyers are nine games away.

They took one step closer Thursday night, rallying for a 6-4 triumph over the plucky Minnesota North Stars — their 16th victory, with three ties, since a 9-2 loss to the Flames in Atlanta on Oct. 13. Ken Linseman, Reggie Leach and Bill Barber scored third-period goals for Philadelphia, which trailed 3-1 before taking charge.

Elsewhere Thursday, Montreal Canadiens were hard-pressed to hold off St. Louis Blues 3-2 and Buffalo Sabres needed a late flukey effort from Rick Martin to edge New York Rangers 2-1.

"We ran into come-from-behind situations in the playoffs last spring," said Quinn, speaking mostly of the Flyers' five-game quarter-final loss to the Rangers. "What we did then was to open up our offence, but that resulted in big scores against us. Now, we don't get frustrated when we get behind."

"We're a much better team than we were last year," added centre Bobby Clarke.

North Stars Coach Glen Sonmor noticed.

"They just took the game away from us for 18 minutes in the second period," he said, speaking of the session in which Philadelphia outshot Minnesota 19-8 and got goals from Paul Holmgren and Rick MacLeish. "Our guys won't be a really good team until they do what the Flyers did tonight — play every shift for the whole game. You don't win without consistent players."

Philadelphia's are proving more consistent with each game.

St. Louis coach Barclay Plager was disappointed with the outcome of the game in Montreal where the winning goal by Pierre Mondou resulted from a pileup in front of the Blues' goal.

"It's a shame they had to win the game that way," said Plager. "Both Mondou and Danny Geoffrion were in the crease and didn't even try to get out," said Plager.

"I didn't get hit," noted the Montreal rearguard. "I went to turn and my foot got caught in a crack in the ice, I guess. I felt the knee twist, and so I went down instead of letting it get hurt more."

Left winger Martin received credit for the goal at 9:50 of the third period that carried Buffalo to its seventh victory in eight games while extending to five games the Rangers' winless streak.

Linemate Gil Perreault's pass was going wide of the net until it hit Martin's shin, bounced off New York defenceman Dave Maloney, and skittered past rookie Rangers netminder Steve Baker to break a 1-1 tie.

Internal strife oiled way for Royals' slide

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Internal bickering last season led to the fall of Kansas City Royals from first place in the American League West, general manager Joe Burke said in a copyright interview published today by the Kansas City Times.

"I felt that from the day we left spring training until we got to August that we had too many people that didn't care whether we won or not," Burke said.

"I'm not looking to dig up any can of worms or anything, but we did so many bad things last year, and there were so many people that really weren't giving their best effort. We had so darn much friction on our ball club."

Burke and several players interviewed said the blame did not lie solely with manager Whitey Herzog, who was fired at the end of the season, but he came in for his share of criticism. Burke refused earlier to give his reasons for firing Herzog — who had led the Royals to three straight division titles before the team dropped to second this year — but he shed some light on his reasoning.

"It got to a point late in the season with the veteran pitchers moaning about the younger pitchers. It was the Pateks (Fred), the Pattins (Marty), even the Busbys (Steve), who were mad at Whitey every day because they weren't pitching or weren't playing," Burke said in reference to strained relations between Herzog and some players.

"For the first time in six years, we just had people sitting around. It seemed like, to me, they were almost pulling against each other. There just wasn't a happy feeling."

Burke said Herzog's demand two years ago that he trade first baseman John Mayberry created bad feelings toward Herzog on the part of some black players. Mayberry went to Toronto.

"Some of them — Amos (Otis) particularly — just felt that Whitey was on them all the time and that they just never had a fair chance," Burke said. "And yet, publicly, Whitey would tell everybody he and Amos were the closest of friends. They were never friends from day one."

Otis charged in a separate interview that Herzog was trying to ruin his career by holding him out of the lineup against certain hard-throwing right-handed pitchers or talking about moving him from centre field.

Herzog declined to respond to Burke's remarks. But the former manager said Otis admitted that he was scared of certain pitchers after being beaned in 1976, and asked for a rest against some of them.

Cavaliers trip Knicks

By The Associated Press

Guard Randy Smith barely beat the final buzzer with a layup basket that gave Cleveland Cavaliers a 117-115 National Basketball Association victory over New York Knicks Tuesday night.

In the only other scheduled NBA game Thursday, Scott Wedman scored 22 points and Bill Robinzine added 20 as Kansas City Kings defeated Detroit Pistons 105-95.

Watkins Glen doomed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rain during three of the last four Grand Prix auto races at Watkins Glen and false rumors of a murder may have encouraged the move to drop the central New York village from the Formula One calendar.

The Rochester Democrats and Chronicle reported Wednesday that the head of the agency which controls the world's Grand Prix auto racing complained of poor conditions and "hooliganism."

"Watkins Glen does not give the image any more that Grand Prix racing needs," Yvon Leon, secretary-general of the Federation Internationale du Sport Automobile, said in a telephone interview from Paris.

But the FISA observer at the October race — Bob Hanna of Toronto — denied that there were any serious problems.

And the newspaper reported that Mario Andretti, the only U.S. driver on the tour, would attend a Dec. 10 FISA executive committee meeting in Paris and would urge the group to keep Watkins Glen.

Two weeks ago, the 12-member Formula One Commission, a FISA subcommittee, recommended dropping the date. While admitting the action was not final, Leon said, "such recommendations are seldom overturned."

"They complained the track was too dumpy," Leon said of the meeting. "They said the press facilities were poor. They complained about the mud and the poor access to the circuit.

"But I think the biggest thing they were concerned with was image."

Borg tops McEnroe

Times News Services

Bjorn Borg of Sweden survived a shaky start and went on to defeat John McEnroe of the United States 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 Thursday night to capture the Masters tennis tournament championship.

The 23-year-old Borg confirmed his position as the top player in the world in scoring his fourth victory in seven matches against the younger American. He pocketed $50,000 in finishing first in the eight-player competition at the Indoor Sports Palace.

McEnroe, second in the world ratings, earned $30,000.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina gained third place and won $20,000, downing Italy's Davis Cup star Adriano Panatta, 6-4, 6-4.

Panatta finished fourth and won $10,000.

In Melbourne, Billie Jean King overcame the generation gap to defeat fellow American Pam Shriver 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 and gain a quarter-final berth in a $100,000 women's tennis tournament.

King, favored to win the tournament after top seed Evonne Goolagong of Australia withdrew with the flu, admitted to feeling very tired after she battled against a player 19 years her junior.

"She went to the net a lot and kept pushing me," said King, who turned 36 last week. "She didn't miss one overhead."

And, in Johannesburg, seventh-seeded Terry Moor of the United States eliminated Brazil's No. 1 player Carlos Kirmayr 6-1, 3-6, 8-6 to move into the quarter-finals of the $175,000 South African Open tennis tournament.

Bourne back with Cougars

There'll be a long-missing face in the lineup when Victoria Cougars tackle Portland Winter Hawks in a Western Hockey League game Saturday at Memorial Arena.

Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Dave Bourne, an 18-year-old centre from Red Deer, will make his debut for Cats in the first game of a three-game trial.

Bourne played the pre-season games with Cougars but suffered a severe charleyhorse Sept. 15 in Parksville and hasn't seen any league action.

He returned home last month to rest his injured leg and returned earlier this week.

"We'll use Dave on Saturday, Sunday in New Westminster and here again next Thursday against Billings, then make a decision," said Cougar coach Jack Shupe.

Cougars are also extending a helping hand in keeping with the Christmas season.

In co-operation with the Salvation Army on a hamper drive, all children 12 years of age or under bringing two cans of food to the arena will be admitted free to the Dec. 6 game against Billings.

Meanwhile, in league action Thursday, Saskatoon Blades skated to an easy 8-5 victory over Brandon Wheat Kings in Brandon while Medicine Hat Tigers downed visiting Great Falls Americans, 8-2.

Thirteen players shared the scoring in Brandon as the Wheat Kings outshot Saskatoon 47-46.

In Medicine Hat, Tigers held the Americans to only 23 shots while firing 43 at the Great Falls net.

Giants shortstop has fingers severed

HOUSTON (AP) — Roger Metzger, shortstop for San Francisco Giants, severed parts of four fingers on his right hand Thursday with a power saw while building a storage cabinet, officials of the National League baseball team and a family friend confirmed.

The tips of the four fingers on his right hand were cut off."

Doctors refused to speculate about how the injury would affect Metzger's baseball career.

"But they indicated there was better than a 50 per cent chance he could swing a bat and grip a ball," Potter said.

Wind, cold hamper sport salmon fishing

Fishing success has tapered right off in all but a few areas around Vancouver Island as wind and cold temperatures serve to discourage a majority of salmon fishermen from venturing out.

Most of the exceptions are found around the southern end of the Island.

Sooke waters have yielded chinooks to eight pounds off Secretary Island and the Sooke Bluffs. Best success was noted on deeply-trolled strip or hootchies.

Limits of chinooks to 10 pounds are showing near Bedford Island in Becher Bay. Hootchies trolled at the 100-foot depth are producing most of the top catches.

Pedder Bay fishermen trolling with hootchies or strip are landing chinooks to eight pounds off the kelp bed and some limits have been boated.

Steve McMillan landed the heaviest catch reported this week at Oak Bay. His 21-pounder was taken Monday off The Flats. Most of the catches in the Oak Bay area have been landed on strip or hootchies at about 100 feet in depth.

Sidney fishermen are finding slim pickings but a few chinooks to 12 pounds were landed Saturday between James Island and Saanichton Spit.

Deep Cove waters are slow but a few jacks to five pounds have been caught along the Bamberton shoreline trolling hootchies at depths between 100 and 150 feet.

Finlayson Arm is yielding some good catches of chinooks to 12 pounds on drift-fishing gear. The top spot has been right in front of Goldstream Island.

Further up-Island, blue and gold Squirts have been pulling in a few small chinooks in Sansum Narrows.

Other fair catches of chinooks have been taken in Rainy Bay at the mouth of Alberni Inlet as well as in Comox Bay, Union Bay and between Denman and Hornby islands.

Cold weather has nearly wiped out trout fishing but steelheaders are starting to connect with a few early fish in the San Juan, Nanaimo, Sproat, Stamp and Campbell rivers.

NIBBLES: Latest word for skiiers from Mt. Washington, the newest area on the Island near Courtenay, is that they are aiming for an opening date of Dec. 7.

Peter Gibson, the area's director of skiing, says workers are still in the process of putting the finishing touches on the day lodge.

There is now 57 cm. of snow at the lodge site and approximately 100 cm. at the top of the mountain and Peter says they need one more fall of snow to give them enough to pack.

"We're opening soon . . . the sooner the better," he explained.

Meanwhile, both Forbidden Plateau and Mt. Arrowmith expect to commence operations around the middle of December.

BOB GRIESE
. . . leads Miami comeback

Griese to Csonka

MIAMI (AP) — Griese handing off to Csonka, just like old times — winning times, championship times for Miami Dolphins.

Bob Griese, regaining the quarterback job he had lost after 13 seasons, and fullback Larry Csonka, continuing his amazing comeback, combined in the second half Thursday night to rally Miami to a 39-24 National Football League victory over New England Patriots.

The 9-5 Dolphins moved closer to their first American Conference East title since 1974 — Csonka's last year before joining the World Football League.

"It felt like old times," Griese said, "the linemen opening the holes, Zonk in there, me standing back and giving him the ball. It was very reminiscent of the championship teams."

Miami coach Don Shula benched Griese last Sunday for the first time ever, but Griese came in and threw two touchdown passes to lead a 28-24 victory at Baltimore after starter Don Strock was knocked out by a tackler. Thursday night, Strock couldn't find his receivers, and at the half, the Dolphins trailed 17-13.

"At halftime, we felt the whole season rode on the second half. I made the decision to give Bob a chance to win the game," Shula said.

"He and No.39 (Csonka) were fantastic," Shula said.

After the second-half kickoff, Griese moved the Dolphins 78 yards on nine plays, capping the drive with a 38-yard scoring pass to Nat Moore. Then, as he did in the Super Bowl years of the early '70s, Griese used his precise passes sparingly, content to give the ball to Csonka on inexorable, time-consuming drives.

He hit eight of 10 passes for 101 yards, while Csonka ground out 88 yards and three one-yard touchdown plunges.

A Patriots' loss to the Jets at New York on Dec. 9 or a Dolphins victory here over the Jets on Dec. 15 will clinch the title for them.

Csonka's performance lifted his 1979 rushing total to 783 yards, eightyards better than what he managed over the last two full seasons with the Giants.

During the game, Csonka became the sixth player in NFL history to accumulate 8,000 yards rushing in his career. He, like Griese, seemed more interested in the brightened post-season prospects.

Martin escapes with a warning

NEW YORK (AP) — Removed from limbo by commissioner Bowie Kuhn's decision not to fine or suspend him, Billy Martin emerges today as a manager in waiting, available for a baseball franchise that might need some instant zing.

"I think the availability of Billy Martin will be too much to pass up," said Martin's lawyer, Judge Ed Sapir. "No clubs have talked to him because they were waiting for the commissioner to act. But now, things can start cracking. My guess is that he'll be back managing next season."

Martin was fired by New York Yankees last month after a hotel lobby altercation with a marshmallow salesman in Bloomington, Minn. At that time, Kuhn launched an investigation into the affair and could have fined or suspended Martin. He decided to do neither, but warned the manager that any repetition of trouble would bring "stern disciplinary action." Sapir said he was delighted with Kuhn's decision and said it vindicated Martin.

The commissioner's decision said in part:

"While I recognize the possibility of certain provocations in the Bloomington incident, and while you explained your motivations and actions in prior matters of this type, I think you will agree that the cumulative effect of these incidents tends to indicate you have not taken every reasonable step to avoid a fight.

"You assured me at our meeting, however, that in the future, and notwithstanding possible provocation, you will take every measure to ensure that this type of brawling, which places baseball and you personally in such an unfavorable light, will not happen again.

"Because I believe your intent to be sincere, and taking into consideration that you have been relieved of your duties as Yankee manager, I am taking no action against you other than to warn you that any repetition of this type of behavior on your part will result in my exercising stern diciplinary action."

In another action, Kuhn turned over $251 to St. Mary's Indian Mission, notifying the charity that the sum represented a contribution from Montreal Expos pitcher Bill Lee.

Kuhn had fined Lee $250 last April after the pitcher had spoken about using marijuana. Lee remitted the $250 plus $1 extra to the commissioner's office, saying he wanted it turned over to the Eskimo mission, his favorite charity.

Later, Lee filed a grievance over the fine. A hearing is scheduled.

T-Birds get Boot

VANCOUVER — Dale Turkington and Andrew Bibby combined for 15 points as University of B.C. Thunderbirds captured The Boot rugby trophy with a 29-9 win over Victoria's Vikings on Thursday.

UBC led the annual non-conference competition 7-6 at the half and dominated the second half through superior fitness and running.

Pat Trelawny booted three penalty kicks to account for all the Victoria scoring at Thunderbird Stadium.

UBC also got tries from Dan Halliday, John Olesen and Henry Edmonds, while Graham Taylor converted the only try scored away from the corner.

Tennis meeting set back a week

Annual general meeting of the Vancouver Island Tennis Association has been postponed until Sunday, Dec. 9, it has been announced by president Ted Smyth.

Meeting will be held at Henderson Park Pavilion at 2 p.m. All member clubs are asked to send representatives.

Longpre busiest Trio

Joe Longpre turned in an outstanding job of goaltending Thursday night to help Oak Bay Trios trip Juan de Fuca Gulls 7-6 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Oak Bay Recreation Centre.

Longpre made a total of 52 saves and Trios came up with five power-play goals en route to the victory.

Doug Baird set the pace for Trios, who trailed 3-1 after the first period but tied the count 5-5 by the end of the second frame. Singles were added by John Brown, Paul Hughes, Ron Pearce and Lane Crockett.

Guy Moran fired three goals for Gulls and Rick Milligan, Russ Anderson and Ian Fraser added singles.

Mike Spitiri blocked 36 shots on the Juan de Fuca goal.

Weins scores 29 to spark Trilecs

Trilec Seniors outgunned Victoria Athletics 50-29 in the first half Thursday and then held on to record a 100-83 victory in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Central Junior High School.

Ken Weins set the pace for Seniors with 29 points as all but one player hit for double figures. Bruce Lubinich added 19 points, Harb Sanghara added 18, Bruce English hit for 13 and Pete Cavin connected for 12.

Tom Holmes was the top gun for Athletics with 24 points, Rick Connolly added 14 and Mark Anderson chipped in 11.

Sabres drop Dave Schultz

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Buffalo Sabres have assigned winger Dave Schultz to their American Hockey League affiliate at Rochester, N.Y.

The Sabres obtained Schultz from Pittsburgh Penguins during the 1978-79 National Hockey League season. He had previously played with Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings, setting several penalty records while with the Flyers.

Rumors killed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Putting to rest rumors he was about to switch jobs, Florida State coach Bobby Bowden has signed a five-year contract worth more than $500,000 to stay on as head of the school's football program.

King, Bull capture Times tenpin awards

Steadily ascending games helped Maureen King and Bob Bull, who both compete at Mayfair Lanes, claim the tenpin awards during the eighth week in the 17th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Maureen nailed down women's laurels with an impressive 175-192-231 — 598 series in the Ladies Classic League while Bob collected men's honors with a 163-214-266 — 643 series in the Allstars League.

The winning series also qualified Maureen and Bob for the season-end Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs in their respective divisions.

Free agents answer: Rapp

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions will attempt to improve the quality of their import players by scouring the free agent market in the U.S., head coach Vic Rapp of the Canadian Football League team said Thursday.

Rapp said his coaching staff has investigated about 1,000 free-agent imports since the Lions were eliminated from the CFL playoffs earlier this month. The list has been narrowed to about 75 possibilities.

"It's the most extensive job we've ever done in the area of free agents," Rapp told a news conference called to announce his signing of a new two-year contract. "In fact, I think it's the best job any CFL team has ever done in this area.

"The coaching staff sat down and went over all the players released by National League teams, then called each NFL team and made inquiries about each free agent.

"We believe we can upgrade our imports with this method. We're looking mainly for offensive linemen, defensive backs and defensive linemen."

Rapp said the Lions aren't likely to sign many U.S. college prospects because of the financial limitations of the B.C. team and the fact that the NFL draft of eligible U.S. collegians doesn't take place until May, less than a month before CFL training camps begin.

The Lions have held free-agent tryout camps at numerous U.S. locations the last two years and struck it rich in 1978 when they signed quarterback Joe Paopao, who wasn't drafted by the NFL after playing at Long Beach State.

Paopao, after a year on the B.C. taxi squad, became the Lions' starting quarterback midway through the 1979 season when starter Jerry Tagge suffered a knee injury.

"We sincerely believe that the free-agent method is the best way for us to make the changes which we feel are necessary to get us to the Grey Cup next season," Rapp said. "We'll be making some changes in our Canadian roster, too, but we'll do this by trades.

"We had hoped to be able to announce a trade today, but we haven't completed the deal. I think we'll be able to make a couple of trades before next season for Canadians who can help us at certain positions which we feel need strengthening."

Rapp said he feels that, in his three years with the Lions, B.C. has become competitive and now has "reached the point where we must be a consistent winner that gets to the championship game."

Lions finished third in the Western Conference this past season with a 9-6-1 record despite losing their last four games. Calgary Stampeders beat the Lions 37-2 in the WFC semi-final in Calgary.

Rapp, a former assistant coach with Edmonton Eskimos, has a three-year record of 26-19-3 with the Lions.

Rapp said he has asked his entire coaching staff — assistants Bill Quinter, Vince Tobin, Rueban Berry and Don Lawrence — to return for the 1980 season.

Skaters facing lifetime ban if caught using illegal drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Figure skaters competing in the Canadian championships will be tested for use of illegal drugs and competitors face a possible lifetime suspenson if caught, a spokesman for the Canadian Figure Skating Association admitted.

"The CFSA is taking this step for the obvious reasons we have suspicions that we may have a problem with skaters using drugs because they think it will improve their performance," David Dore, CFSA vice-president, said Thursday.

Dore said the CFSA wasn't out to nail any particular skater.

"This is not a witch hunt. The CFSA suspects we my have a problem and we want to flush it out now. The CFSA can't do anything to offenders until we catch them.

"But if we don't act now to challenge what we see as a problem, the sport could be ruined," Dore said.

Drug testing is common at international competitions in most sports, including figure skating, but the CFSA decision to implement a drug-control program at the 1980 nationals being staged at Kitchener, Ont., in January is unprecedented.

The tests will be conducted on a random section of 25 skaters from all age groups and categories at the championships. Skaters selected for the tests will have urine samples analysed for traces of stimulants, barbiturates or anti-depresents prohibited by the International Skating Union and the International Olympic Committee.

Dore said the CFSA had no other legal course to follow because, lacking evidence of its suspicions it could lay no charges.

Skaters will be notified of the CFSA decision to establish a drug-control centre at the nationals during divisional competitions next week. Divisionals are the final testing gounds to determine which skaters qualify for the championships.

Dore, a Mississauga, Ont., school teacher, said there was a chance some skaters were innocently taking over-the-counter drugs which contained the barred substances and might by falsely accused because the drug-testing equipment would detect the smallest amount of drug.

Athletes taking over-the-counter drugs have tested positive in the past and suspended because a trace of the forbidden drug was found.

Dore said such over-the-counter items as cough drops, nose drops and pills containing codeine often show positive test results.

A list of the banned drugs as well as "safe" drugs would be issued to competitors at the divisional compeititons. Skaters taking prescription drugs will be asked to advise the CFSA before the championships start on Jan. 16.

Big-hearted canoeists lift paddles for Cubs

One of the most heart-warming stories I've heard this week is about Victoria Canoe Club's Howie Routh.

He's taken on the job of organizing paddlers and canoeists so that some Cubs will be able to enjoy the experience of paddling on local lakes at various times of the year.

Many of the youngsters live in foster homes or belong to familes with very limited incomes so fellow club member Frank Johnson is organizing a drive to get hand-knitted toques and mitts for them.

Howie is also looking for some five or six-inch paddles, about 50 to 52 inches in length, for his young guests and hopes that some of his buddies who are handy with tools will solve that particular problem.

Frank is also encouraging the members to take one or more of the boys along with them when they go on overnight or day trips. Thanks to people like Howie and Frank these youngsters will have an exciting new way of life opened up for them.

The Sooke River and harbor will be the scene for the club's outing on Sunday. Doug Collis will lead the river run if the water level is right and Paul Rothe, the trip around the harbor. The get-together will be 10:30 a.m. at the Sooke Flats park.

Victoria's Hobie Cat fleet will have a first-of-its-kind race from Esquimalt Lagoon to Willows Beach on Saturday, starting 11 a.m.

It's called the Commodore's Classic and is open to Hobie Cat 18s. They can fly any size or kind of sail they want and carry as many crew as they please, providing the minimum weight is 300 pounds. This should be interesting to watch if you're in the area.

Brian McLeod says this will be the last race until late-February. After Saturday the sailors will be concentrating on skiing.

Urs Ruegsegger was top Hobie Cat 18 sailor in the fall series. Runners-up were Barry Philbrook and Jim Vosburgh. In Hobie Cat 16s it was John Norwood, followed by Mike Burgess and Rob Woodward.

Urs got a wetsuit from White's Water Wear as a prize while John received a round trip to Hawaii from the Victoria Flight Centre. Both donated the equivalent in cash back to the fleet so that it can buy the large racing marks it has set its sights on for so long.

Thirty-six boats of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club turned out for Sunday's 7½-miler in waters off Sidney. The over-all winner was Bent Jespersen's Polyestermite. After her came Kevin McCullough's Vagrant, Jim Morris' Madeleine, Don Wilson's Menehune, Ray Wanless' Kelsib II, Art Beresford's Kate, Gerry Guest's Amiga, Herb Roberts' Bijou a Moi, David Connor's Kallim and Bruce Watson's Warr Bonnet.

This was the last race of the year for the club, the next event being the traditional Rum Race on New Year's Day.

This year's annual dinner and prize-giving will be at the Princess Mary Restaurant on Dec. 16. Tickets are going fast so members should contact Bea Richmond at 656-2471 as soon as possible.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has series racing for dinghy sailors again on Saturday. Start time is 1:30 p.m. Cruising class boats will have another long-distance race on Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m. near Flower Island in Cadboro Bay.

There was a good turnout for two around-the-buoys races sailed last Sunday. Jack Foster's Sherlock won both races for the larger Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet boats. The first time around she was followed by Bruce Henning's Arkle and Arkle's sister ship, Fleetwood, which is owned by Doug Hemphill and Dave Richardson. Jack Miller's Scrimshander and Fleetwood were runners-up in the final race of the day.

Gerry Porter's Lickety Split won the first race for smaller PHRF boats, edging out Gill Pugh's Flattery and Ron Jewula's Beowulf. The second time around it was Bob Callow's Minstrel, followed by Lickety Split and Keijo Isomaa's Vandal.

The top three boats in the first race for Thunderbirds were Doug Taylor-Lee's Helios, Gary Cooney's Hocus and Larry Shorter's Kila Kila. Hocus won the last race, John Dewey's Shuttlecock came second and Helios, third.

Dan Syroid's Ono won the first race for Catalina 27s, being followed by Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream and Doug Ross' Amica. Jack Trueman's L'Chaiim won the second race, edging out Salty Dream and Amica.

The club's Cal 20 fleet had a series race in the afternoon, which was won by Ed. Life's Semiramis. She was followed by Peter Harrison's Sunbeam, George Lewis' Tansy II and Harry Marshall's Tongariro.

Cruising class boats of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will have a race on Sunday. It gets under way at 1 p.m. in Esquimalt Harbor. Ed Haines' Lotte was overall-winner of last Sunday's race. After her came Bill Sargent's Southern Comfort, Fred Douglas' Vertu and Paul Jensen's Dania.

League inherits control of team

KAMLOOPS (CP) — British Columbia Junior Hockey League governors voted Thursday to revoke the franchise of Kamloops Rockets and will operate the money-losing club at least until the end of December.

The Rockets are currently three points behind Penticton Knights in the Interior Division and have four games in hand.

Earlier this month Rockets operators Jack Kennedy and Francois Lambert pulled out of the club, giving the ownership of the team back to Andy Berna on Nov. 15. Berna was unable to transport the team to Bellingham for a Nov. 17 game and, under league rules, was in violation of his contract.

"Our major concerns were keeping the franchise operational and providing a place for the kids to play," said BCJHL president Ron Livingston.

One of the major concerns of the league was the problem of operating an Interior Division with three teams.

"We expect it will cost us in the neighborhood of $3,000 to operate until the end of December," said Livingston." Hopefully we will get some interest from a buyer in that time and also we are hoping to put enough people in the building to show a little return on our investment."

Part of the reason for accepting responsibility for the team's debts for the next month is because the Rockets have no long road trips and there has been some interest in getting new owners.

Boxing commission asked for answers after fighter's death

NEW YORK (AP) — The Senate committee on investigations, taxation and government operations is expected to call its first witnesses next week in its investigation of the New York State Athletic Commission following the death of middleweight boxer Willie Classen.

State Sen. Roy Goodman, chairman of the committee, said his concern was to "structure the most thorough and far-reaching investigation of boxing to see how improvement can be made."

Sen. Goodman said he was troubled by many aspects of boxing, including the death of Classen, who suffered brain damage after being knocked out at 12 seconds of the 10th round of a fight against Wilfred Scypion at Madison Square Garden last Friday night. Classen, 29, died Wednesday night in hopsital. He never regained consciousness.

The senator said he was troubled to learn that Dr. Richard Izquierdo, the ringside physician for the fight, "is listed as an assistant adjunct physician in pediatrics at Bronx Lebanon Hospital.

The committee has the power to recommend intervention and legislation it deems necessary.

Welterweights find riches in title bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard and Wilfred Benitez fight for the welterweight championship and a million dollars apiece tonight in the richest non-heavyweight bout in boxing history.

"To make a long story short, you're looking at the new welterweight champion of the world," said the unbeaten Leonard, who is a 3½-1 favorite to win the World Boxing Council welter title from the unbeaten Benitez. The World Boxing Association champion is Pipino Cuevas.

As champion, the 21-year-old Benitez is getting $1.2 million, which is $200,000 more than the purse for the 23-year-old Leonard, who has earned almost $4 million in less than three years of pro fighting.

Inflation aside, Jack Dempsey's biggest purse was $717,000 for his first bout with Gene Tunney in 1926; Joe Louis's biggest payday was $625,916 for his second fight with Billy Conn in 1946 and Rocky Marciano's top cheque was $328,374 against Archie Moore.

The Benitez-Leonard gold rush will be part of a championship double-header at Caesar's Palace that includes Vito Antuofermo's middleweight title defence against Marvin Hagler.

Those fights, plus the World Boxing Association light heavyweight title bout between champion Victor Galindez and Marvin Johnson in the New Orleans Superdome, will be nationally televised in the U.S.

Leonard predicted the middleweight fight "is going to be a dynamite fight."

But it is Leonard's fight with Benitez that is the centrepiece of the show.

The two fighters are fast and talented, with Leonard seeming to have an edge in punching power and Benitez having an edge in experience.

Maple Leafs bow to Buckaroos, 5-2

Western Homes Buckaroos led all the way Thursday en route to a 5-2 win over Esquimalt Maple Leafs in one of two South Island Big Six Hockey League games at Pearkes Arena.

Bucks were ahead 3-0 after the first period and enjoyed a 4-1 advantage going into the final 20 minutes.

Doug Berger set the pace for Buckaroos with two goals and singles were contributed by Bruce Collins, Larry Hansen and Gord Sturtridge. Randy Russell and Rick Adams replied for Leafs.

In the other game, the leading Victoria Athletics blanked PPCLI, 6-0.

John Entzminger and Ron Trafford fired two goals each to lead the Athletics and singles came from Graham Brown and Jim Entzminger.

Leafs face Burnaby Lakers at 6 p.m. Saturday in Esquimalt Sports Centre in one of six intermediate "A" games they must play in order to qualify for the Coy Cup playdowns.

Bays unbeaten

TRAIL — Oak Bay was one of four schools undefeated after Thursday's action in the British Columbia high school boys' provincial AA volleyball championship.

Richmond, KLO of Kelowna, Maple Ridge and Oak Bay each won three matches to qualify for the championship round Saturday in the 16-team, round-robin tournament.

Four other teams qualified for the championship round — Mount Elizabeth of Kitimat, Duchess Park of Prince George, Dawson Creek and Port Coquitlam. Those schools each won two matches and lost one in first-day play.

Prince George Polars, last year's champion, dropped into the consolation round with a 1-2 record, while Trail was knocked out with three straight losses.

Commons lets the 'sunshine' in OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave speedy second reading — approval in principle — Thursday night to a 'sunshine' bill designed to give Canadians greater access to information the government collects with their tax dollars.

After less than two hours of debate, MPs unanimously agreed to send the freedom-of-information bill, hailed by spokesmen for all parties as a major reform, to the justice committee for clause-by-clause study.

Government sources say the bill should be passed next spring and could come into effect in a year.

In the meantime, Prime Minister Clark has instructed public servants to abide by the spirit of the law by giving the public, and especially MPs and journalists, more information about government programs and policies.

Clark, who has promised Canadians a more open government, asked deputy ministers to "encourage open and responsive behaviour among public servants in their day-to-day dealings with the public."

His letter to deputy ministers and guides for public servants were tabled in the Commons as debate began on the bill. Privy Council President Walter Baker said they were evidence the Conservative government intended to establish a new relationship between the governed and the governors.

Clark said public service managers have a duty to talk to members of the public, and he urged deputy ministers to increase the number of bureaucrats authorized to talk to reporters.

Public servants may be referred to by name in the media and interviewed on radio and television as well as in print. Until now, most public servants have preferred the anonymous description of spokesman or official.

However, the prime minister cautioned that his guides do not cover information which must by law stay secret. Nor do they cover policy proposals or public servants' opinions.

Clark assured public servants they would not violate their oath of secrecy by complying with his guides in good faith.

The oath taken by all public servants forbids them to release any information without "due authority." Uncertain about what to make public, bureaucrats usually lean towards keeping information secret.

Baker promised this attitude will change once the freedom-of-information bill becomes law. He said the bill is only the government's first word on the subject and can be changed in committee.

The bill would establish the principle that all government information should be made public with specified exceptions.

It would allow the government to withhold military secrets, details of police investigations, trade secrets and minutes of cabinet discussions. It would also protect personal privacy, because third parties would not be able to see government files on individuals.

Government decisions to withhold information could be appealed to a type of ombudsman called an information commissioner, with the Supreme Court of Canada having the final say.

Conservative Gerald Baldwin, a crusader for freedom-of-information legislation for more than 10 years, said the bill would help erase public cynicism and distrust of government caused by years of lies, cover-ups and obsessive secrecy.

The Alberta MP from Peace River received a standing ovation from MPs of all parties when he stood to speak and was praised on both sides of the House as the father of freedom-of-information legislation in Canada.

Baldwin, who earlier this week criticized the government for not moving quickly enough with the bill, said it will "open up the doors and let the fresh air blow through the must corridors of power."

Although he criticized the lengthy, detailed exceptions to the right-to-know principle when the bill was introduced a month ago, Baldwin called the bill a breakthrough during the debate.

"At the end of four or five years, we won't know how we ever did without it," he predicted.

Liberal John Reid (Kenora-Rainy River) called the bill the first major reform of the public service since patronage was abolished in 1916. He said it would strip the atmosphere of secrecy from the bureaucracy.

But he objected to giving the courts the final word on whether a document should be released. Cabinet minister, not judges, should make political decisions.

New Democrat Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway) said the bill's exceptions to the right-to-know principle were far too broad and would allow the government to keep too much information secret.

Emergency HQs set up for transport disasters

OTTAWA (CP) — Several emergency headquarters will be set up across the country to deal with accidents involving dangerous goods, the Commons transport committee was told Thursday.

The headquarters will assist in fighting fires, providing medical services and handling dangerous goods, said T. D. Ellison, head of the transport department's section dealing with dangerous goods.

He also said that persons or firms causing accidents such as the Nov. 11 train derailment at Mississauga, Ont., would have to repay the government for any expenses it incurs in providing such services.

The committee is studying a government bill, already approved in principle by the Commons, which provides a country-wide safety code for transporting inflammable compressed gases and similar commodities.

The code applies to all modes of transportation, as well as shippers.

In a break from precedence, Transport Minister Don Mazankowski is allowing the committee to see regulations which will come into force when the bill becomes law.

Normally the government withholds such regulations from the public until the bill is approved.

The minister told the committee he wants MPs to have a good understanding of what the bill tries to do and, through them, let the public know how it is being protected.

There are 112 pages of regulations to be followed by truckers, railway companies and ships.

Under the bill the federal government can force provinces to apply the safety measures if no agreement is reached after 12 months of negotiations.

However, Mazankowski said he has assurances from provincial transport ministers that they are eager to see the bill become law.

The draft regulations call for specially-trained inspectors for all modes of travel who would have the authority to seize dangerous goods if they have reason to believe they could cause an accident.

Committee chairman Michael Forrestall said he will be inviting interested persons to appear before the committee to read briefs or make statements.

Pensions law gets royal nod

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to continue survivor's benefits to widows and widowers between the ages of 60 and 65 was given royal assent and became law Thursday.

The amendments to the Old Age Security Act, passed by the Senate on third reading earlier in the day, affect some 5,000 people who have lost their pensioner spouses.

Earlier legislation provided for survivor's benefits to end six months after the death of a spouse receiving the old-age pension.

Nuclear terrorism top threat in '80s doctor predicts

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor who has been fighting the growth of nuclear power for eight years predicts the 1980s will be a decade when terrorists hold the world to ransom with nuclear weapons.

"Imagine what the world would be like today if they had the nuclear bomb in Iran," Dr. Helen Caldicott told an audience Thursday at the St. Lawrence Centre.

She told the forum sponsored by Toronto Arts Productions that plutonium, one of the components of a nuclear bomb, is transported by plane and truck across Canada and the United States.

The fear, she said, is that a terrorist needs only a piece the size of a grapefruit for a bomb. The directions for making one are freely available and world terrorists are sophisticated enough to put one together.

Dr. Caldicott, an Australian-born pediatrician, led a campaign in Australia in the early 1970s that led to a ban on atmospheric tests in the Pacific.

She now practises in Boston at Children's Hospital Medical Centre and is president of Physicians for Social Responsibility, a 1,000-member U.S. group trying to educate people on the dangers of radiation.

Nuclear activity is "the ultimate preventive medicine," said Dr. Caldicott.

Doctors do not have the knowledge to handle patients contaminated by radiation, cannot cure radiation sickness or prevent radiation-caused ailments such as leukemia and other cancers, the mutations of unborn babies and sterility.

Dr. Frank Sommers, a Toronto psychiatrist, said some city doctors are forming a Canadian chapter of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

"Our only chance of survival is an alert and aware public," he said. "We plan to organize regular meetings, speakers and films and we very much want people to join us."

Mini-MP cut down to size

TORONTO (CP) — David Crombie took it on the chin Thursday, but most of those roasting the federal health minister and former Toronto mayor had to stoop to do it.

Their message to Crombie at the Variety Club of Ontario roast of the year was: As the Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto-Rosedale you'd make a great mayor.

Crombie's famous "tiny, perfect" appellation got a working over.

"David Crombie is so tiny that when he proposed to Shirley and got down on one knee, he disappeared into the shag carpet," said Paul Godfrey, Metropolitan Toronto chairman.

"Crombie's taken up skating on the Rideau Canal," said Don Harron, host of the CBC-radio program Morningside. "He's known as Shorter Cranston."

Venezuela puts Canada oil first

OTTAWA (CPC) — Venezuela will give Canada "priority attention" for oil supplies despite its plans to cut back annual oil production by 6 per cent, Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said Thursday.

Hnatyshyn told the House of Commons he met this week with General Alphonso Rivard, the head of Venezuela's national oil company Petroven.

"General Alphonso assured me that Canada would receive priority attention with respect to supplies from that country."

Liberal MP Russel MacLellan said there were reports that Canadian energy supplies were lower than estimated by the National Energy Board and there was a threat of home heating oil shortages this winter.

MacLellan asked Hnatyshyn to obtain written assurances from multinational oil companies that they woild not divert any oil supplies bound for Canada to make up for any possible shortfalls elsewhere.

Hnatyshyn said he had "taken a number of initiatives" to guarantee supplies this winter. "While we are in a very tight and fragile situation, we are in fact attempting to build up our inventories," he said.

"We cannot assume that we have limitless supplies. The people of Canada must cooperate in terms of conservation activities."

Indian centres free from cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Friendship centres that help natives cope with economic and social problems in urban areas will not be hit by federal spending restraints, Secretary of State David MacDonald said Thursday.

"There is no doubt that we have a responsibility as Canadians to Metis and non-status Indians in this country living off reserves," MacDonald told Liberal MP Warren said.

"We are very concious about their budgetary requirements."

7. CARE not cage. The cage is to accommodate the inmates, not specifically to prevent escape (to which end CARE may be taken, of course). Indeed, if it weren't for the cage, there would be no question of escape from it anyway, so cage is a doubtful answer.
9. LAST not lost. Since the loss of some bets is normal, it would not be reasonable of a bettor to regret all his lost bets. In the case mentioned, there would be some sense in his regretting those which cost him the LAST of his money.
11. TONE not tune. You can't expect a "really fine" TONE. In the ordinary sense of melody, there simply isn't any tune.
12. POLE not poll. Aptly, a high flag-POLE or the like is apt to catch the eye. On the other hand, an election is a major centre of interest, anyway; it will not attract attention by virtue of a high poll or turnout of voters.
13. DAMP not dump. The clue suits something which lodgings could literally be; however, "a dump" is merely a vague expression of disapproval.
17. DEER not deed. The phrase "lie undisturbed" suits DEER better than a deed or document, the disturbance of which, when it is handled, etc., is hardly a consideration.
18. BANK not band. Since many bands are founded by, or formed of, very close friends, the clue's tentative suggestion that it's "possible" for "some" of the men to become "quite" close friends, favors BANK, being an understatement for band.
19. POLO not solo. Participants must take chances when playing POLO because it is a vigorous game. There would be less chance-taking than under normal circumstances.
22. SPELL not shell. It can well be "tiresome" to keep having to SPELL things out for the dull-witted. It is not merely "tiresome" to keep having to shell out hard cash.
23. LAZY not lady. "LAZY" (implying a reason for reprimand) is definitely an apt answer. To specify lady is comparatively pointless.
24. SEE not sue. Whether or not you "approve" of a person is a question of how you SEE him. To sue a man (for libel, rather than "as a libeler") isn't really a question of approval or disapproval.

CLUES DOWN

1. TICKLED not tackled. To do a thing "mercilessly" typically involves protracted spite; however, a tackle is spontaneous, and the violence is normally part of the game anyhow.
5. FAN not man. The rotation of a FAN is clearly visible; but it is not necessarily apparent whether a brain worker, for instance, is working or not.
6. REPRESSION not depression. The clue suits a case of a cause leading to an effect: if people were freed from REPRESSION (tyrannical rule, etc.) they would subsequently be a lot happier. Depression is less apt, since it seems idle to observe that the removal of unhappiness makes people happier.
10. NOSE not pose or rose. A sculptor, typically concerned with figures, heads, etc., has no special knowledge of roses. NOSE is more apt than pose, since one hardly ascribes inherent beauty to the latter.
14. MINDED not mended. It is to MIND a thing, rather, that is a question of taking "care." Normally, one mends a thing with competence, skill, etc., not mere diligence.
16. CROOKS not crocks. In themselves, there is nothing to be frowned on in dirty (i.e., used) crocks; the fault lies in neglecting to wash them up.

Contract Bridge — B. Jay Becker

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades. North, having overcalled your opening one spade bid with two hearts, leads the king of hearts, followed by the ace. How would you play the hand?

♠KQ974 ♡7 ◇K106 ♣AQ82	N W E S	♠A6 ♡Q5 ◇AQJ94 ♣9643

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three No-trump, North having overcalled your opening one diamond bid with one heart. North leads the king of hearts. How would you play the hand?

♠A6 ♡A82 ◇AQ107 ♣AJ84	N W E S	♠Q74 ♡J543 ◇KJ94 ♣Q6

1. The proper play is to discard a low club on North's ace of hearts. You do this in order to guard against a possible 4-2 trump division. If you instinctively ruffed the second heart and then played three rounds of trumps, you'd find yourself in a highly precarious position if the missing trumps proved to be divided 4-2 instead of 3-3.

You can maximize your chance for the contract by discarding a club at trick two. North cannot effectively play a third round of hearts — you'd ruff it in dummy — so let's say he decides to shift to a diamond. You win, draw three rounds of trumps, and assuming they're divided 4-2, lead still another trump and then score the rest of the tricks.

2. Let's first assume that you took North's king of hearts with the ace and entered dummy with a diamond in order to take a club finesse. In that case, you would almost surely go down if the North hand happened to look something like this:

♠J102 ♡KQ1096 ◇4 ♣K1053

North would win the club with the king, shift to the jack of spades, and down the chute you'd go.

To make sure of the contract, win the king of hearts at trick one with the ace and play a low club from your hand at trick two. If North has the king of clubs (which is likely) and steps right up with it, you follow low from dummy and have nine ironclad tricks. If South has the king of clubs and takes dummy's queen with the king, you have eight immediate tricks. You can then easily produce a ninth trick later on by playing a heart towards dummy's jack.

If North has the king of clubs and does not take it at trick two, you win the club in dummy with the queen and sooner or later establish your ninth trick by leading a heart towards dummy's jack.

Albertans frustrated by 'greedy Arab' image

Albertans don't like being called blue-eyed Arabs because they want what they see as a fair price for their crude oil.

Ontarians, on the other hand, don't like being called parochial because they want a price that won't jeopardize their industries and jobs.

The governments of both provinces feel important arguments in their viewpoints have been lost in recent debate about prices and this loss is hindering clearer understanding of the issue.

Officials of the provincial governments, including premiers Peter Lougheed of Alberta and William Davis of Ontario, summarize their positions in these two stories.

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

CALGARY (CP) — If you want some idea of what it's like to be one of those oil-rich Albertans, try slipping your neighbor about $750. Then give him another $750 for his wife and each of his children.

Then sit back while he calls you a greedy blue-eyed Arab.

Whether or not that is a wholly fair comparison, it is one made — usually in more colorful language — by an increasing number of Albertans.

It represents, on a per capita basis for Canada, the $15 billion that Alberta has foregone in oil revenues over the last six years to help keep Canadian oil prices down.

Provincial government spokesmen are showing recurring frustration as they try to hammer several of their basic points into the collective consciousness of Central Canada.

— Alberta, they say, faces a depressing post-oil future unless it can achieve economic diversification.

— Certainly, Alberta wants price increases for its crude oil but officials say that a promise by Premier Peter Lougheed in a recent Vancouver speech has been virtually overlooked or ignored: Alberta is willing to guarantee that Ontario will have "the lowest crude cost of any manufacturing complex in the industrialized world."

— Alberta gets $5.87 in taxes and royalties from every barrel of gasoline sold in the province and roughly that for oil production sent elsewhere. If that Alberta oil is sent to Ontario and sold as gasoline, the Ontario government gets $7.49 a barrel, 27 per cent more than the producing province, because of sales and other taxes.

Despite those points, Lougheed is still called "Alberta's Ayatollah" or one of the "blue-eyed sheiks."

Even one Alberta newspaper cartoonist recently depicted him as U.S. Gen. Patton, standing in a tank, surveying a devastated battlefield and musing "So, this was Ontario."

Never known for having extensive patience with the news media, the premier has been even less forthcoming than usual during the strain of oil-pricing negotiations. After vehemently refusing to answer oil-price questions, he cut a recent interview short with an uncharacteristic "the hell with you" when reporters strayed beyond innocuous economic questions.

But before that outburst, he did defend one controversial aspect of Alberta's current wealth — the oil-financed Heritage Trust Fund, which recently passed $5 billion and will zoom beyond $6 billion next spring.

That sounds like a lot, Lougheed said, but it equals just one year's provincial budget — or five weeks of federal government spending.

Other government spokesmen note that the fund would barely pay for one oil sands plant.

As conventional oil supplies in Alberta decline, Lougheed said, the provincial government will lose revenue and eventually the fund will be used up easing the financial adjustment to normal budgets.

In his controversial Vancouver speech, he said Alberta will have to review its continued sale of oil if there is no steady rise in oil prices or if there is "artificial skimming" of resource revenues from the producing provinces.

That, with elaborations in later comments to reporters, won headlines.

Overshadowed were other points in the speech:

— Alberta is prepared to phase in oil prices close to world levels, allowing Canadian industry to adjust better, even though Alberta officials are dubious about the economic wisdom of such action.

— Alberta will push ahead hard with extra oil sands and heavy oil projects to help the national oil-supply situation, even though such additional projects will cost the province hundreds of millions of dollars in supporting services and could well overheat the provincial economy.

— Alberta has offered to assist Newfoundland in its embroyonic energy development.

Lougheed also dealt directly with Ontario complaints about the effect of price increases, saying that the current price of $13.75 a barrel, lowest in the world for an industrial area and 60 per cent of prevailing world prices, has not been used by Ontario to gain any particular advantages.

Total energy bills, Lougheed noted, are less than five per cent of a manufacturing plant's operating costs. And the powerful industries of West Germany and Japan pay full world prices for energy.

Still, he said, Alberta will accept a price slightly below the Chicago average to give Ontario's manufacturing establishment an energy price advantage over the rest of the world — in addition to its comparative advantage in security of supply.

'We have to share'

By MARJ WELCH

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis doesn't like to play the numbers game when he discusses domestic oil prices. He prefers to talk about being Canadian.

"I am not a pocket-calculator nationalist and I am not about to do a cost-benefit analysis of my citizenship," he said in a recent speech.

But if backed into a corner he'll quote figures — 60,000 jobs, $2.9 billion in income, $5.4 billion in consumer costs. That's what Ontario says quickly shoving the price of domestic crude toward world levels will cost Canada.

Sure, Ontario acknowledges that Alberta gave up $15 billion by selling its oil to Canadians cheaply.

But, as Davis often says, Ontario contributed $16 billion in federal transfer payments between 1967 and 1977 to help other areas of Canada.

"And the principle is not one of dollars," a Davis aide said.

"You can't put a price on being Canadian. We have to share the wealth."

And the west wasn't worried about distorting the market in the 1960s when Ontario started paying more for Alberta oil under the Ottawa Valley agreement, he said.

That's when the federal government drew a line across the eastern end of Ontario. Areas to the east used imported oil which was cheaper at the time, those to the west paid more for Canadian crude.

For about 10 years Ontario paid $35 million a year extra to use western oil — until 1973 when international prices went out of sight.

Ontarians are willing to pay more for oil if the extra earnings are pumped into ensuring energy self sufficiency for Canada, he said.

"But we cannot accept a change in the existing price agreement that would generate windfall profits rather than oil security and economic recession rather than shared national growth."

Alberta is running its affairs almost without taxing its residents while the federal government and consuming provinces have huge deficits — not exactly a stabilizing thing for Canada, Ontario officials say.

Canada has oil while others, like Japan and Germany, have none so it can set a "made-in-Canada" price to keep its energy resources cheaper.

This will allow a competitive edge over other industrial nations rather than accepting an "artificial, erratic and soaring world price."

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed has promised Ontario the lowest-priced crude oil of any manufacturing complex in the industrialized world even after a price raise.

"We've always argued that we should have that," Davis said in an interview. "It's in the national interest to have it."

Power of love lights Inuvik

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — RCMP S.Sgt. Pat Powers said Thursday he is expecting a baby boom because of a partial power failure that has left much of this Arctic community in darkness.

The only thing that there has been more of in the community — besides darkness — is romance, Powers said.

"Watch for a substantial increase in births about nine months from now."

Powers said he experienced a blackout in Frobisher Bay last year and a small baby boom was recorded exactly nine months later.

Inuvik is operating on about half its normal electricity supply. Street lights have been shut off, schools have closed and businesses and private residences have cut back on energy use in a voluntary conservation program.

The energy shortage began Saturday when one of the town's diesel generators broke down. A replacement has been sent from Yellowknife and is expected to be in operation on the weekend.

Inuvik is getting a little less than three hours of sunlight a day, but unseasonably warm temperatures have helped ease the power demand.

Crosbie rules out income tax cuts

NEW YORK (CP) — Reducing the federal deficit in Canada is more important than cutting personal income taxes at this time, Finance Minister John Crosbie said Thursday.

Speaking to the Canadian Club of New York, Crosbie said an income tax cut would have few benefits and would, eventually, fuel inflation, increase the current account deficit and lead to an even higher federal deficit.

A text of his speech was released in advance of delivery.

Crosbie said in his talk that the federal government must demonstrate a convincing commitment to reducing inflation.

In terms of monetary policy, he said, that means keeping up efforts to limiting the rate of expansion of the money supply.

"On the fiscal side, it means a strenuous effort to limit government expenditures — which the government now is making — with not all savings offset by a decrease in revenue."

The minister, who brings down his first budget next month, said one of the most serious problems facing Canada is the budget deficit, which in per capita terms of as a percentage of the gross national product, is the largest of any of the industrialized countries.

The Conservative government is committed to reducing both government spending and the huge current account deficit.

He noted that a recession is developing in the United States and eventually will have an impact on Canada. However, he said he disagrees with those who feel that Ottawa should take steps to cushion that impact.

Crosbie said he feels inflation and Canada's balance-of-payments problems are much more serious threats to the country's economic fabric.

He also said the Canadian economy has little spare capacity available to expand production quickly. There is little slack, for instance, in the export production field.

"Insofar as there are significant unused productive resources in Canada they appear to be largely in industries, where the output is not internationally traded, the construction industry, education and other public services," he said.

Under these circumstances, he feels that a general financial stimulus would only accelerate inflation rather than offer increased employment and production.

Mortgage interest rates continue to decline

TORONTO (CP) — Mortgage interest rates continued to fall Thursday, with banks and trust companies getting in on the action.

Toronto Dominion Bank cut its National Housing Act five-year term mortgages to 13½ from 14½ per cent, its NHA three-year term to 14 from 14½ and ITS NHA one-year term to 14½ from 14¾. Its NHA three-year open mortgages were unchanged at 15 per cent.

The bank's conventional five-year term mortgages were reduced to 13¾ from 14¾ per cent, its three-year term to 14¼ from 14¾ and one-year term to 14¾ from 15. Its conventional three-year open mortgages were unchanged at 15¼ per cent.

Canada Permanent Mortgage Corp., in its second round of mortgage rate reductions in 10 days, brought its five-year closed conventional rate down to 13½ per cent. The Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal Trust Co. and at least one of the smaller mortgage lenders adopted that level last week.

In the U.S. today, major banks reduced their prime lending rates to 15½ per cent, choosing not to go to the 15¼-per-cent rate previously chosen by Chase Manhattan Bank.

Citibank made the initial move from 15¾ per cent and was immediately joined by Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

Annie Glenn, wife of Ohio senator John Glenn, gave a speech at Ohio State University — and for Mrs. Glenn that's banner news. After struggling since childhood, she has overcome a severe stuttering problem that made speaking "hard work — you're exhausted at the end of the day." Seven years ago, Mrs. Glenn started speech classes at Hollins College in Virginia.

He's white-bearded, jolly, and lets loose with a boisterous "Ho, Ho, Ho!" — with his hands. Brad Hatton, 20, part-time Santa at a shopping mall in San Jose, uses his fingers to "speak" to deaf children, who are arriving by the busload.

Sadat

The shark that attacked a surfer off the Oregon coast apparently was a great white shark — the kind depicted in the movie Jaws but seldom seen in cold Pacific Northwest waters. "All indications point, as far as I'm concerned, toward the great white shark," Dale Snow, of Newport, Ore., said regional director of the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife. Kenny Doudt, 26, of Reedsport, Ore., is in fair condition after undergoing two hours of surgery which included repairing a gash described as four to six inches deep and stretching from his left armpit to his hip.

Someone in Ronald Reagan's campaign headquarters gets the spelling award for today. In a release announcing that Frederick K. abby

Dear Abby:

I never thought that I, a 45-year-old woman, would ever be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I am so confused and frustrated I don't know where else to turn.

My husband is 52. We've been married 24 years and have four children. About three years ago my husband lost all interest in the physical side of our marriage. Thinking it was something he couldn't help, I didn't make an issue of it, although I found it very hard to live with.

Last week he confesed that he is gay! He says he loves me and will never leave me and the children.

Don't tell me to see my minister. He is my minister. If I were to discuss this with another minister or my husband's superior, he would lose his job and probably come out of the closet and then leave.

Please help me.

No Name

Dear No Name:

Your husband is obviously bisexual, which is no crime. (People do not choose their sexuality.) You need counselling and so does your husband. Ask your psychiatrist to refer you to a mental health clinic where treatment is available within your means.

Also, nearly all religious groups now offer special counseling for gay members and clergy as well. Write again and let me know which denomination you belong to, and I'll advise you whom to contact.

Dear Abby:

What do you think of a man (he's in the service) who writes his girlfriend (my sister) letters that go into such gross details of their intimate times together that it would make anybody throw up right on the spot?

In case you think I snooped and read the letters without my sister's permission, I didn't. She showed them to me!

Sister

Dear Sister:

The man who wrote those letters credited his girlfriend with more common sense, discretion and maturity than she possesses. Don't you wonder why your sister wanted to share those letters with you? I do.

Dear Abby:

There is this couple with whom my husband and I go to dinner quite often — for business reasons.

The wife chews ice like a teenager with bad manners. She drains her water glass, sucks the ice and then spits it back into the glass. The noise she makes while doing this simply drives me up a wall! Should I say something to her about it?

Louis

Dear Louisville:

Does your husband buy from her husband? Or does he sell to him?

Flighty pen lands here

By NORM GIDNEY

To Nancy-Gay Rotstein, almost everything is an inspiration for poetry. So her first ride in a float plane this week prompted some furious scribbling on the 35-minute Air West flight across Georgia Strait.

"I started writing as soon as the plane took off. I always write like that to get the intensity of emotion."

The Willowdale, Ont. housewife flew to Victoria to start a 2½ week cross-Canada promotion tour of her second book of poems, appropriately titled Taking Off. Poets are thick on the ground these days and women poets not particularly scarce, but Mrs. Rotstein has attracted considerable attention.

ROTSTEIN
. . . starts tour here

Irving Layton has praised her work:

"I am greatly impresed by the economy and precision of this new collection, as well by the widening of her concerns. Her vision is still 20/20, but she's seeing a great many more things."

He also endorsed her first book, Through the Eyes of a Woman, which was poems mainly on domestic themes. The work in both collections is highly polished — concise, tight writing, with not a word or image out of place, each poem almost a string of haikus. It comes through rewriting as many as 50 times, she says.

Taking Off is mainly travel poems, touched off by sights and people she and husband Max have seen on recent trips to Israel, Greece, the Caribbean and Europe.

They convey the impression of a jet set gadfly, but seem disproportionate to the souvenirs most of us bring back from a brief trip overseas because of the months of intense preparation she puts into each holiday.

Three children aged 11, eight and five leave little time during the day for writing, so much of it is done at night. Sometimes she'll stay up all night long rewriting and polishing a poem.

She studies each country for at least two months before going, "like I was about to prepare a thesis. I try to write as someone within the country."

The results sometimes ring hollow but most of the poems in this slim volume are impressive. Sparely but vividly written, they describe brief encounters and striking scenes.

With great power of description, she etches the scene in a few lines. Like this one, High Season:

They swarm from the plane infest immigration hover over baggage bin circle chrome carrying carts; custom-weary
they descend upon duty-free shops, ravage all shelves until spent then surge forward leaving the blighted building.

A new Winkle on job finding

By AL FORREST

Women returning to the work force after a 20-year layoff can be just as bewildered as Rip Van Winkle, but at least Rip didn't resume life feeling guilty about what he was doing.

"Many women feel they should really be in the house and have toast and cocoa ready when the kids come home," says Thelma Gourlay, director of a new Canada Employment Centre program to assist women to re-enter the labor force.

"Toast and cocoa are fine but children can also be helped if the mother works and the family can afford to take a really good vacation. In many cases the mother is helping the children more by being in the work force."

Mrs. Gourlay said almost all of the women coming in to take the one-day course have been brought up with traditional viewpoints about marriage and the home.

"They may have worked briefly as teenagers, some even went to university but the aim was to get married, raise children and look after the home.

"Now, suddenly, for a variety of reasons, they either want to find work or are force to because they are divorced or widowed. Either way it can be a rough experience."

Work skills have changed over the past 20 years and so have the types of occupations open to women.

Still, most of them can find work once they have conquered their two main handicaps, timidity and guilt.

"We have 15 women in a session and they are usually in the age group of 37 to 46, although they are as young as 30 and some are in their 50s. I begin by telling my own experiences.

"I was a traditional housewife but when my children got older I re-entered the work force. Through discussion we learn that we all have similar problems and feelings."

The guilt is the toughest thing to wrestle with.

Having been brought up in traditional roles, she said, some women have difficulty making the decision to look for work, especially if they have children of pre-school age.

"I tell them that they might not be doing themselves or their family a favor by staying home beyond a certain point. They shouldn't devote their whole lives to neighborhood coffee parties. And there is a tendency to spend more than necessary on new drapes and furniture when you are at home all day long."

The Canada Employment Centre does not advise housewives whether they should go out to work or not.

"But after they make a decision, we help them in any way we can. Many of them need to be reassured they have made the right decision and they need to build up their self-confidence."

Mrs. Gourlay said she stresses that all women, whether they are housewives or in the working force, should become financially independent.

"A woman needs to have funds of her own and not rely upon the generosity of her husband whenever shewants to buy something for herself."

She said women had a right to their own private funds and, in addition, they had a right to be protected against the unexpected.

"It can be devastating if the husband dies or runs off with another woman. Some women come to my desk and cry. They don't know how to begin to look after themselves and their children."

The one-day course is open to any woman re-entering the work force after a prolonged absence. It is held on the first Friday of the month, making the next one on Dec. 7. But there is a waiting list. Women can get their name on the list by phoning Mrs. Gourlay at 388-3481. The course is free.

Jet plane descent causes face pain

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

I flew in from Europe about five days ago. The flight was smooth, but a number of people near me had terrible pains in their ears on the descent. I had no pain in my ears. Instead I had excruciating pain over my face. I have no trouble with my sinuses. I wonder why I would have had such pain at a time like that.

Mrs. S.S

Dear Mrs. S:

Pain in the sinus area, over the face and forehead, is not nearly as common as pain and fullness over the ears during a descent in a plane. Yet, it is not unusual. The same mechanism at work for ear problems exists with the sinuses. Changes in atmospheric pressure are known to create inflammation of the sinuses and the middle ear cavities.

Some people may complain of extreme discomfort over the teeth. All of these unpleasant reactions are due to interference with the free flow of air into the tubes that run from the back of the nose into the ear, and the tubes that run from the nose into the sinuses. When there is blockage of the Eustachian tubes to the ears and when there is blockage of the tiny ducts, a partial vacuum is responsible for the sensation of pain.

I have found that many people with marked discomfort in the ears or the sinuses can find enormous relief with the application of very warm, moist towels to the area that pains. The stewardess can provide this.

Dear Doctor:

I've tried everything to get my 11-year-old daughter to stop biting her nails. I've even tried, with her consent, to apply bitter aloes, a recommendation of my grandmother.

Is there anything else I can do? She bites constantly.

Mrs. B.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

The application of bitter aloes, or any other unpleasant-tasting substance, is obviously not the proper approach to this problem. For nail-biting, in children and in adults, is but one outward evidence of some inner tension and nervousness. Unless the basic cause of the tension is found and eliminated, even if the nail-biting does stop, other symptoms of emotional stress will manifest themselves.

The application of any distasteful oil is actually a form of punishment. And punishment is entirely contrary to all better concepts of treating nail-biting.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from Times readers. If you have an inquiry or problem of broad interest, send it to Dr. L.L. Coleman, c/o The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, V8W 2N4.

New pill for balding

PEKING (UPI) — A balding doctor in China's Shanxi province says he has developed an herbal pill to restore a full growth of hair for those who are beginning to lose their hair. He even tried the remedy on himself.

China's official Xinhua news agency reported that Dr. Feng Chunli at the Pianguan country hospital used eight herbs in the honey-coated pills for restoring hair. He himself was his first patient.

"He took 80 pills in succession and yellow fine hair gradually grew on his scalp unitl the growth of hair was restored," the agency said.

He next tried it on others suffering from patchy loss of hair. "Of the 81 cases so far treated, 77 have been cured and three cases showed remarkable results," the agency said.

Heat ideas need check

joan watson
for consumers

Sometimes consumer warnings can have a strange effect on people's lives. For instance, a friend of mine now rushes out in her nightgown when she hears the oil truck pull up to her house in the early morning.

Why? Last winter the CBC program Marketplace warned consumers of the unscrupulous practices of some heating oil distributors. A few companies were discovered to charge for more fuel than they actually delivered. The driver was able to make the tickets read a higher figure than was correct by putting the ticket in the meter before arriving at the house. Then, they would pump oil back into the truck, or a friend's tank, etc.

When the truck arrived at the customer's home, the meter had already counted off fuel the customer would never see.

My friend risks cold feet several times each winter, now, to insure that the fuel bill she pays is accurate.

With oil up to about 70 cents per gallon, electricity charges sky high in some areas, and gas keeping pace, we're all concerned about our fuel bills. And the makers of gadgets know it.

Newspapers and magazines are carrying ads for devices and services promising to save "up to 30 per cent" on your heating costs.

Michel Ibeault, spokesman for the federal government project Energ$ave, says "Consumers will have to be very careful" when contemplating changes to their heating systems.

His office gets about 1,000 calls a week regarding how to save money on heating bills. Most callers ask about insulation, since that is a recommended first step. Ener$ave also advises about other heating system economies.

Vacuuming the forced air ducts, for example, might make for less dust in your home, but won't save much fuel. Cleaning the chimney, however, will help a good deal.

Experts at the Canadian Combustion Research Laboratory recommend you clean your chimney regularly — once a year for the average home, possibly more often if your burner creates a lot of soot.

A clean chimney will also mean less chance of chimney fires.

A regular furnace tune-up is your best fuel-saving investment, according to Inbeault. For most heating systems, a saving of 10 per cent is easily possible just from proper adjustment. If your system hasn't been properly tuned for many years, you could save even more.

Getting a good tune-up isn't as simple as it sounds, though. Most oil companies offer a service package that includes a yearly check-up. But that doesn't necessarily mean they will adjust your system for the most efficient operation. Their primary interest is in keeping the burner running so they won't have to make a service call. Energy saving is something you often will have to insist on yourself.

Inbault estimtes that it takes at least one-half hour to tune any burner, and some might take two hours, depending on the furnace type and serviceman's experience.

"If he's only there five minutes and leaves, he's done nothing. Call your service company and cancel the contract," advises Inbeault.

He further suggests you watch the serviceman work, maybe even take notes. Find out what you should be doing during the rest of the year to maintain optimum efficiency. Ask for a written report about the combustion efficiency after the tune-up. That is the only way to find out if the system is properly tuned.

The test involves four steps: smoke test, carbon dioxide concentration, flue gas temperature and furnace draft measurement. It takes a few minutes, and can only be done when the burner is heated up.

All burners made within the last fifteen years should be able to operate above 75 per cent efficiency. A new oil burner can achieve up to 85 per cent efficiency.

If your're wondering whether your service company has ever conducted a combustion efficiency test, check your flue, or "exhaust breeching". There should be a one-quarter inch hole. The hole is where they insert the test instruments. If there is none, it means the unit has never been tested for combustion efficiency.

To find out the rate of improvement from a tune-up, you need measurements before and after. But if the "after" measurement is well over 75 per cent, you're okay. Less than that, ask your serviceman what he would recommend to increase the efficiency.

He might suggest you increase the speed of the circulating fan, or increase the amount of time the fan is "on". On an oil furnace, you might switch to a smaller fuel nozzle.

If he suggests an ad-on device, make sure it has approval from the appropriate agency — Canadian Standards Association for oil-fired burners, Canadian Gas Association or Underwriters Laboratories Canada. These agencies are in the process of setting standards for various devices. Check local laws, too. At this time, for example, vent dampers are prohibited by provincial laws as ad-ons to existing as systems.

Many homeowners are contempating a switch from oil to gas. But if your burner is a recent model, and can be tuned to 85 per cent efficiency, you might actually lose money by switching. Inbeault points out that the maximum efficiency of a conversion unit is 75 per cent.

Gas-fired systems which have spark ignition (pilot light) can be switch to electric ignition for $30 to $40. The pilot light accounts for 5 to 10 per cent of your fuel bill.

Conductor Eisler led Toronto's Festival Singers for two dozen years

'Choice' music for Yule

audrey johnson

An integral part of almost everybody's Christmas is music. From the inevitable White Christmas and Good King Wenceslas, to spirituals and carols and the music of Bach and Handel.

Appetites for this form of celebration will be well served in Victoria but as some of the best happens to occur on the same day — Sunday, Dec.9 — music lovers will be put to it to decide where to go.

On the afternoon of that day and repeated Monday at the Royal Theatre, Victoria Symphony Orchestra and Amity Singers will be heard in that most perfect of musical comemmorations of Christ's birth and life, Handel's Messiah.

The performance will be conducted by Elmer Iseler, a man who is undoubtedly Canada's most noted choral conductor. He conducted Toronto's famed Festival Singers for more than 24 years, touring extensively with the ensemble. He also conducted the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir and is currently directing his own Elmer Iseler Singers.

Soloists for the pair of performances are Ingrid Suderman, soprano; Phyllis Mailing, mezzo-sopano; John Keane, tenor, and Bernard Turgeon, baritone.

The McPherson Playhouse will be hosting afternoon and evening events that day.

Victoria Musical Art Society traditionally brings an appropriate charm and sensitivity to its Christmas concerts. This year their concert at 2:30 p.m., will present choirs and a recorder group from Glenlyon School under the direction of Margaret Gwilliam; and an international group of 20 carols and songs of Christmas performed by Pearson College Choir directed by Edgar Samuel.

The evening program presents the Canadian Forces Naden Band conducted by Captain Con Furey, in a concert of seasonal music. Director-actor Allan Purdy will be master of ceremonies.

Something special about this event is the price of admission. It consists of a moderately priced wrapped gift for a needy child. These should be marked whether for boy or girl and the aproximate age.

Winnipeg is not just the home of one internationally noted dance company. The Royal Winnipeg Ballet may be more familiar to Victorians, but that city's Contemporary Dancers has earned its own mede of fame abroad as well as in many Canadian cities where it has been seen.

A performance of the company's artistic and innovative works will be presented Monday at McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m.

Founded in 1964 by its prsent artistic director, Rachel Browne, the group is Canada's oldest established modern dance company. There are more than 80 original works in the repertoire.

During its 15 years the company has toured throughout Canada and the U.S. and has accepted invitations to perform at some of the most prestigious dance festivals in North America — Jacob's Pillow, the Wolf Trap Festival and the New York Dance Festival.

Philadelphia-born Rachel Browne, after dancing professionally in New York, was invited to become a soloist with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet Company. She remained with the company for five years, then retired to raise a family.

But the need to find an outlet for her energies in dance led her to gather a small group of talented dancers and this was the beginning of Winnipeg's Contemporary Dancers. Response to the group was almost immediate and overwhelming. Invitations to perform came from far and wide; financial support became available and soon the company was touring the width and breadth of Canada.

Behind the company, since 1971, there has been a professional program and a school. The Winnipeg School of Contemporary Dance now has an annual enrollment that exceeds 400 students.

Browne's choreography has been praised for its invention and its lyrical quality, but she also uses the gifts of other choreographers such as Vancouver's noted Judith Marcuse, Toronto's David Earle and the new director of Britain's Royal Ballet, Norman Morrice.

The music to which her company dances is as versatilely chosen. On a typical current program is to be found songs of the Bayou, Ravel, Mozart, Bach, and the Joseph Canteloube arrangement of songs of the Auvergne.

Bach back early

An early start on the music of Christmas is being made by the University of Victoria. First of December's musical events will be a performance of Bach's most popular choral work, the Christmas Oratorio.

It will be performed by the University Chorus and Orchestra under the direction of UVic School of Music professor George Corwin, Sunday and Monday at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. respectively.

A Taylor Scholarship event it will take place in the University Centre Auditorium.

Featured soloists are Susan Austin, soprano; UVic student Barbara Ebbeson, contralto; Richard Margison, tenor, and Edgar Samuel, bass. The University Chorus and Orchestra ensemble is composed of UVic students and performers from the Victoria area. The Christmas event is one of two presented annually by the ensemble.

Bach wrote the Christmas Oratorio for the six festive days of Christmas of 1734-35 — the three days of Christmas, New Year's Day, the Sunday after New Year and the Feast of the Epiphany. The narrative thread of the oratorio is drawn from the Books of St.Luke and St.Matthew.

Tickets for the performance are available from University Centre ticket office, McPherson Playhouse box office and the Hillside Mall ticket centre.

ROYAL WORCESTER SPODE GROUP
HELP MAKE A WONDERFUL CHRISTMAS

Buttercup
A gay and cheerful Spode design. Suitable for traditional or contemporary setting. Available in full dinnerware or by the piece.

Royal Garden
This Royal Worcester bone china pattern is a revival of one of their very old patterns incorporating a border decoration of alternating pink and white roses intertwined with green leaves.

Evesham
This famous Worcester pattern, better known for its full range of flame-proof ovenware, is available in full open-stock dinnerware, perfect for today's more casual life style.

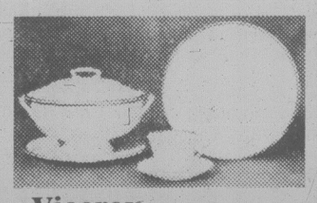
Queen's Bird
This Spode pattern on the famous finestone body was taken from an old Dutch Delft design. In 1937, H.M. Queen Mary bought a set of this Spode pattern and gave permission for it to be named Queen's Bird.



Viceroy
One of Royal Worcester's bone china patterns. The decoration is a classic gold band on the outer edge and a narrow band on the shoulder of the plate. A formal pattern tailored to today's life style.

Chelsea Garden
This floral bone china pattern of Spode was derived from the work of Charles Ferdinand Hurten, one of the greatest of Victorian floral painters, who worked at the factory from 1859 to 1900.

Marlena in movie role

soap opera scene

By JOHN GOUDAS

Deidre Hall, who is seen as the pregnant psychologist Marlena Evans on Days of Our Lives, appears with Tony Curtis in Kiss of Gold, NBC's prime-time movie airing later this season. The film is all about the inner workings of a cosmetic firm.

Deidre is smart. She remains in Days, but hustles nighttime exposure on the side. Her character Marlena is always in the soup on the soap.

At the moment, besides being pregnant, Marlena takes care of teen-ager Donna, the insecure kid who used to dabble in shoplifting, supposedly her husband Don's daughter. Then there's twin sister Samantha, back from Hollywood, a basket case following kidney failure. Samantha, ordered to live a highly restrictive life, moves in to share a room with Donna. More than likely, Sam will follow orders for about two weeks, and then raise hell.

So Marlena is surrounded by trauma... with a part like that, Deidre hangs in there.

A real busy body, Deidre also is apt to turn up on Hollywood Squares, Donahue, and Mike Douglas, plus she wangled a cameo bit in the forthcoming film KGOD.

Deidre plays it cool about the jump to prime-time. She would prefer doing realstic comedy, shows like M.A.S.H. but they're one in a million.

In case you think the lady is only thinking of her career, Deidre is a fervent member of Greenpeace, the highly active and committed wildlife organization. She also won't say no to the Special Olympics when called upon to spend time with handicapped kids.

Obviously, the lady isn't lazy. The exposure on Days of Our Lives made all this possible.

Channel Chatter: As the World Turns has announced two cast notes. Peter Brouwer, formerly Dr. Joe Cusack on Love of Life, joins As the World Turns Dec. 17 as Bradley Hollister, the brother of Mickey Hollister, who in turn is an old friend of Lisa and Bob Hughes. Confused? Well, tune in and see if you can straighten the whole thing out...

Also, Barbara Rodell returns to As the World Turns in her popular role as Joyce Hughes later this month...

All My Children set designer, William Mickley, uses a special touch that has delighted viewers of the popular soap. He actually shows shots of real homes in the towns of Southport and New Canaan, to depict the fictional family houses of Pine Valley. Mickley feels, "The audience will get to know the families a little better by knowing where they live."

If you've been wondering why Love of Life isn't on the first Tuesday of every month, it's pre-empted by the children's show Razzmatazz. However, don't worry, you're not missing any of the plot. It's pre-empted on the entire network.

Allison Argo, formerly Cindy French on Search for Tomorrow (Tom Bergman's girlfriend), can be seen Dec. 15 on a CBS drama special, The Gift, in which she plays Gary Frank's (Willie on ABC's Family) girlfriend...

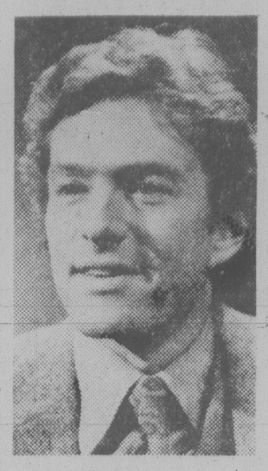
Plot Portents: Linda must get pregnant in a jiffy if she wants to get back in Bob's will on Days of Our Lives. Alex Marshall is about to leave town if he can ever get out of bed with Phyllis or Stephanie.

A befuddled Leslie, bruised mentally by her sister Lorie, wanders around New York on The Young and the Restless, finally finding some comfort in a bar run by Rick, a new man on the show.



Brouwer

Ed learns of Rita's pregnancy on Guiding Light, and is devastated because he might not be the father. Sara gives Greg Fairbanks some serious advice and Jackie gets quite a shock.

Rae is not happy with the news about Kim's job on Ryan's Hope. Also, Siobhan and Mary have a moment of truth.

Donna feels caught in the middle of Chuck's renewed relationship with little Charlie on All My Children. Kelly continues to question her possible involvement in Eddie's murder and Carl Jr. is not out of the woods yet.

volunteering

Volunteering is a serious job that can be fun. While making a contribution to the community, volunteers engage in activity that's entertaining, meaningful and free. With an amazingly wide variety of positions to choose from, volunteers can find a job which will be personally stimulating and enjoyable.

People seek different rewards from volunteering. For some, it offers an opportunity for new learning and growth. Others are looking for an entertaining and enjoyable way to spend leisure time. Volunteer work also brings people with similar interests together. It's a relaxed and natural way of meeting new people and developing meaningful friendships.

Speak to a volunteer who enjoys what he or she is doing. The enthusiasm is infectious.

Scan the following list of volunteer opportunities available through the Victoria Volunteer Bureau — one of them just might be your idea of fun!

An after-school program in the James Bay area needs volunteers who are interested in projects such as silk screening and paper crafts. Volunteers who like children aged 5 to 9 would enjoy this late afternoon job.

Enjoy mechanics or tinkering with cars? Vehicle maintenance and pre-apprenticeship programs at a high school in the Colwood area need people to help the teachers by sharing their knowledge and skills with eager teens.

Entertainers — musicians, dancers, bands, theatre groups, singers, puppeteers and children's theatre groups — are invited to perform at a hospital for mentally handicapped adults and children. The audience would be most appreciative and performances would be scheduled for daytime or evening.

Would you enjoy some constructive exercise and a chance to meet people? Two theatre groups need volunteers to help publicize their productions. Volunteers would distribute pamphlets to homes or posters to businesses in the Victoria area.

Speak a second language? A special education teacher is looking for a volunteer to teach a second language, perhaps French, to two very bright and delightful students, aged five and six. The teacher would provide orientation and support for the volunteer, who would come to the View Royal area school, preferably in the afternoon.

Dear Mike: My 1978 Colt is giving me defroster problems. The blower works fine, but the defroster clears only two small patches at the bottom of the windshield. Friends have told me the heater core is defective. They say this also explains the buildup of a thin film on the windows during hot summer days. Any connection? Cause and cure, please. — In A Fog

Dear Fog: No connection — the film is a sublimate from your Colt's vinyl upholstery. About your defroster, check for breaks or obstructions in the ducts to your windshield vents.

Dear Mike: The aluminum head on my Fiat 128 leaked because the previous owner hadn't torqued it down at 3000 miles as recommended. I need to change the head gasket but can't get a couple of studs out. They're frozen inside the aluminum. (The block is cast iron.) How do I loosen these studs without doing permanent damage? — Stuck in Aluminum

Dear Stuck: Use an acetylene torch to heat the aluminum head around the studs. Be sure you've drained all water from the engine and that you've removed all radiator connections.

Dear Mike; The windshield washer in our 1973 Dart quit working. Yet everything in the system checks out fine, including the pump motor at the bottom of the fluid reservoir. I'm stumped. Hope you can help. — No Squirt

Dear Squirt: Sometimes the pump impeller comes loose from the little electric motor in MoPar washer systems. To check, fill the reservoir, take loose the hose near the motor, and turn the motor on. If the motor spins but water merely dribbles out of the tube, it means the impeller's rounded out. And if that's the case, you'll have to replace at least the motor/pump but more likely the entire reservoir.

Feel free to send your automotive problems to Wheels, c/o Michael Lamm, Box 7607-B, Stockton, Calif. 95207. Due to the volume of mail, not all questions can be answered personally. Those of broadest reader interest will appear in future columns.

If you buy the wrong fire extinguisher, it may cost you your home some day.

When buying, the label of the Underwriters Laboratory of Canada is your assurance that the extinguisher is reliable, durable and will be effective in specific types and sizes of fires.

The types are designated on the label as A (fires in ordinary materials like wood, paper and cloth), B (fires in flammable liquids), C (fires arising in electrical equipment), and D (fir)es in flammable metals).

The size of fire against which the extinguisher can be expected to be effective is designated by a number. The larger the number, the larger the fire the unit can be expected to handle.

Look for an extinguisher that can be used on any fire likely to break out in your home.

This topic is one of 135 taped by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada.

For the entire tape, telephone Victoria Consumer Infotel, 592-1251, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 4 p.m. Friday. Ask for tape C29. A complete list of tape topics available in the Victoria free calling area can be picked up at any Greater Victoria public library, or either of the provincial or federal consumer and corporate affairs offices in Victoria.

ART EXHIBITION OF RECENT WATERCOLORS
By Egoyan

Joseph Egoyan

Since his last art showing at the Provincial Museum (almost 10 years ago) Egoyan did very little in art work. Recently, however, he has started again with a new approach and concept to the subject matter and technical expression. The theme now is "Scenes & Flowers" in watercolor — unlike the previous theme of "Birds" in oil painting. The new work is totally original and everyone is cordially invited to see the display at

HOW TO LOSE WEIGHT ON THE AMAZING
NO NONSENSE DIET

In May of 1979 Natures own no nonsense diet was introduced to British Columbians and Albertans through the Prince Health Food chain. Within weeks they were sold out and by the end of July thousands of people had lost weight the no nonsense way.

Unlike most diets to have come along this one is not dying out, but gaining greater momentum all the time. The reason for this phenomenal growth lies inthe fact that those people who have tried the diet have gotten positive results. For example I know of one particular young lady who has been overweight nearly all of her life. She wanted desperately to lose 25 lbs., and tried every possible means over the last two years. She exercised, joined clubs and went to monthly meetings. All to no avail. After reading about the no nonsense diet, she decided to give it a try before throwing in the towel. It worked. Within a month she lost 23 lbs., within two more weeks she lost another 10 lbs. She is so ecstatic about this diet that she preaches it to anyone who will listen and has most of her friends on it.

The product is a dieter's dream; two tablespoons in a glass of partially skimmed milk is equal in nutrition to a complete meal. But without all those nasty little calories. It has all the essential amino acids, and Vitamins and Minerals in a delicious powder base. The no nonsense formula comes in two flavours, luscious chocolate and tasty vanilla.

Here is a list of the Vitamins and Minerals it contains:

Vitamin A	Vitamin E	Vitamin C	Vitamin D
Thiamin	Riboflavin	Niacin B6, B12	Folid Acid Biotin
Choline	Calcium	Phosphorous	Iron
Iodine	Magnesium	Copper	Zinc
Potassium	Manganese	Sodium	d-Panothenic Acid

This is a wonderful diet because you are dealing with natural foods and not drugs, consequently it is safe and very healthy. A lot of people after going on this diet, have noticed remarkable improvement in their hair, skin and nails.

The no nonsense diet is Distributed by Superior Natural Formulas Ltd. and is available at Leading Retailers throughout Greater Victoria.

Keable probe stalled

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal police department succeeded Thursday in forcing the Keable commission to call a temporary halt to its investigation of police infiltration of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Under pressure from police lawyers, the Quebec inquiry voluntarily pledged in Quebec Superior Court that it would not call any Montreal police as witnesses for another week. The inquiry plans to resume hearings Dec. 4.

Commissioner Jean Keable, through his lawyers, also agreed not to divulge the identities of more Montreal police informants without first asking permission from a Superior Court judge. Two "information sources" have already been named in public hearings.

The promises hold until Dec. 7, the date on which Chief Justice Jules Deschenes will begin a hearing on the city police petition for two permanent court orders which would:

—Block the commission from questioning Det.-Sgt. Emile Bisaillon, an anti-terrorist officer, about one of his alleged informants, Francois Seguin. In effect, this would prohibit testimony by any city police officer about confidential information sources.

—Force Keable "to abstain from communicating to anyone" the identities of police informers. The order would also cover any documents or tapes tending to identify them.

The court case left Keable hanging in mid-air, just two days after his shock allegation at a public hearing that Seguin, a suspected FLQ activist, was a longtime police informant and that Det.-Sgt. Bisaillon was his police contact, or "controller."

After denouncing a tearful and physically-shaken Seguin, without providing any hard evidence, Keable quickly called Bisaillon to the stand in a fruitless effort to force him to confirm the accusation.

After abruptly dismissing the witness, he then issued a subpoena for Seguin's police file and tape recordings of a private converstion between Seguin, Bisaillon and inquiry lawyers.

Tuesday night, police lawyers filed a petition contesting Keable's legal authority to ask Bisaillon about Seguin. The officer was to have appeared before the inquiry early Wednesday but the hearing was cancelled because of the court case.

On Thursday, in order to streamline proceedings before Chief Justice Deschenes, the inquiry agreed not to call any Montreal police witnesses until the case was heard.

Police lawyers Paul Normandin and Guy Lafrance then attempted to plug another hole by presenting a second petition for an injunction barring any further public statements by Keable himself about police sources. They argued that Keable's statement Tuesday, not based on any police testimony, had caused "irreparable prejudice" to police.

In his outburst, the petition said, Keable "went beyond his role as a neutral, calm and impartial investigator and stepped down onto the courtroom floor, acting as both a judge and a prosecutor."

Chief Justice Deschenes agreed to hear both police petitions Dec. 7.

Writers angry over low pay

EDMONTON (CP) — The Periodical Writers Association of Canada says poor pay may be strangling Canada's freelance writing industry.

Fee surveys by the association show freelance rates have not kept up with inflation. The result is the loss of Canada's best magazine writers to other media and a drop in the quality of magazine writing.

The association, a relatively exclusive club for 250 Canadian freelance writers, is lobbying for higher fees.

The association found that in 1976, freelance writers earned $13,295 a year from all sources, $7,025 coming from freelance work for newspapers and magazines.

In 1978, the average gross income rose to $16,059 but only $6,462 came from periodicals.

With the top rate for a well-researched article touching about $1,000, a freelance writer would have to produce one first-string article every 3½ weeks to gross $14,000 annually.

"The editorial costs at one of Canada's largest magazines are only five per cent of the total budget," said Ann Pappert, the association's national vice-president. "In effect, the writers are being asked to subsidize the magazine's other (increasing) costs."

Pappert said that while editors say they can't afford to pay more, owners are investing magazine profits in other ventures.

The result of the inflation-squeezed fees is that the quality of articles suffers.

"It becomes to the writer's advantage to do the shortest and easiest article and that can't be to the advantage of writing," Ms. Pappert said.

"It will have to stop or magazines will only be able to attract writers who are just beginning and are going someplace else."

Several magazine editors agree with the association.

Jane Gale Hughes, editor of Homemaker's, said magazine writers have been underpaid for years, although they are not underpaid at Homemaker's.

Bayliner Saratoga Express

Outfitted for cruising, this boat has a well planned galley, a dinette that makes into a double berth, enclosed head and loads of storage space. The cabin comes with curtains as standard equipment. This large cockpit is ideal for fishing with hardtop and stand-up camper canvas. This model is a fisherman's dream as steering and controls are at hand in the cockpit and there is a large fish box built into the transom. Blue hull and hardtop, white deck. This boat must go before we move. BUY NOW AND SAVE. Stock No. 151.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Tests for telling when to water

gardening
hilda beastall

Water requirements by plants being grown indoors (windowsills, sunporches, frost-free greenhouses) are particularly important during December and January. In fact, they need the same understanding as those for outdoor garden plants in summer.

In both cases, the need is for "sufficient" moisture.

The difference is that with low light energy from the sun in winter, less moisture is used by the indoor plants because of slower growth; while summer outdoors is a time for stabilizing prolific new growth which sprouted in early spring.

Watering of plants in containers cannot be done on a routine basis for in-a home collection there may be 50 or 100 plants each with its own requirements. It is not enough to say "water carefully." Perhaps this phrase should be altered to "water as needed" or better still "don't water if soil is already moist."

In winter, it is noticeable that certain plants will have a rest period.

Mostly these are kinds which grow outdoors here normally and either lost their leaves for December and January or die down to ground level for the same period.

Now, it may be argued that the same plants outdoors will get all the winter rainfall down to their roots. True enough, but natural soil drainage and position in the landscape prevents rotting of the roots. And cool to cold temperatures hold back premature top growth.

Containers indoors or in a cool porch or greenhouse have no exchange of moisture with surrounding soil. If kept saturated it remains that way for days, preventing air from entering to keep the soil fresh by root action. Inactive roots may rot before spring.

With all container-grown plants indoors the surface soil is not the complete indication of the water content in the soil below. Tapping clay pots for sound was a reliable guide for several generations of greenhouse gardeners. A dull thud indicated plenty of moisture; a bell-like note meant soil almost dry throughout the pot.

Today with pots of plastic, glazed pottery, metal or glass, other methods of detecting water requirements must be learned. Most reliable to my thinking is learning the relative weight of each potted plant when freshly watered, and when the soil is almost dried through, thus requiring watering.

After a week or so of experience, those of similar size and watering requirements can be grouped together. Those needing only token watering in winter to prevent complete drying of the plant tissues can be kept in a spot receiving less light but not in darkness.

As familiarity with the home plants increases, their watering needs can be at once assessed by appearance. Lack of lustre in leaves normally shining with health indicates that moisture at roots is barely enough; more is needed.

Wilting of leaves may be caused by either complete dryness or the opposite condition, excessive moisture. In both conditions the roots are unable to function normally in their work of taking in soil nutrients.

When the soil is dry, the roots can find no moisture in which the nutrients are available; in wet soil the roots lack the tiny air pockets between the soil particles which are just one of the requirements in root activity.

Water the potted plants only when needed. If in doubt, and the plant appears healthy, wait until you try one of the three tests described above.

New Anglican church ready for christening

The Cordova Bay Anglican congregation christens its new church, St. Davjd's-by-the-Sea, tonight.

The $130,000 building, to be dedicated at 7.30 p.m. by retiring Bishop Roy Gartrell, still needs a few finishing touches like installation of carpet and renovation of the organ before it is truly completed, but is near enough to completion for the dedication to go ahead.

The congregation was established in the mid-1940s when Cordova Bay was still a rural area, and has been worshipping in what was basically designed as a multipurpose hall for the past 30 years.

The congregation decided to build in January and foundation work started in July on the building, designed by local architect Donald MacPherson.

The building measures 42 by 45 feet with the chancel at the most easterly corner. The baptistry and main entrance are diagonally opposite. The ceiling at this point is 10 feet high, sweeping to nearly 30 feet above the altar.

The high ceiling made it possible to place the organ and choir in lofts and make maximum space of the floor space to seat the congregation.

Pews will be arranged in an arc centring on the altar, behind which is a tall narrow leaded-glass window, with two more indows backing the font.

The local congregation raised $50,000 towards the cost, with another $30,000 in volunteer labor. Additional money came from diocesan and Anglican Foundation funds.

Services Monday for retired fireman

Funeral services will be held at McCall Bros. Chapel Monday at 10:30 a.m. for Edward C. Ball, retired assistant chief of the Victoria Fire Department, who died suddenly in Victoria Wednesday. He was 63.

He is survived by his widow, Freda; son, Russell of Victoria; daughter, Linda of Vancouver; three grandchildren; one brother, Gordon of Victoria; three sisters, Mrs. J. (Doreen) Bryant, Mrs. Shirley Leroux of Victoria, Mrs. S. (Florence) Henderson of Calgary; nieces and nephews.

Mishap ends in death

A Duncan man has died in Victoria General Hospital from injuries received in an industrial accident at the Western Forest Industries' Honeymoon Bay plant.

RCMP said Ernest Anderson, 60, was struck Wednesday when lumber fell from a truck.

There's no pricetag on estate because realtors don't know what to ask

Ghost with Getty mansion

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

GUILDFORD, England (AP) — Sutton Place, the Tudor mansion where the late J. Paul Getty commanded his worldwide oil empire, is for sale — complete with great hall, the ghost of Anne Boleyn and a 1,000-acre estate.

The ghost will be a bonus for whoever buys the two-storey, red-brick mansion with its four farms, 16 cottages and its own church.

"Members of the Getty family have seen the ghost, but the late Mr. Getty never saw it himself," said Barbara Wallace, who manages the house for the Getty Oil Co. of Los Angeles. "He didn't believe in such things."

There is no price on Sutton Place because Lintott Residential, a real estate firm, isn't sure what to ask.

British real estate sources estimated the eventual price around £5 million, the equivalent of more than $10 million.

Getty paid £300,000 (then $840,000) in 1959 for the estate, which is just outside Guildford, 50 kilometres southwest of London. He used it as his European base and died there, aged 83, on June 6, 1976.

"We have spent a fortune on maintaining the house," said Alan Wallace of Vancouver, managing director of Getty Oil in Britain and Barbara's husband. "We need more office space, which we cannot get permission to build here in the green belt, so we are moving to London."

Anne Boleyn's ghost is said to appear in the Oriel bedroom, where there is a canopied, four-poster bed.

"The ghosts of a man and a maid-servant have also been seen, and doors open where there are no doors," said Mrs. Wallace.

Anne Boleyn romped with King Henry VIII in the oak-paneled mansion four centuries ago, before becoming his second wife. She lost her head for adultery and one of her alleged lovers, Sir Francis Weston, died with her. His father, Sir Richard Weston, built Sutton Place in the 1520s.

The house stayed in the family until the end of the 19th century and had only two owners before Getty — newspaper tycoon Lord Northcliffe and the Duke of Sutherland.

On a recent November day, with fog shrouding the house and fields along the River Wey, the house felt remarkably warm, with log fires blazing in massive fireplaces and 168 oil-heated hot water radiators turned on.

"It was colder when Mr. Getty was alive," Wallace said. He was a pretty tough old boy, and he didn't have central heating, just coal or log fires and electric blow heaters."

Sutton Place has a domestic staff of 28 including Swiss cook Kathleen Aepli who said Getty was a "wonderful employer.

"There was never any need to worry about money," she said, pulling feathers from the tail of a cock pheasant.

Doors in the house have labels so guests know where they are. In one guest bedroom is the book: How to Avoid Matrimony. Getty had five failed marriages.

Jailed dissident 'extremely ill'

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The wife of jailed Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky said Thursday he is extremely ill in a Soviet prison and can no longer read.

Avital Shcharansky appealed to the United States to pressure the Soviet Union to release him "before it is too late."

Shcharansky told the National Press Club: "He is very sick . . . He can't read any more, his eyes hurt when he writes. It took him 25 days to write just one letter."

Her husband was accused of being a U.S. spy and jailed by Soviet authorities in 1977.

Mrs. Shcharansky said he is being kept in solitary confinement in a jail at Chistopol, 800 kilometres from Moscow. "No one cares about him in that prison," she said.

Victoria Exchanges 477 & 721 go electronic.

On December 1, 1979 Victoria telephone exchanges 477 & 721 will be converted to the new electronic system which B.C. Tel is busy advancing throughout the province.

The whole idea is not only highly sophisticated but a significant step towards bringing you more efficient service.

Already 28 exchanges in B.C. have been converted to take advantage of the new electronic system. One more switchover is planned for 1979 and a further six are planned for 1980.

By 1981, nearly half the phones in B.C. will be electronically controlled. By 1985, three-quarters of the phones will be converted.

As you would expect, a conversion such as this is a huge project. The benefits, especially in the long run, are equally substantial.

Cost control - and its ultimate effect on the rates you will pay for phone service in the future - is the major benefit to telephone customers. For many reasons - among them maintenance efficiency, space-saving, operational reliability - electronic switching technology helps us to meet customer needs effectively and, at the same time, to hold the line as best we can against the costs of providing service to you.

Top IRA criminal gets nine years

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish republic's Special Criminal Court on Thursday sentenced Desmond O'Hare, wanted for questioning in 27 political killings in the neighboring Northern Ireland, to nine years in prison for firearms offences in the republic.

O'Hare, 23, is described by police as the most-wanted Irish Republican Army guerrilla in strife-torn Northern Ireland..

Judge James D'Arcy, in sentencing O'Hare, told him: "People like you, who live by the sword, should die by the sword."

The IRA, almost exclusively Roman Catholic, is fighting to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and reunite it with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic republic. O'Hare comes from the IRA stronghold of South Armagh in Northern Ireland.

He is the second suspected IRA terrorist jailed in two weeks. The same anti-terrorist court last week jailed for life Thomas McMahon, identified by police as a top IRA explosives expert, for the bomb-murder of Lord Mountbatten, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth slain in the republic last August.

The no-jury court jailed O'Hare as British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher attended a European Common Market summit meeting here.

Britain has long complained that the republic has not moved strongly enough against IRA operations, and government officials here hoped that O'Hare's sentence will convince the British that Dublin is serious in its anti-terrorist efforts.

Army avoids Soviet hardships

By DAVID WILLIS
Christian Science Monitor

MOSCOW, U.S.S.R.—From the weary shopper trudging in search of needles, thread, soap and toothpaste to Leonid Brezhnev looking for energy savings and greater efficiency, the economic word from the Soviet Union this year is grimmer than ever.

Although this does not mean any foreseeable weakening of the Soviets as a military power around the world, it does bring Kremlin planners one year closer to some basic decisions on how to revive their huge, but sagging, economy.

It leaves the military with the money it needs—but raises the long-term prospect that the Soviet consumer may have to suffer more and more to keep military spending intact.

This year is the worst for the economy in general for several decades, Western experts conclude from the figures emerging from two days of party and government meetings here.

Prospects for the next few years also look poor--and Brezhnev has just let loose an unprecedentedly strong blast of criticism (in Pravda, Nov. 28) naming names of officials held responsible.

"I've never seen a (Soviet) speech like it," commented one Western expert after wading through the long text--only some points of which were distributed by the Tass news service in English.

Brezhnev also blasted economic planners at a similar meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee this time last year, but he did not name names then.

At one point this time, he said consumer shortages--including soap, laundry detergent, powder for clothes washers, toothbrushes and toothpaste, needles, thread and sheets for babies' cribs--were caused by "bad management, irresponsibility, and stupid bungling."

Brezhnev spelled out a growing energy problem, shortages of metal and other raw materials, a transportation crisis and the apparent failure of plans to raise efficiency and quality of work. Also admitted were erratic supplies of meat and grain.

Yet no new solutions emerged from the maze of figures and criticisms presented both by Brezhnev to the Central Committee and by the chairman of the State Planning Committee, Nikolai Baibakov, to the opening day of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) Nov. 28.

"It's the same old formula," commented one Western source. "The party is always right, the plan is usually right, but the men who are supposed to carry out the plan are too often wrong. That's the Brezhnev analysis."

Brezhnev speaks of the need for more "democratic centralism," which he said allowed for grass-roots ideas. Western experts say nothing less than a radical new structure is needed--allowing local managers a far greater say over ordering and using materials, and fixing prices so that they reflect demand instead of an artificial plan.

But such changes would the control of the party--and the hallmark of the Brezhnev era has been to avoid anything like the tampering with the party apparatus that helped end the career of his predecessor and patron, the late Nikita Khrushchev.

The poor state of the economy is seen in these figures: industry, supposed to grow 5.7 percent this year, is currently running only at about 3.6--the slowest growth since before World War II. Next year's target, Baibakov said, would be only 4.5 percent lower than this year's.

Oil and coal are both below target this year. Oil production is announced at 585 million tons, leaving Moscow as the world's highest producer (though not exporter) but 8 million tons below target, after barely making last year's target.

Growth depends on Western Siberian fields, which are far north and deep down and need expensive foreign technology to exploit. With fewer cars and private homes, and virtually no imported oil, the Soviet problem is different from the American energy crisis--but Brezhnev and other officials kept hammering at the need to conserve, indicating problems nonetheless.

As for coal, this year's production will be 724 million tons, 28 million below target. Steel also is below target for the year. Natural gas is better--almost on target this year. Next year's target has not been lowered.

The grain harvest was announced at 179 million tons, the lowest since 1975. Soviet officials blame a harsh winter and a spring drought.

The crucial question now is meat. Soviet shoopers want more of it, but Brezhnev told the Central Committee that so far there has been "very little growth" compared to a huge investment of money. This year the country will produce about the same as last (15.3 million metric tons), well short of the target (16.2 million).

Meanwhile, official military spending is reduced from 17.2 billion to 17.1 billion rubles to support Soviet calls for less defense spending by America. The West sees the figure as partial only, and estimates actual Soviet spending as many times that amount.

Flu virus gang attack baffles medics

By
HAROLD M. SCHMECK
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Public health and virus specialists, often puzzled by the behavior of influenza, are especially baffled this year as they gird for the annual winter war.

Three flu viruses are circulating simultaneously, a profusion of different types that contradicts conventional wisdom.

Ordinarily, one virus of influenza A, the kind associated with worldwide epidemics, quickly supplants its predecessor. For the past two winters, two sub-types of A and one type of the other major category of flu virus, influenza B, have been circulating in the world simultaneously. Sometimes both A sub-types have been found in the same local outbreak.

This situation had not been encountered previously, said Dr. Walter Dowdle of the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta. The apparent anomaly shows that scientists still have much to learn about the behavior of the flu virus.

Moreover, one of the three flu viruses appears so improbably similar to a virus of 1950 that some scientists have suggested it might have been preserved frozen somewhere for more than a quarter of a century before getting loose again to plague mankind. That is one of the type A viruses, which disappeared late in the 1950s, but emerged in 1977 as the Russian flu.

Specimens of the original 1950 virus are still preserved in the freezers of many laboratories here and abroad. Strong similarities between the Russian flu virus of 1977 and the 1950 strain were noted early by Dr. Dowdle and Dr. Alan P. Kendal of the Centre for Disease Control.

Dr. Maurice Hilleman, vaccine expert of Merck Sharp & Dohme, speculated that the virus might have escaped accidentally from some laboratory freezer.

More recently, scientists at Mt. Sinai School of Medicine have used the latest scientific techniques to "fingerprint" the virus' inner core.

They found it was closely similar to the older virus.

In a report in Nature, Drs. Katsuhisa Nakajima, Ulrich Desselberger and Peter Palese at Mt. Sinai suggested possible explanations for the strange similarity.

The virus might have lurked unchanged in latent, undetectable infections in humans, or it might have persisted unchanged and undetected in some animal species. But neither of these two hypotheses fits well with the known propensity of the flu virus to change its chracteristics gradually.

"Finally," said the report, "it is possible that a 1950 influenza virus was truly frozen in nature or elsewhere and that such a strain was only recently reintroduced into man."

Meanwhile, the Russian flu virus that appeared in 1977 has been changing, as flu viruses customarily do. Current strains are easily distinguishable from both their 1977 ancestor and from the 1950 virus.

Another current enigma centres on something that hasn't happened. Some scientists, citing the history of flu's global ebb and flow, have believed major changes in the virus can be expected roughly every 11 years, often causing worldwide epidemics known as pandemics.

By that timetable, a new pandemic strain should be here now, but is not. Instead, for the past two winters, the two sub-types of influenza A and one of influenza B have been circulating.

Influenza A viruses are the kind that sweep across the world periodically after big changes in the virus occur. These changes, occurring for unknown reasons, catch the world defenseless because most people lack immunity to the new virus.

Recent examples were the Asian flu of 1957 and the Hong Kong flu of 1968. The most famous of all, the 1918 pandemic, was one of history's greatest health disasters, claiming an estimated 20 million lives, half a million in the United States.

Influenza A and influenza B, which is seldom implicated in pandemics, sometimes appear together. But why have the two A-types appeared simultaneously?

No one knows. The evidence this year is that replacement of one A-type by another may indeed be taking place. But the replacement is unusual in two respects: it is slower than previous transitions and reintroduces virus characteristics to which many people over the age of 25 retain some immunity because they experienced much the same thing before, in the 1950s.

Because flu viruses change gradually with time, each year's variety is named for a recently isolated specimen of virus. The Russian flu got its name from outbreaks in the Soviet Union late in 1977, where it first came to world attention.

The other type appeared several years earlier, and was labeled A Victoria because it was first discovered in Victoria, Australia. Its descendents now seem to be greatly on the wane, with the Russian flu ascendant.

Dr. Dowdle, who does not believe in any necessarily regular cycle of pandemic viruses occurring roughly every 11 years, says the long expected new A-type virus has in fact already been in circulation for two years as the Russian flu.

Although world health specialists were first alerted to the outbreaks in the Soviet Union, it was later revealed that the virus had been present in China as early as May 1977. Only later that year did it appear in the Soviet Union and thence spread to Europe and America, causing epidemics mainly among people under the age of 25.

Carter aide probed in cocaine incident

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — White House aide Hamilton Jordan has the president's confidence and will remain at his post while a prosecutor investigates charges that he sniffed cocaine at a discotheque, a presidential spokesman says.

Said press secretary Jody Powell: "It would be an incredible injustice for a person to be forced from office because of a preliminary investigation which did not imply there was substance to the charges."

Jordan, White House chief of staff, said he was disappointed about the appointment of a special prosecutor, repeated his denial of the charge and pledged to co-operate fully in the inquiry.

A special three-judge court, acting on Attorney-General Benjamin Civiletti's recommendation, Thursday named New York lawyer Arthur Christy to conduct the investigation.

Civiletti urged the appointment of a special prosecutor even though he said a preliminary investitation turned up no evidence to substantiate a prosecution of Jordan.

The allegations against Jordan were first made by the owners of Studio 54, a New York discotheque, who said they saw Jordan sniff cocaine on a visit to the club in 1978.

But the naming of a prosecutor comes at a bad time for Carter, who faces a challenge from Senator Edward Kennedy for the Democratic party presidential nomination next year.

Civiletti, in his report to the three judges, said the information about Jordan's alleged cocaine use was given to government prosecutors by Steve Rubell and Ian Schraeger, the nightclub owners, in an effort to have tax-evasion charges against them dropped.

The two have since pleaded guilty to the charges and are awaiting sentencing. Rubell last month told a television audience that Jordan "took a hit in each nostril" at the disco.

The justice department's preliminary investigation of Jordan was required by a 1978 government ethics act. The act, passed by Congress after the Watergate scandal, requires the department to conduct a preliminary investigation of any serious allegations against senior government officials.

Civiletti indicated his own skepticism of the charges against Jordan. But he said the strict limitations of the the law require further investigation.

Possession of an illegal drug such as cocaine carries a penalty of up to one year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

After being sworn in as special prosecutor, Christy promised a complete and impartial investigation.

UN backs PLO role

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Two measures, one urging PLO participation in all Middle East negotiations and the other condemning separate treaties by Arab states, won overwhelming approval in the General Assembly.

Delegates voted on the two draft resolutions Thursday at the close of a four-day debate on Palestine. Both resolutions were opposed by the United States.

The vote was 117-14, with 16 abstentions, to approve the resolution sponsored by Algeria and 10 other countries, urging that the Palestine Liberation Organization be invited to take part in all Middle East negotiations under the auspices of the United Nations.

A second draft resolution, sponsored by nine countries, condemning separate treaties and declaring the Israeli-Egyptian treaty invalid, was approved 75-33, with 37 abstentions.

Egypt proposed an amendment deleting the paragraph in the second resolution that specifically condemned the Camp David accords, but it was defeated by 56 votes to 51, with 30 abstentions. Egypt and Israel signed the accords in Washington last March.

U.S. delegate Richard Petree forced a further vote on grounds the Egyptian amendment should be decided by a two-thirds majority.

The U.S. request was defeated 65 votes to 53, with 19 abstentions.

In earlier debate Thursday, a special message from PLO chairman Yasser Arafat was read by Ahmed Dajani, a PLO representative, to mark the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People.

In the statement, Arafat alleged Palestinian camps in Lebanon had become "testing grounds" for American weapons in the hands of Israeli armed forces.

Israel has acknowledged using American-made F-15 Eagle warplanes on at least one occasion earlier this year in raids against Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon. The Israeli attacks followed Palestinian guerrilla raids into Israel.

After a protest from Washington, Israel stopped using the plane on its missions into Lebanon.

Arafat described Israeli settlers on the West Bank of the Jordan as "savage wolves" desecrating Palestinian Arab land.

"This armed group plays the role of a forward column for the Israeli occupation army," he said in his message to the meeting convened by the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People.

SALT II may get axe

WASHINGTON (CP) — A report drafted by a decisive majority of the Senate armed services committee concludes that the second U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty is unfair, unverifiable and "not in the national security interests of the United States."

A committee majority, said by Senate sources to be 11 to six and perhaps greater, is prepared to recommend the Senate not ratify SALT II until major changes are made.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration is expected to yield somewhat to demands for higher defence spending as a price for support of the SALT II treaty, U.S. Senate sources report.

But it remains to be seen whether the move can rescue the embattled treaty.

A solid majority of the Senate armed services committee is reported to be pressing for a vote next week to recommend that the Senate not ratify SALT II unless the pact is drastically revised.

And Frank Moore, the administration's chief lobbyist on Capitol Hill, acknowledged that there is no chance the Senate will be able to complete work on the treaty this year.

Thus, the matter will be swept into the uncertain political currents of 1980 with its eventual ratification becoming less and less likely as time passes.

Victims get $5M

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. federal court jury awarded damages totalling more than $5 million Thursday to three of 10 survivors of an Eastern Airlines jetliner crash near Charlotte more than five years ago.

After deliberating for two days, the jury awarded actual damages of $3,027,500 to Richard Arnold of Portland, Ore, and $1,137,500 to Frank Mihalek of Charleston, S.C. Jurors also awarded $847,000 in damages to Helen Weston, 64, of Charlotte, whose husband was among the 72 persons killed in the crash Sept. 11, 1974.

The plaintiffs had sought damages totalling $20.5 million. The suits sought actual and punitive damages, but the jury refused to order Eastern to pay punitive damages.

Diamonds stolen

DALLAS (AP) — A bearded gunman made off with an estimated $1 million in diamonds Thursday when he commandeered a jeweler's car with a briefcase full of gems in the back seat, police said.

Victor Katz, 40, told police he had put the briefcase with the diamonds in the back seat of his car and was preparing to leave his North Dallas business when a man got into the car from the passenger side.

He pulled a gun and warned Katz not to look back because they were being followed, Katz told police. He then directed Katz into a nearby alley where he ordered the jeweler out of the car and drove off with the briefcase and Katz' wallet, police said.

Katz told police he asked to keep the car, but said the gunman told him: " 'You'll get it back, don't worry.' "

Now Zeppo is gone

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Zeppo Marx — the last of the Marx Brothers and straight man to his three zany brothers, Groucho, Harpo and Chico — died early today at Eisenhower Medical Centre. He was 78.

Nursing supervisor Pat Garrett said Marx died after a long illness, but declined to specify what it was. She said he was admitted to hospital Nov. 25.

Zeppo was the best-looking, and in the movies he always got the girl.

But Zeppo didn't fit in with the zaniness of the others and left the group after the release of their fifth film, Duck Soup, in 1933.

He had handled the comedy team's business matters and played romantic relief in the earliest and probably best Marx films, The Cocoanuts, Animal Crackers, Monkey Business, Horse Feathers and Duck Soup.

Zeppo was born Herbert Marx in New York in 1901.

The comedians made audiences laugh with their irreverent attempts at dismantling the establishment.

They were contemptuous of authority at a time when most young people behaved, and their nihilistic humor influenced later comedy writing.

After The Cocoanuts was released in 1929, many would-be comedians began imitating Groucho's crouching, loping walk; parted their hair in the middle; wore wire-rimmed glasses and square moustaches, and wiggled a cigar.

Groucho and Gummo died in 1977, Chico in 1961 and Harpo in 1964.

Zeppo was married and divorced twice.

Pope visits orthodox church

ISTANBUL (AP) — John Paul II took one more step toward uniting Catholics of the Latin and Eastern rites today by becoming the first Pope in nine centuries to attend a full Orthodox church service.

However, he stopped short of celebrating mass jointly with Patriarch Demetrius I, breaking the bread and drinking the wine symbolizing Christ's body and blood.

He also apparently was unaware of the bombing of nine bank branches in Istanbul shortly after midnight by a Moslem extremist group protesting his visit to the former St. Sophia mosque.

Police sources said the blasts shattered windows, destroyed furniture and caused structural damage, but no injuries. The banks were at least 10 kilometres away from the residence of the Vatican envoy, where the Pope was staying.

The Pope told Istanbul's small Roman Catholic community Thursday night at his first public mass of his three-day Turkish visit: "I dare to hope that the day (of unity) is near. Personally I hope it is very near.

"I will participate in the celebration of the feast of St. Andrew," the Pope continued, referring to the patron of the Orthodox church and senior brother of the Apostle Peter.

"But we will not be able to concelebrate. That is the most painful sign of the misfortune introduced in the only church of Christ through division."

The Roman Catholic Church and the Eastern Orthodox Churches split in the Great Schism of 1054, after a long-seething conflict over the authority of the Pope. Pope Leo IX and Patriarch Michael Cerularius of Constantinople, the name for Istanbul until 1930, each excommunicated the other. Since then, no Pope has ever attended an Orthodox mass or Eucharistic liturgy.

Rapprochement between the two churches began when Pope Paul VI and Patriarch Athenagoras embraced at a meeting in Jerusalem in 1964. Three years later, the two churches lifted their mutual excommunications and exchanged visits.

Now, following in the footsteps of Pope Paul VI, John Paul prepared the ground for a 60-member joint theological commission to overcome some of the difficulties still separating the two churches.

Besides papal primacy and different attitudes on the priestly celibacy and divorce — the Orthodox grant divorce on grounds of adultery and allow married men to be ordained — the 13 Eastern churches are sometimes fiercely independent.

Turkey has ignored the ecumenical aspect of John Paul's visit, which involves the tiny community of 60,000 Orthodox and 26,000 Catholics in this Moslem nation of 45 million.

On Thursday, the Pope visited St. Sophia, once the largest church in Christendom, which was turned first into a mosque and then into a museum. "It's impressive, it's impressive," the Pope told the curator.

Another DC-10 hair-raiser

LONDON (AP) — An Air New Zealand DC-10 jetliner from Philadelphia made a safe emergency landing at London's Heathrow Airport today after the pilot reported problems with the plane's wing flaps.

The incident followed the death of 257 people on Wednesday when a similar Air New Zealand DC-10 slammed into a mountainside while on a sightseeing flight over the Antarctic.

British Airways said it had leased the Air New Zealand jet which landed in London with 35 passengers aboard.

A spokesman said the plane's pilot had alerted authorities at Heathrow, the world's busiest international airport, that his instruments indicated the wing flaps — which slow down the aircraft for landing — were not operating.

British Airways said later it was not immediately clear whether the problem was just faulty instruments.

The plane bypassed its normal Boston stop on the overnight flight because of the problem. The captain decided to fly to Heathrow where longer runways provide more distance for stopping.

Heathrow declared a full-scale emergency and the runway was lined with fire engines, ambulances and police vehicles.

The McDonnell Douglas DC-10 has been plagued by problems this year. One of them crashed after losing an engine on takeoff from Chicago last summer, killing 273 persons. The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration grounded the planes for 37 days after the crash to probe structural defects in the planes.

The director of the British Safety Council, James Tye, has advised passengers not to fly the DC-10 and two European lawmakers are demanding that they be grounded again.

Patient, doctor are miles apart

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman suspected of having deadly rabies is hoping to survive it with the help of doctors who have teamed up on an experimental treatment despite being separated by a continent.

The 39-year-old patient is at Georgetown University Medical Centre in Washington where a team of doctors is working by telephone with a California physician.

Since Nov. 20, under the long-distance direction of Dr. Thomas Merigan of Stanford University Medical School, the woman has been getting injections of small quantities of interferon.

This difficult-to-get hormone-like substance is effective against many viruses and has shown promise against rabies virus in laboratory experiments and some animal tests.

The only other time the interferon treatment for rabies was tried with a human in this country was when Merigan intervened in a Washington state case, which turned out not to be rabies.

Dr. Vincent Garagusi, director of infectious diseases at Georgetown, said Thursday that it is too early to tell whether the woman is responding to the interferon and the standard rabies vaccines she also is getting.

But doctors are encouraged by the woman being alert and apparently in good condition after entering the hospital two weeks ago with early rabies symptoms, including fever, headache and tingling sensations in her body.

Oil dollars pouring from Canada

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Despite generous tax concessions to the Canadian oil industry for domestic exploration, the major companies poured $663 million into foreign investments in 1978.

Another $261 million was invested by the companies in non-petroleum related industries, according to a federal study which was examined by the Commons natural resources committee Thursday.

The report showed total funds available to the key 31 companies surveyed were more than $8 billion during the 12 month period, up nearly 30 per cent from 1977. The increase was due mainly to increased prices for oil and natural gas.

Income tax payable to federal and provincial governments decreased by 13.5 per cent to $952 million, while deferred income taxes rose by 41.5 per cent to $753 million, the survey showed.

Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn promised the committee the goverment would examine the report which covered 90 per cent of the oil industry.

He said the government would analyze the information to determine whether foreign investment of revenue generated in Canada was beneficial to domestic energy requirements.

Hnatyshyn told the Commons natural resources committee those figures reflected government tax policies designed to encourage reinvestment of industry revenue in exploration and development of new energy supplies.

Petroleum investment in Canada measured as a percentage of total sources of funds was about 56 per cent, down three per cent from 1977.

The survey said rapidly rising operating expenses were responsible for an increase in total net income after taxes of 10 per cent, less than the 15 per cent increase in gross revenue.

There was a marked increase in exploration expenditures from $1.6 billion in 1977 to $2.1 billion the following year.

The energy minister said the report indicates a significant portion of revenue generated from oil and gas production is being invested in development of new energy sources.

The industry has already generated record profits in the first nine months of 1979.

17th Century pot goes for $1,150

BAYREUTH, West Germany (Reuter) — A 17th Century chamber pot decorated with lions and hearts fetched $1,150 Thursday at an auction devoted to that most basic of receptacles.

A pot used in England two centuries later fetched $1,250. Designed to look like a soup tureen, complete with lid and colorful floral Chinese motif, it outstripped its reserve price of $460.

The pots came in glass, porcelain, tin, pewter, copper, brass and just plain earthenware.

The 17th Century vessel, decorated in blue and white with two prancing lions and three sets of hearts, was the oldest in a show, which prospered from what the auctioneer said is West Germany's latest craze.

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. say they will temporarily lay off 31,390 auto workers — all but a small number of them at Ford — because of the latest slump in auto sales.

The layoffs come in addition to 9,400 layoffs announced earlier by Ford, and raise the number of auto workers temporarily idle to 40,790.

The figures do not include workers laid off indefinitely — a total of about 100,000 at latest count — as opposed to temporary layoffs, where workers can expect to be called back to their jobs after a given period of time.

Auto production in the week ended Nov. 24 was about 17 per cent behind last year's pace, said Ward's Automotive Reports, a trade publication.

Production will be suspended for one week beginning Monday at 11 Ford car and truck assembly plants to help dealers balance inventories, said William Scollard, general manager of Ford's automotive assembly division.

Scollard said the 30,650 layoffs include 27,650 workers in the United States and 3,000 hourly workers in Canada, all at the St. Thomas, Ont., assembly plant. The Canadian workers will be idle one week.

The number of workers to be laid off at each plant include: Wayne, Mich., 3,550; Wixom, Mich., 5,000; Chicago, 3,500; Mahhah, N.J., 3,100; Metuchen, N.J., 2,450; San Jose, Calif., 1,950; and St. Louis, Mo., 2,100.

Suspended truck production also will make idle 4,200 workers at Ford's Lorain, Ohio, assembly plant, which produces vans and at the Ohio truck plant at Avon Lake; and 1,800 at the Kansas City, Mo., light truck production plant.

The 9,400 Ford workers idled last week will remain off the job next week as part of a two-week car and truck production suspension announced last week for Atlanta, Ga., Los Angeles, Louisville, Ky., Lorain and San Jose, Calif.

Chrysler's one-week layoffs of 740 workers for inventory will be at the Trenton and Sterling Heights, Mich., plants, the company said.

Data confirms U.S. recession

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A large decline in the government's index of "leading indicators" was reported today, supporting forecasts that the economy is sliding into a recession.

The U.S. Commerce Department said the index, which is supposed to indicate the future course of the economy, dropped 0.9 percent in October. Futhermore, the department revised the index for Septmeber to show a rise of only 0.2 percent, compared with the preliminary estimate of 0.8 percent issued a month ago.

These figures and other revisions were in line with the consensus of forecasters that the economy is in or at the brink of a recession. The index has declined in three of the last four months.

U.S. blasts Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States today accused Chile's military rulers of condoning "international terrorism" in the Orlando Letelier murder and ordered a sharp cut in diplomatic, economic and military ties with Chile.

The move fell just short of a complete break.

"Chile's deplorable conduct in this affair, and in particular its refusal to conduct a full and fair investigation of this crime, demand the actions we are taking today," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter.

Letelier, a former Chilean diplomat, was murdered on a Washington street Sept. 21, 1976 and three Chilean officers were indicted for his murder in a U.S. court.

Chile has refused to extradite the three men to the United States.

Times News Services

At least 10 hostages have been moved from the U.S. embassy in Tehran in the last 72 hours, according to the Montreal newspaper La Presse.

In a dispatch from Tehran, Robert Pouliot, the newspaper's Middle East correspondent, says the move is supposed to have occurred Tuesday or Wednesday night.

He quotes a western and an Arab diplomatic source as confirming the transfer took place and is continuing.

The western source, who Pouliot describes as being in permanent contact with the U.S., was informed of "the movement of hostages" Tuesday. He says the hostages were sent to the Evin prison where the Shah's secret police kept political prisoners until last February.

Another Middle East source says the hostages were moved in groups of five to residences some distance from the city centre and particularly to the north of Tehran. The exact number of hostages moved was not available.

Pouliot says the hostages have apparently been handed over to the "Guardians of the Revolution" a kind of peoples militia created by the Islamic Revolutionary Council on the eve of the overthrow of the Shah's regime.

Until now the 49 American hostages were under the supervision of the "the Moudjaheddin Khalq of the radical faction," a group of Marxist-Islamic activists who took the embassy by assault Nov. 4.

In the meantime, the number of revolutionary guards at the U.S. embassy has increased to an astonishing extent while for the first time in nearly a month the spokesman for the "students faithful to Ayatollah Khomeini," as the Moudjaheddin activists call themselves, has been extremely talkative with foreign journalists.

Pouliot says that while some western diplomats fear the worst as a result of the hostage transfer, Mid-Eastern diplomats feel it may lead to a fast and surprising end to the embassy capture.

While the western diplomats see in the transfer an indication that trials of the hostages are imminent, the Middle East diplomats see the possiblity for a detente which should occur after Iran's national constitutional referendum Sunday and Monday.

Meanwhile, Iran announced today it will boycott a United Nations Security Council meeting on the U.S. embassy takeover.

A UN spokesman said the meeting will go on nevertheless.

In Tehran, Iran's new foreign affairs chief Sedagh Ghotbzadeh reiterated Khomeini's contention that the Security Council is under the U.S. thumb and said any Council decision "is not binding and we don't accept it."

The United States is seeking a Council resolution calling for release of the hostages. But Iran wanted the Council to take up its allegations against the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pah-

Airlines slashing fares on Canada to U.K. flights

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada and British Airways today announced a winter sale of seats at discounts between 47 and 71 per cent of economy fares for travel between major Canadian and United Kingdom points.

The sale, the first agreed to by carriers on the North Atlantic run, will be effective for the period Jan. 14 to Feb. 29, 1980 to and from Canadian points to London, England and Prestwick, Scotland.

Air Canada also announced that for the same period, it will conduct a sale of seats for both short and long-haul flights which may be combined with the discounted trans-Atlantic flights.

A sample fare for the sale will see a Toronto-London return flight cost $259, against the regular economy fare of $976, while the Vancouver-London fare will be $409, compared to the regular economy fare of $1,202.

One of the conditions of the sale calls for all travel to be completed by March 14.

For the same time period, Air Canada also will have a sale of seats from Toronto and Montreal to Paris, although on a more restricted basis. Discount prices will apply Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for eastbound flights and Wednesday and Thursday only for westbound travel.

The discounted round-trip to Paris will be $299 against regular economy fares of $1,020 from Toronto and $952 from Montreal.

"Aside from providing opportunities for travel within our own country at an affordable price, the combination of both the domestic and Atlantic seat sales will bring overseas trips within reach of many people who might not have had the chance before," Guy Chiasson, Air Canada's vice-president for marketing said.

Conditions for the trans-Atlantic discounted fares include a 30-day advance booking requirement with payment within seven days of booking and a seven-day minimum stay.

A penalty of $50 will apply for cancellation or change of plans made 30 days or more before departure and $100 for notice given less than 30 days.

Conditions for the short and long-haul domestic flights differ in some areas.

A sample discount return fare on domestic routes will be $209 for Vancouver-Montreal compared to the regular economy fare of $470, and $239 for Vancouver-Halifax against the $560 economy fare.

United Way tops target

The United Way of Greater Victoria has reached its target of $1,020,000.

And that means that 23 agencies helped by the UW, will again be funded in 1980, campaign manager Bob Harvey said today.

A significant change in this year's campaign was the delivery of 9,900 mailers in place of a door-to-door canvass.

Harvey said campaign organizers had moments of doubt about the change but it proved a big success.

A total of 5,605 mailers were returned by Nov.30 and they brought in a total of $126,312.

Reasons for the change in campaigning were the difficulty in recruiting the thousands of canvassers needed and the expense of printing material needed for so many canvassers.

"In the last two years, the United Way has been able to hold administrative costs below 10 cents," Harvey said, adding this means that more than 90 cents of every dollar donated goes to its agencies.

Although the campaign has reached its target, Harvey said people can still send donations.

Donald O. Willows, a chartered accountant, has been appointed UW campaign manager for 1980.

It's stampede time in wild, woolly Saanich

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

A bull and his harem of unruly cows are disrupting a quiet Saanich neighborhood by ravaging gardens and frightening children, an angry group of Cameo Street residents says.

The cows — led by an irritable bull — break out of a fenced compound at least once a week, said one resident who didn't want to be identified.

"They charge around gardens and chew the vegetables. One neighbor lost all of his corn crop," the resident said.

Attempts to reason with the bull, cows or their owner, Bernard Dong, of 1816 McKenzie, have failed.

The cattle, well, just look bovine.

"He (Dong) just shrugs his shoulders and doesn't seem to care," the resident said.

A petition with 15 names on it was handed to Saanich council this week.

The petition says the neighbors are sick and tired of suffering continuing damage from the cows and ask the municipality to do something about it.

The residents are afraid their children might be hurt by the cows or that they will cause traffic accidents.

Dong told the Times this morning he has been penalized by the local pound on a number of occasions and appeared in court several times to pay fines totalling about $200.

The herd of nine Angus cows has been in the field for about eight years and do break out, he acknowleged.

"It's the bull that seems to cause the trouble," Dong said.

Improvements have been made to the fence to keep the cows inside, he added.

Saanich ombudsman Ald. Mary Casilio will pay Dong a visit.

"Appeal to his municipal pride," Ald. John Mika suggested to Casilio during a committee meeting Wednesday.

"After all Buttercup in Oak Bay doesn't seem to cause any problem," Mika added, referring to a milk cow kept by an Oak Bay family.

B.C. fishing greed flayed

PARKSVILLE (CP) — The commercial fishing industry in British Columbia is guilty of monumental greed, Mike Halleran, a freelance journalist who has worked for the federal fisheries department, said Thursday.

Halleran said the response of the fishing industry to decreasing fish stocks has been to build bigger boats, with the result that there are now even fewer fish and a person has to be rich to get into the industry.

He told a University of B.C. conference on natural resource conflicts that ways must be found to give the fisheries resource back to the people.

"Many lobbies in the fishing industry engage in a continuous no-holds-barred program of pressure politics to get more and more and more," Halleran said.

"I'm becoming more suspicious of the salmon industry all the time because they don't realize that the days of super-abundance are over."

He said he believes that hundreds of gillnets were abandoned illegally in last year's herring fishery by fishermen who fished to the last second, cut the net loose and "run for the cash boat." These abandoned nets continue to fill with fish that die and rot, Halleran said.

"The lobby pressure to maximize certain fisheries is sometimes too tough for the department to resist," said Halleran. "Most citizens are poorly informed on fisheries matters. The thrust of departmental information programs is misdirected and seems more designed to con than inform."

Halleran said pressures on fish habitat are increasing and "unless the department wins some friends for this resource, fisheries values will decline."

He urged civil servants who manage resources not to be pushed around by lobby groups.

Halleran also said he believes that the law should be changed to allow native Indian fishermen to sell salmon from roadside stalls. There is such a gross disparity between the wealth of the commercial salmon industry and the income level of native Indians that it constitutes an economic obscenity, he said.

Halleran said 97 per cent

B.C. to chase defaulting hubbies

By JAKE BANKY

A government-operated collection agency — the first of its kind in Canada — should be in business by this time next year to chase ex-husbands who default on maintenance payments to welfare mothers.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy says the agency will save hassles and heartbreak for the women and in the long run, probably save the province some money.

The minister said in an interview Thursday the proposal is ready to go before cabinet.

She expects the necessary legislative changes in the spring and the program to be in place before the end of 1980.

McCarthy estimates there are between 8,000 and 10,000 single mothers on welfare who should be getting monthly support payments from their former husbands.

However in more than half the cases the husbands default, some periodically, some entirely.

What happens then, said the minister, is the woman must chase her ex-husband and if all else fails, take him to court for an enforcement-of-maintenance order.

Under the proposed new system, the province would pay the welfare mother her regular income assistance every month plus an amount equal to the maintenance owed by the husband.

The husband would make his monthly support payments directly to the government-run agency and not to his ex-wife.

"The day he defaults, that collection agency will be just as tenacious about collecting as a department store is in collecting for a chesterfield suite that isn't paid for," McCarthy said.

"The difference is that the woman doesn't have to worry about the maintenance payment — she doesn't have to make telephone calls to harass him. He doesn't have to leave town to escape her."

The minister said under the existing system, children are used as pawns, children are turned against their parents and become emotionally disturbed and the government is left to pick up the pieces.

"The province eventually does pay the welfare mother the money her husband defaults on, but not until she goes through all the arguments, vindictiveness, venom, violence and all the other things that go into collecting the dollar bill," McCarthy said.

The minister said her proposed change will not be expensive and aside from a little start-up funding, she does not expect it to cost more than the present system.

"If anything, after the first year there may even be a saving for the province."

The reason?

"Collection will be so much quicker and more tenacious. There will be no more getting away with non-payment."

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff
they comfort me

Thou preparest a table

Tests for telling when to water

gardening
hilda beastall

Water requirements by plants being grown indoors (windowsills, sunporches, frost-free greenhouses) are particularly important during December and January. In fact, they need the same understanding as those for outdoor garden plants in summer.

In both cases, the need is for "sufficient" moisture.

The difference is that with low light energy from the sun in winter, less moisture is used by the indoor plants because of slower growth; while summer outdoors is a time for stabilizing prolific new growth which sprouted in early spring.

Watering of plants in containers cannot be done on a routine basis for in a home collection there may be 50 or 100 plants each with its own requirements. It is not enough to say "water carefully." Perhaps this phrase should be altered to "water as needed" or better still "don't water if soil is already moist."

In winter, it is noticeable that certain plants will have a rest period.

Mostly these are kinds which grow outdoors here normally and either lost their leaves for December and January or die down to ground level for the same period.

Now, it may be argued that the same plants outdoors will get all the winter rainfall down to their roots. True enough, but natural soil drainage and position in the landscape prevents rotting of the roots. And cool to cold temperatures hold back premature top growth.

Containers indoors or in a cool porch or greenhouse have no exchange of moisture with surrounding soil. If kept saturated it remains that way for days, preventing air from entering to keep the soil fresh by root action. Inactive roots may rot before spring.

With all container-grown plants indoors the surface soil is not the complete indication of the water content in the soil below. Tapping clay pots for sound was a reliable guide for several generations of greenhouse gardeners. A dull thud indicated plenty of moisture; a bell-like note meant soil almost dry throughout the pot.

Today with pots of plastic, glazed pottery, metal or glass, other methods of detecting water requirements must be learned. Most reliable to my thinking is learning the relative weight of each potted plant when freshly watered, and when the soil is almost dried through, thus requiring watering.

After a week or so of experience, those of similar size and watering requirements can be grouped together. Those needing only token watering in winter to prevent complete drying of the plant tissues can be kept in a spot receiving less light but not in darkness.

As familiarity with the home plants increases, their watering needs can be at once assessed by appearance. Lack of lustre in leaves normally shining with health indicates that moisture at roots is barely enough; more is needed.

Wilting of leaves may be caused by either complete dryness or the opposite condition, excessive moisture. In both conditions the roots are unable to function normally in their work of taking in soil nutrients.

When the soil is dry, the roots can find no moisture in which the nutrients are available; in wet soil the roots lack the tiny air pockets between the soil particles which are just one of the requirements in root activity.

Water the potted plants only when needed. If in doubt, and the plant appears healthy, wait until you try one of the three tests described above.

New Anglican church ready for christening

The Cordova Bay Anglican congregation christens its new church, St. David's-by-the-Sea, tonight.

The $130,000 building, to be dedicated at 7.30 p.m. by retiring Bishop Roy Gartrell, still needs a few finishing touches like installation of carpet and renovation of the organ before it is truly completed, but is near enough to completion for the dedication to go ahead.

The congregation was established in the mid-1940s when Cordova Bay was still a rural area, and has been worshipping in what was basically designed as a multipurpose hall for the past 30 years.

The congregation decided to build in January and foundation work started in July on the building, designed by local architect Donald MacPherson.

The building measures 42 by 45 feet with the chancel at the most easterly corner. The baptistry and main entrance are diagonally opposite. The ceiling at this point is 10 feet high, sweeping to nearly 30 feet above the altar.

The high ceiling made it possible to place the organ and choir in lofts and make maximum space of the floor space to seat the congregation.

Pews will be arranged in an arc centring on the altar, behind which is a tall narrow leaded-glass window, with two more indows backing the font.

The local congregation raised $50,000 towards the cost, with another $30,000 in volunteer labor. Additional money came from diocesan and Anglican Foundation funds.

Services Monday for retired fireman

Funeral services will be held at McCall Bros. Chapel Monday at 10:30 a.m. for Edward C. Ball, retired assistant chief of the Victoria Fire Department, who died suddenly in Victoria Wednesday. He was 63.

He is survived by his widow, Freda; son, Russell of Victoria; daughter, Linda of Vancouver; three grandchildren; one brother, Gordon of Victoria; three sisters, Mrs. J. (Doreen) Bryant, Mrs. Shirley Leroux of Victoria, Mrs. S. (Florence) Henderson of Calgary; nieces and nephews.

Mishap ends in death

A Duncan man has died in Victoria General Hospital from injuries received in an industrial accident at the Western Forest Industries' Honeymoon Bay plant.

RCMP said Ernest Anderson, 60, was struck Wednesday when lumber fell from a truck.

There's no pricetag on estate because realtors don't know what to ask

Ghost with Getty mansion

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

GUILDFORD, England (AP) — Sutton Place, the Tudor mansion where the late J. Paul Getty commanded his worldwide oil empire, is for sale — complete with great hall, the ghost of Anne Boleyn and a 1,000-acre estate.

The ghost will be a bonus for whoever buys the two-storey, red-brick mansion with its four farms, 16 cottages and its own church.

"Members of the Getty family have seen the ghost, but the late Mr. Getty never saw it himself," said Barbara Wallace, who manages the house for the Getty Oil Co. of Los Angeles. "He didn't believe in such things."

There is no price on Sutton Place because Lintott Residential, a real estate firm, isn't sure what to ask.

British real estate sources estimated the eventual price around £5 million, the equivalent of more than $10 million.

Getty paid £300,000 (then $840,000) in 1959 for the estate, which is just outside Guildford, 50 kilometres southwest of London. He used it as his European base and died there, aged 83, on June 6, 1976.

"We have spent a fortune on maintaining the house," said Alan Wallace of Vancouver, managing director of Getty Oil in Britain and Barbara's husband. "We need more office space, which we cannot get permission to build here in the green belt, so we are moving to London."

Anne Boleyn's ghost is said to appear in the Oriel bedroom, where there is a canopied, four-poster bed.

"The ghosts of a man and a maid-servant have also been seen, and doors open where there are no doors," said Mrs. Wallace.

Anne Boleyn romped with King Henry VIII in the oak-paneled mansion four centuries ago, before becoming his second wife. She lost her head for adultery and one of her alleged lovers, Sir Francis Weston, died with her. His father, Sir Richard Weston, built Sutton Place in the 1520s.

The house stayed in the family until the end of the 19th century and had only two owners before Getty — newspaper tycoon Lord Northcliffe and the Duke of Sutherland.

On a recent November day, with fog shrouding the house and fields along the River Wey, the house felt remarkably warm, with log fires blazing in massive fireplaces and 168 oil-heated hot water radiators turned on.

"It was colder when Mr. Getty was alive," Wallace said. He was a pretty tough old boy, and he didn't have central heating, just coal or log fires and electric blow heaters."

Sutton Place has a domestic staff of 28 including Swiss cook Kathleen Aepli who said Getty was a "wonderful employer.

"There was never any need to worry about money," she said, pulling feathers from the tail of a cock pheasant.

Doors in the house have labels so guests know where they are. In one guest bedroom is the book: How to Avoid Matrimony. Getty had five failed marriages.

Jailed dissident 'extremely ill'

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The wife of jailed Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky said Thursday he is extremely ill in a Soviet prison and can no longer read.

Avital Shcharansky appealed to the United States to pressure the Soviet Union to release him "before it is too late."

Shcharansky told the National Press Club: "He is very sick . . . He can't read any more, his eyes hurt when he writes. It took him 25 days to write just one letter."

Her husband was accused of being a U.S. spy and jailed by Soviet authorities in 1977.

Mrs. Shcharansky said he is being kept in solitary confinement in a jail at Chistopol, 800 kilometres from Moscow. "No one cares about him in that prison," she said.

Victoria Exchanges 477 & 721 go electronic.

On December 1, 1979 Victoria telephone exchanges 477 & 721 will be converted to the new electronic system which B.C. Tel is busy advancing throughout the province.

The whole idea is not only highly sophisticated but a significant step towards bringing you more efficient service.

Already 28 exchanges in B.C. have been converted to take advantage of the new electronic system. One more switchover is planned for 1979 and a further six are planned for 1980.

By 1981, nearly half the phones in B.C. will be electronically controlled. By 1985, three-quarters of the phones will be converted.

As you would expect, a conversion such as this is a huge project. The benefits, especially in the long run, are equally substantial.

Cost control - and its ultimate effect on the rates you will pay for phone service in the future - is the major benefit to telephone customers. For many reasons - among them maintenance efficiency, space-saving, operational reliability - electronic switching technology helps us to meet customer needs effectively and, at the same time, to hold the line as best we can against the costs of providing service to you.

Top IRA criminal gets nine years

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish republic's Special Criminal Court on Thursday sentenced Desmond O'Hare, wanted for questioning in 27 political killings in the neighboring Northern Ireland, to nine years in prison for firearms offences in the republic.

O'Hare, 23, is described by police as the most-wanted Irish Republican Army guerrilla in strife-torn Northern Ireland..

Judge James D'Arcy, in sentencing O'Hare, told him: "People like you, who live by the sword, should die by the sword."

The IRA, almost exclusively Roman Catholic, is fighting to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and reunite it with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic republic. O'Hare comes from the IRA stronghold of South Armagh in Northern Ireland.

He is the second suspected IRA terrorist jailed in two weeks. The same anti-terrorist court last week jailed for life Thomas McMahon, identified by police as a top IRA explosives expert, for the bomb-murder of Lord Mountbatten, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth slain in the republic last August.

The no-jury court jailed O'Hare as British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher attended a European Common Market summit meeting here.

Britain has long complained that the republic has not moved strongly enough against IRA operations, and government officials here hoped that O'Hare's sentence will convince the British that Dublin is serious in its anti-terrorist efforts.

What is a mortgage, and how do you get one?

BY JAMIE MACGREGOR

A mortgage is a document registered against the title of your property stating the terms and conditions under which you have agreed to borrow money from the lender.

The full life of a mortgage is called the amortization period, normally 25 years, within which time X number of dollars per month for 25 years will pay off the debt, including interest. The term in a mortgage refers to a shorter period at the end of which the percentage rate is adjusted. This can work in your favour with careful planning.

Your realtor, before you begin the search for a home, will have already determined how much you can afford to pay, taking into account your cash plus what you will be allowed to borrow. How did he do that?

He simply ascertains from you and/or your employer what your monthly total salary is, takes 30% (slight variations could apply) of it and from his book of percentage rates readily determines how much you could borrow. Say wages were $1,000 per month, times .30 equals $300, which would buy $30,000 of money at 11¼% over 25 years. Thus he knows, from how much cash you are willing to spend plus the $30,000 mortgage, just what price -range he has to find your home in.

If you don't tell your realtor the truth,you're wasting a lot of time for everybody; vendors, realtor and yourself. Be practical, and if you have a beer budget don't look for a champagne house.

So your realtor finds you a home, arranges a sale subject to raising a mortgage (financing because you don't have all cash). How do you go about finding a mortgage?

Your own bank is generally the best bet. The manager values your account and should readily assist you. Your realtor should know what each bank's lending rate is, each trust company's and credit union's. If the realtor is on his toes he can often save you many dollars.

Some lending institutions pay a fee for bringing in a borrower and this may affect the choice of lender. If you think this is the case, ask. Shop around. A lot can be done on the telephone. If a lending institution won't talk to you over the phone regarding interest rates, penalties, no penalty mortgages, etc., then they can't want your business very much.

Now, be prepared for extra costs. 1.An application for a mortgage fee. Is this refundable if you are not granted the mortgage? 2.Appraisal fee. Up to $100 unless its something special. 3.Certificate of non-encroachment. Certifying thatthe property is where it's supposed to be and that it is not hanging over the neighbour's yard. Most lending institutions insist on the mortgage documents being drawn by their solicitor and it is common practice to suggest that you use the same one to do the conveyancing.

This is normally cheaper than having a solicitor of your choice do the conveyancing and another one doing the papers. This of course raises a point.

You pay the solicitor but he's working for the lending institution, as far as the mortgage part goes. So, ask your realtor what questions you should ask of the solicitor about what is in the document. There's an old saying that goes, "It is better to be silent and have people think you are stupid than open your mouth and prove it." This is one case where that's not true. If you don't know what the document means, ask; and if you are still vague, don't nod your head, OK, for fear of appearing stupid. You will be stupid if you sign for a large amount of money and don't fully understand what you're signing for. You have a perfect right to know.

Solicitor fees, by the way, are pretty standard and are based on the amount of work involved, and the cost of Land Registry is by scale according to price of purchase.

A simple title search finds clear title, where one mortgage is drawn and registered. Compare that to a title search that shows up three different mortgages; first, second and a third. The lenders have to be found, final payout figures determined, etc., etc. The fee for searching a title like this will be higher.

Incidentally the vender pays to deregister existing charges from land registry. He doesn't pay for the work involved but pays the land registry charge. If a first and, say, a second mortgage back to the vendor are to be drawn the cost is obviously more than it would be for drawing just one document.

With today's high rates there are some savings available. Suppose the $70,000 house you want to buy has an existing $45,000 mortgage at 11% with two years to go til the term runs out. You've got $15,000 cash, and need $10,000. Getting a new $55,000 mortgage isn't the answer.

Take a second, even if at 16% for the same term as remains on the first. Why is it cheaper than a new first? Well, at the current 15% interest times $55,000 equals $8,250 interest per year (approximately), but $45,000 times 11% equals $4,950 plus ($10,000 times 16% equals $1,600) equals $6,550, which is approximately $1,700 per year cheaper

Because you have these extra dollars to spend, perhaps you could afford that better home since you can average down the interest rate you'll have to pay. Clear title houses will not afford that luxury.

Therefor, one question you should ask your realtor is: "Is there an existing mortgate at a good rate and how long has it got to run?"

If a new one has to be raised, consider that the rates are at an all-time high and don't get locked into a high rate for an extended term. You can talk turkey to lenders.

Some will insist you bring all your banking to them as a condition of lending you a mortgage. Shop around and ensure you have sufficient time in your purchase contract to raise a mortgage. It should not take longer than three weeks and indeed some can be done in a couple of days.

The percentage rate at the time of agreeing to purchase may change by the time the mortgage is approved. The rate, unless specifically agreed to previously will be the new rate (if higher). Alway remember, your realtor should be knowledgeable enough to save you a considerable number of dollars.

You don't have to be a bride to appreciate the timeless elegance of this design.

Western cedar is the perfect wood choice . . . its rich color and grain can be beautifully accented with rubbing oil.

Cost of the material varies. However, if you use a wood with a less-defined grain (like pine or walnut), the plan offers some design variations.

You can then line the chest with cedar, if you choose. You'll find plenty of pictures and step-by-step directions to guide you on this project.

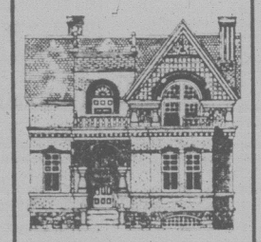
Italian villa

Originally inspired by the farmhouses of the Italian countryside, the revival was popular on this continent after 1845.



Romanesque revival

Popular from 1870 to 1900, Romanesque recalled the massive effect of stone buildings in the period before medieval Gothic. Houses in this style were stone or shingle, large and low, with many rounded windows and round arches. Chimneys were squat to keep the low, solid shape.

INTERIOR DESIGN

Giving an old bathroom a new lease on life

By PAULINE GRAVES

When we say "remodel", the connotation is that of a great structural upheaval, or walls coming down, new fixtures installed, plaster dust everywhere, and all at great expense.

But if a bathroom has anything going for it, a classic wash basin for example, lots can be done with surface improvements only, such as in the bathroom shown here, by interior designer, Olivia Neese.

Instead of ripping out the built-in cabinets which are typical of houses built sixty or seventy years ago, they were painted to accent the design, dark drawer fronts and panel frames contrasting with surrounding colors.

And the rest of the unit is in lighter colors, but which, nevertheless, are deep enough to contrast with the patterned wallpaper and the white tile that cover the walls. There is no denying the efficiency of old time built-ins, however the tendency has been to eliminate them. Doing the opposite; calling attention to the design, is a refreshing change.

Windows get the same treatment and the same colors, which accentuate the wide molding. Over the wash basin the narrow mirror is distinguished with a frame of opaque glass and a top of stained glass detail. The large and handsome pedestal basin has held its own all these years and becomes more usuful thanks to the additon of a slender marble shelf above.

A collection of mirrors effective

You might consider collecting mirrors and making a feature wall out of them. This is particularly effective in a hallway or entry. You can create a hobby for yourself (think of the hours of fun you can have haunting rummage sales, garage sales, and second hand shops) and improve your decor while you do it.

Every home, new or old, has problem areas, drab spots, or shadowy corridors which lessen the charm of the over-all decorative scheme. The brightness, lightness and design interest that are needed can be staged by skillfully using mirrors in practical but decorative arrangements.

Today you can use mirrors to create illusion. Imaginatively placed, a mirror can accent an architectural highlight, open up a small room, reflect the charm and beauty of gracious living.

Whenever possible, mirrors should reflect beauty, whether it is a natural or staged reflection. A mirror which reflects a window, frames the beauty of the outdoor scene and makes it a permanent part of interior decoration.

When a picture grouping, a decorative furniture grouping or some other room furnishing or accessory is reflected the mirror picks up pattern, color and design interest from one area and brings it to another for double enjoyment. Reflect and project beauty. A mirror that reflects a blank wall is missing all its potential.

Catalogues show mirrors ranging from plain unadorned mirrors in a variety of shapes and sizes, through delicately cut floral patterns, to framed designs that evoke images of distant countries and time periods.

"WONDER WHO LIVES THERE?"

This is where the man who wrote Troika lives: This home belongs to David and Judith Gurr

In pastoral Saanich: a home designed and built by one of Canada's most promising novelists

ABOVE, THE LIVING ROOM, overlooking a tranquil vista of fields and trees, with its fireplace of carefully fitted slabs of marbellized limesone from California, called Feather River Driftstone. The room to the left is a comfortable family room, for reading, games, or television.

OVER THE DINING TABLE hangs an intrigueing light fixture David made from a flywheel which was from a Chinese rice mill. He found it in an old house on Rockland Avenue. Table top is made from a 600-year-old fir, and is 3½ inches thick.

On Prospect Lake Road, at a picturesque bend just before the Munn Road turn-off to Francis Park and The Highlands District, is a wooden rail fence and a wide gate behind which no house is visible at all.

The house, when you see it, obviously has anything but a conventional floor plan. Its unexpected angles result in a combination of fairy-tale charm accentuated by the peak of the roof line, the wavy-edged cedar siding and shingled roof, and ultra-modernism emphasized by large windows that extend up into the roof line. Unconventional, yet obviously created by someone who'd an eye for balance and good design.

In fact, it was created by a man who has spent several years in Victoria as a designer and builder. But Gurr is not an architect by training, nor a builder by trade. In fact, prior to the house designing, he spent sixteen years in the navy "driving ships around" as he puts it.

He does seem to be the sort of man who is able to do anything well that he makes up his mind to do. (How many people, having written nothing before in their lives beyond the required essays and compositions in school and a few reports in quadruplicate during a service career, write a very first novel and have it published in New York, London, and Toronto?)

Inside, the house is all wood and grasscloth. Huge beams have been burned with a blow-torch and brushed, which leaves the grain standing out in relief, and a dark burnished glow to the whole thing.

Much of the wood is permeated with little holes. Paneling of this type is taken from logs which were once afloat, and afloat for long enough for Toledo worms to have made their mark.

One of David's beliefs, when it comes to designing houses, is that the adults' bedroom area should be totally apart from the children's sleeping and activity areas particularly with older children. He plans his houses so that the adults' bedroom is in a separate wing altogether, so that the activities of one group don't interfere with those of another.

David was born in London, England, but has obviously embraced the westcoast contemporary genre of home design utilizing wood, stone, and the placement of windows to bring the outside in.

The only thing perhaps reminiscent of England, is the cathedral type ceilings that swoop up, following the roof line in every room (there are no flat ceilings anywhere in the house). Windows are placed high up against the roof line, sometimes between one room and another, to let in natural light, to offset what would otherwise be a somewhat dark environment, and often to utilize the sun's heat, though they are not solar windows as such.

"House design is too square, too rectangular in concept, in my opinion" says David. "It really doesn't cost that much more to go the un-square route" he adds, explaining that this makes for a much more interesting and livable space arrangement. David Gurr doesn't use drywall in his homes because he doesn't like smooth expanses of white.

THIS PICTURE WAS TAKEN from the living room, looking towards the front entry. Interesting beam structure is reminiscent of the Toran gateways commonly found in Buddhist temples in the far east.

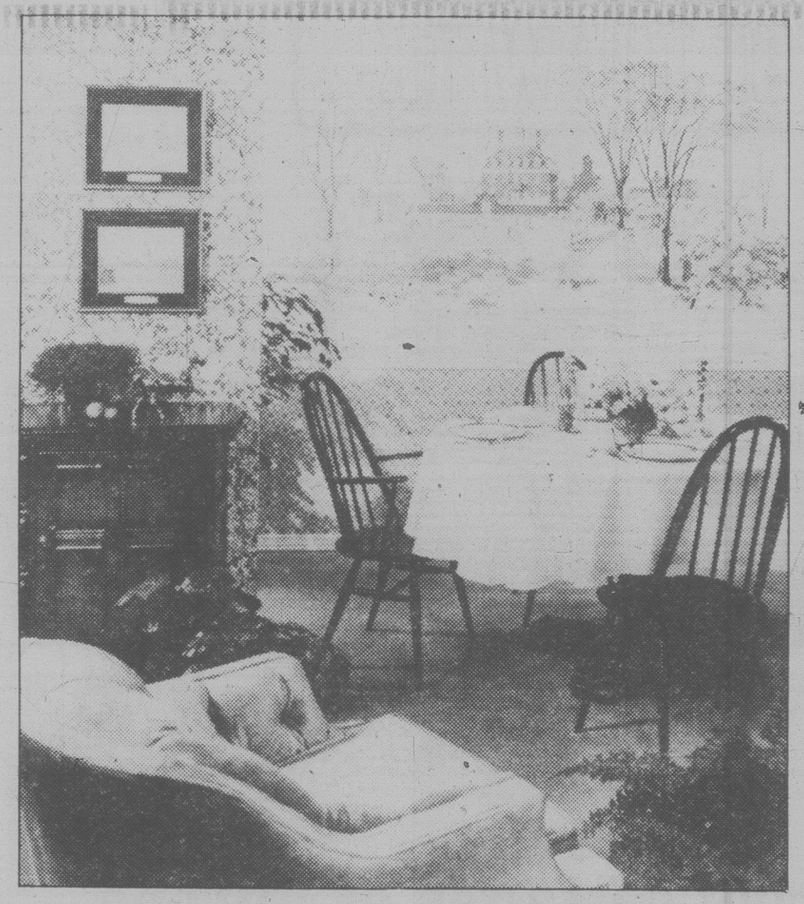
LET'S TALK ABOUT IT!



A PERIOD MURAL "Palace Green" used with companion patterns, provides a novel way of decorating the typical L-shaped living/dining room. From Sunworthy's collection of pre-pasted, scrubbable and drystrippable wallcoverings.

Murals and scenics lend depth to rooms

Murals, or scenics as they are often referred to, have been a part of home decorating in one form or another ever since man drew on the walls of caves. Egyptian tomb paintings were also a form of mural, as were Medieval tapestries.

Wall murals today are executed in a variety of materials, but by far the most common are murals which can be applied to your walls as easily as regular wallcoverings. They usually have all the practical qualities of today's wallcoverings, too.

Once thought of as totally traditional in character - architectural renditions of ancient Egypt, Crete, Pompeii - wallcovering murals today are totally diversified, including simple modernistic designs, peaceful country scenes, natural photographic looks - even designs in metallics.

The very newest wallcovering murals have an added plus in that they come with companion patterns. "These add tremendously to the decorative scope of a mural," says Mary Prud'homme, Design and Color Consultant for Sunworthy Wallcoverings. "With companion patterns, it is possible to feature a mural on one wall, with a companion wallcovering either on the other walls in the same room, or in adjoining rooms. This can create a very exciting and well-integrated decorating scheme."

As an example, a most effective use of a mural with companion pattern or patterns might be to feature the mural on the long wall of a dining area in an L-shaped living/dining room. It could be set above a chair rail made of simple wood molding. Then cover the dado, below the chair rail, with a small companion documentary design. A color and design related floral could then be used on the other walls in the living area. The total visual effect provides a whole new perspective to the standard L-shaped room.

Another interesting way to use a mural and companion pattern in a bedroom would be to use the mural behind the bed, set into an alcove with a companion pattern around it. Alternatively, where no alcove exists, frame the mural with molding or ribbon, or simply take it across the whole wall. Then use a companion pattern on the other walls.

One area where murals have always been popular is in a hall or small foyer. With the addition of a companion pattern, you can continue the effect up the stairs or into rooms which lead off the hallway.

PLAN OF THE WEEK

Reminiscent of thatch roof cottages of Europe

Plan Number: 79-2209

Here's a stunning three-bedroom home design which is reminiscent of the cottages and thatched roof homes of rural Europe.

Perfectly suited to the wide frontage building lot, this house offers the medium-size family a sense of spaciousness and luxury at every turn. The white stuccoed exterior, brick chimney, shutter-accented windows and upstairs dormers, and shingle or shake roof, present a solidly traditional facade which lends an impression of permanence and comfort, which feeling is carried forward in the high-style and charm of the interior design features.

The weather-protected porch-style entry leads into a large and open reception foyer and closet storage area, which is flanked by the interesting semi-circular stairway to the second storey. Forward and naturally left takes one into the large, L-shape living-dining room combination, which features a centrally-positioned masonry fireplace, alcove garden and sliding glass doors to a wide rear patio. The secluded dining area separates from the kitchen via convenient pocket door.

The well-planned U-shape kitchen has an excellent work triangle and abundant countertop work surfaces. The adjacent nook provides generous space for traditional portable furniture or, may be separated from the kitchen via snack bar counter for those who prefer. Connecting to the nook is a very large laundry-utility complex, featuring a side-by-side configuration of washer-tub-dryer, and a long laundry-folding counter.

A centraly-positioned two-piece vanity bath, and an enclosed two-car garage, with access to an internal garden tool-storage area, complete the main level conveniences of this excellent design.

All three bedrooms are positioned on the second storey, around the central bath and linen storage. Each has an interesting dormer alcove, generous closet storage and excellent natural light. The master suite has a full walk-in closet and a three-piece ensuite with tub.

The central bath has sufficient countertop area to allow for the installation of a second vanity sink, should it prove desirable.

A large upstairs den or lounge area overlooks the circular stairwell and provides a seating alcove, thanks to the dormer window. This will be a favourite spot for smaller children's imaginative play, orfor meditative older children.

Plans for design No. 79-2209 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $85.00 for the first set and $14.00 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $120.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $150.00.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 4% sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs magazine, Series 42, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas, plus 320 quality home plans of every type. Available of $2.75 ($2.00 plus 75 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C., V5Y 1R2.

NOW YOU KNOW

R-factor explained, aluminum siding, exhaust fans discussed

Q. Can you explain to me why insulation is measured in "R" factors instead of inches? It all seems too confusing to me.

A. Actually measuring insulation by "R" factors simplifies understanding insulation and that's why it is measured that way. Inches are confusing since different insulations have different insulation values. Therefore it is difficult to compare X number of inches of one insulation against another. As an example, wood shavings have an "R" factor of about 2 per inch, whereas extruded polystyrene insulation has an "R" factor of 5 per inch and fiberglass is 3.5 per inch. So the resistance to heat loss or "R" factor is much greater per inch with extruded polystyrene than it is with wood shavings or fiberglass insulation. So measuring insulation by inches would be deceptive. By comparing "R" factors and the cost per "R" factor you can determine which is the best buy in insulation. You would use an insulation with a high "R" factor if you wanted to get as much insulation as possible into any given space. For example, an existing house wall. However, if you have all kinds of space such as an open attic area then it wouldn't make any diffeernce what insulation was used as long as you attain the "R" factor that you want. You may find that an insulation that has a lower "R" factor per inch. If there is no need to use one that has a low "R" factor per inch because you have lots of space in an open attic, then use whichever one is most economical.

Q. We want to paint our aluminum siding. It's about twenty years old and has started to fade. Is this possible?

A. Yes. You can paint it with any good exterior house paint. But like painting wood, you have to make sure that the surface is clean and dry, as well as any dents or holes must be repaired. To repair the dents or holes get a metal patching compound such as the material used for autobody repairs. Make sure that the repair is sanded smooth. Also sand off any loose flaking areas and any areas that are rough. On any bare spots a special primer is necessary. It is made especially for aluminum and it is a phosphate primer. This is a specialty item and it may not be available at a paint store but it may be available from an aluminum siding wholesaler or aluminum boat retailers. It is the same primer that is used on aluminum boats. Even though it is paintable, aluminum siding has a special factory-applied finish that usually lasts a long time. However your painted on finish won't last any longer than if it was painted on a good quality wood. So you would look forward to repainting it again in a few years.

Q. We have condensation problems in our house and would like to install a good exhaust fan in the kitchen because that is where we produce most of the moisture. Where do you suggest we install the fan and what size should it be?

A. The fan should be installed in the ceiling to collect moisture from all areas of the kitchen including, cooking, washing dishes, etc. You can add a tremendous amount of humidity to the air simply by boiling foods or running water in the sink. If this moisture is not exhausted from the house it will add to the humidity problem in the house. A good quality exhaust fan with the exhaust going right outside is best. It should be vented either through the roof or through the wall. On a two-story house the most practical place to install it is on the wall but near the ceiling since the warm air brings the moisture to the ceiling. The fan that can move between 150 and 250 cu. ft. a minute would be necessary for a medium size kitchen. Larger kitchens, say larger than 12'x12' would even need a stronger fan. So that you don't have the fan running full speed all the time while it is on, you should install a speed control switch. This will allow you to have the fan running slow and then speed it up whenever you are doing excessive cooking, etc. Another method is to connect the fan to a de-humidistat which will turn the fan on and off when the humidity reaches a certain level. The vent to the fan should be well insulated and have a plastic vapour barrier applied to the outside of the insulation with the joints taped. Masking tape or heat duct tape could be used. Most homeowners could install such a fan on their own but if you don't feel qualified call in an electrical contractor and they can supply and install the fan. Remember that whether you or an electric contractor install the fan you need an electrical permit and an inspection for the electrical wiring. The fan has a backdraft flap of its own and then the outlet jack, either on the roof or the side of the house should also have a backdraft flap. Make sure that the exit for the fan vent is well sealed to the roof or wall with an acrylic caulking compound.

COLLECTIBLES

For Canadian clock collectors

Arthur Lee of North York asks if I have any information about the Canada Clock Company.

For an answer one turns unhesitatingly to the source work of all such matters, Canadian Clocks and Clockmakers by G. Edmund Burrows, much the most comprehensive study of the subject, lovingly carried out and published by the author in 1973. Rather than describe the history of the company he reports its rise and fall as seen through the eyes of a series of excerpts mainly from the Whitby newspapers.

The company was founded in June of 1872 by John Collins of Hamilton and in March of 1873 we have a colorful description of the new factory by one of the Whitby Chronicle reporters. The plant occupies two full floors of a 5,000 square foot building. It is apparently crammed with esoteric machines including a wheel cutter which, we are told, is capable of making 10,000 wheels a day. Both clock cases and movements are made in the same factory.

By October 1874 the company is shipping 60 cases of clocks at a time to Berlin, Ontario and by May the following year they are faithfully reported as moving goods out by the carload.

In June 1875 the Whitby Chronicle tells of a contract secured by the Canada Clock Company to manufacture a new safe door timer recently invented by Mr. Henessy of Hamilton.

In October 1875 vast quantities of Canada Clocks were being exported to Scotland and gross volume sales to $50,000 to $60,000 were being projected; but the year was not yet over. The events of the next few weeks conceal a story which remains untold.

On October 22, 1875 the Chronicle reported that the company was being lured from Whitby to Oshawa by a group of Oshawa citizens who had raised $15,000 to buy it out. The deal was repeatedly closed but a month later the company was negotiating a better offer from Port Hope. In December 1875 the plant burned down and a few months after that the company was sold to a Hamilton concern for $100,000.

In July 1876 there was a clearance sale of the company's products held in Whitby and yet another in Whitby a year later.

Collins continued to manage the Hamilton operation but the heyday was past. In 1887 the manufacturing plant was nudged aside by a maker of lamps and birdcages and a year later, it ceased to exist.

Edmund Burrows whets our appetites with the bare bones of a story the best of which remains untold. Let's hope he is still working on it and will share the rest with us one of these days.

His book, Canadian Clocks and Clock makers is presumably unobtainable these days and I dread to think what it might cost on the rare book market. Canadian clock enthusiasts should be able to find it in the reference section of any good public library. It is a large handsome volume with hundreds of photographs and details of all the known patents granted to Canadian clockmakers.

Readers' letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, R.R.1, Lowbanks, Ontario, N0A 1K0.

Useful tips for do-it-yourselfers

Sanding, an essential step in most home repair projects, is an easy task when the right tools are used. Small power tools such as the drill sander (a drill with a sanding attachment) and the finishing sander, are being used by female do-it-yourselfers to fix things around the house. Many find them as easy to operate as an electric mixer, especialy when used with self-sticking sandpaper sheets. There are no clamps or screws to adjust; the "sticky-back" sheets adhere tightly, preventing tearing or ripping while sanding.

Here are some easy home-repair and maintenance tips:

- If a drawer sticks or doesn't slide easily, use a finishing sander to sand wherever the drawer is sticking. (Places where a drawer binds often look dark and shiny.) Apply a silicone spray on the tops and bottoms of drawer runners.
- When a door binds, remove it from the hinges and examine the outer edges. Use a finishing sander to take off a little wood wherever the edge is chafed.
- Use the finishing sander for light sanding jobs and to give a fine finish to wood and veneers.
- Painted Furniture — It's a good idea to periodically renew painted furniture. The finishing sander is ideal for preparing the furniture for repainting.
- Prepare stair treads for a painting or varnishing. A good workout with a drill sander will clean them and make for better adhesion of the new finish.
- Remove peeling paint. Before repainting any surface, eliminate bits of flaking paint with the drill sander. You'll get better results!

Timmy's Christmas telethon

Ninety-two per cent of all British Columbians will be able to view the third annual Timmy's Christmas Telethon Dec. 1, a 21-hour show that begins immediately after the hockey game.

This first-ever CBC-produced telethon is sponsored by the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children. Funds will be used for 120 Easter Seal buses, three Easter Seal camps, Vancouver's Easter Seal House, amd direct patient care programs.

Among the host of entertainers taking part in the show from the Queen Elizabeth Theatre are Shari Lewis, Patsy Gallant, Werner Klemperer, Rolly Hammond and his duck, Walter, Bobby Gimby and Jesse Jones.

The five affiliates joining CBUT for the show are situated in Kelowna, Kamloops, Prince George, Terrace and Dawson Creek.

TWO ISLAND YOUNGSTERS, Gregory Henderson of Victoria, and Tania Brzovic of Lantzville are chatting with director Dave Metheral of Camp Shawnigan, one of the facilities supported by the telethon.

TV Mailbag

SEE ABOVE — I saw Jackie Earle Haley in the 1977 release, "Bad News Bears in Breaking Training." Will he be in any more movies? — T.B., Hammond, Ind.

Haley, who made his mark in the 1974 release, "Day of the Locusts," and went on to the original "Bad News Bears" and its equel, can now be seen in "Breaking Away," the comedy hit mentioned above.

CINDERELLA STRIPS — Can you tell me if Lesley Ann Warren of the recent television movie, "A Portrait of a Stripper," is the same woman that played in "Cinderella"? — Tim Hager, Alexis, N.C.

Her fairy godmother might be scandalized, but they're one and the same with a few years and costume changes in between.
